"DRY" INDEPENDENT BEING SOUGHT TO FACE ROLPH IN FINAL BALLOT

Board Of Supervisors Buys St. Ann's Inn For $145,000

HOTEL WILL BE CLOSED NEXT MONTH

Several County Officers to Be Moved From Court House and Hall Records

ACTION IS UNANIMOUS

Money From Unbudgeted Reserve Will Be Used to Finance Big Project

ST. ANN'S INN, for years the most valuable hotel property in Orange county and known throughout the state as one of its most famous hotels, will be bought by the County of Orange on September 30, according to an announcement made today.

The county will purchase the hotel property for $145,000, according to a resolution made by the county board of supervisors in a meeting held yesterday.

The hotel will be turned into county offices and the county is expected to take possession sometime before January 1. The inn is to be renovated to suit the purposes of various offices which will be moved across the street from the court house property, but no announcement was made as to the nature of the changes to be made in the hotel.

The county court house has been crowded for space for years and the purchase of the hotel property will relieve this situation. At the present time there are three county officers paying rent away from the court house for space. The county farm bureau, which formerly was in the basement of the hall of records building, is now located in the Santa Ana Hotel building on North Main street, and the county flood control and county welfare offices are located in a building north of the Y. M. C. A. building on North Sycamore street.

These together with other crowded county offices in the court house will be moved over to the St. Ann's Inn property when the county takes charge of it.

Although nothing was stated at the meeting, it is believed that the money for the purchase of the property will come from an unbudgeted reserve fund which the county has had for some time with an idea of building additional buildings on its present property.

There had been talk for years of building another building where the old county jail building stood between the county court house and the hall of records. This property eventually will be built on, but the purchase of St. Ann's Inn property will delay it for sometime.

The supervisors announced that more than $300 was being spent per month now for rent for the offices that were forced to seek more space outside of the court house property, giving this as one reason for the purchase of the hotel property.

That there also are several other offices inside the court house building that will be allotted more space when the county takes over the new property, was intimated, including the district attorney's office, which is overcrowded.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28.—(UP)—Five marriages against four divorces and annulments was the marital score of Eugenia Bankhead-Hoyt-Butt-Lee, daughter of Congressman W. B. Bankhead of Alabama, as she walked into court today in quest of an annulment of her marriage with Howard Lee, aviator and sportsman.

The hearing opened yesterday, with Mrs. Lee testifying that her fifth husband had misrepresented his social standing to her by telling her that he was an official of an aviation company and earned $24,000 a year.

INSTIGATOR OF PERU'S REVOLT NAMED LEADER

LIMA, PERU, Aug. 28.—(UP)—Hailed as a national hero and given the reception of a conqueror when he arrived here from Arequipa by airplane yesterday afternoon, Lieut. Col. Luis S. Sanchez Cerro was at the head of a new military junta, or committee, charged with conducting the government of Peru today.

Sanchez Cerro instigated the original revolt at the Arequipa garrison which resulted in the overthrow of President Augusto B. Leguia. Yesterday he succeeded the military committee headed by General Maria Ponce and formed his own government. He administered the oath to the following members of his cabinet last night:

Minister of foreign relations—Col. Ernesto Montagne.

Minister of interior—Major Gustavo Jiminez.

Minister of the treasury—Col. Ricardo Llona.

Minister of public works—Col. Eulogio Castillo.

Minister of the navy—Commandante Carlos Rotaldo.

Minister of war—Major Elejandro Barco.

Sanchez Cerro's action cleared the Peruvian political situation at least temporarily. He will serve as president of the new junta without portfolio.

Three factions were considered as contestants for power over the country before the new junta was sworn in. Sanchez Cerro and his followers were conceded an advantage over Gen. Ponce and the committee which took over the government after Leguia's resignation.

COAST GUARDSMEN SEEK SINKING SHIP

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 28.—(UP)—Coast guardsmen continued searching today for the Francis T., which is supposed to be disabled and sinking off shore here with four men aboard, according to the tale told police by three "supervisors," who swam ashore here yesterday.

The men, John Larrie, 24; Freeman Banbury, 25, and Clarence Atkinson, 27, are natives of Halifax, N. S.

MURDER FIEND BEING SOUGHT NEAR ENSENADA

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Aug. 28.—(UP)—A "murder fiend" was sought by American and Mexican officials today for the Ensenada Beach slaying of Lois Marion Kertle, Los Angeles sorority girl, and her fiance, Francis Conlon, 24-year-old Monrovia, Calif., paint store manager.

Three men were held "on suspicion" in connection with the case, and were questioned at the jail in Ensenada, a resort city in Lower California 69 miles below Tia Juana. Governor Jose Maria Tapia of Lower California, who ordered a search for the supposed fiend, refused to say what the three were held for but admitted he believed they knew little of the double slaying.

Lacking evidence of a motive for the murders, authorities said a clue offered by William De Tarr and his wife of Los Angeles was the most promising advanced since the pajama-clad bodies of Miss Kentle and Colon were found half buried in the sands of Ensenada Beach early Tuesday.

De Tarr told Los Angeles police that he and his wife were picked up by a lone motorist last Sunday while hiking to Tia Juana. The man continually talked of murdering them, De Tarr said, and once he stopped to ask De Tarr if he had a knife.

"It would be easy to kill you and bury your bodies in the sand," the man was quoted as saying.

De Tarr said they rode with the man to Tia Juana, where they left him as soon as possible.

The Los Angeles man said he decided to tell the police of the affair

Workman Under Train As Crash Comes Believed Seriously Injured

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Aug. 28.—(UP)—Eighteen persons were injured, one probably fatally, when two Southern Pacific trains collided here early today.

Thomas Leon, Southern Pacific repairman, is the only one whose life is in danger. He suffered severe internal injuries and the loss of his left leg.

The injured:

Ralph Hall, Jamuil, Calif., head injuries.

W. O. Carvio, San Diego, neck strain.

Miss Minnie F. Myers, Oakland, back injuries.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hazen, Chicago, neck injuries.

E. Allison, Los Angeles, elbow injuries.

E. W. Parker, San Francisco, injured neck.

F. C. Burr, Los Angeles, head and neck injuries.

Mrs. Ruth Murphy, Los Angeles, leg and neck injuries.

Mrs. C. W. Bixby, New York, head injuries.

J. H. Faler, brakeman, San Luis Obispo, neck injuries.

Six others received minor cuts and bruises.

The collision occurred at 2 a. m. The Lark was proceeding north bound from Los Angeles and overtook the Padre, also northbound and running 20 minutes behind schedule, due to a broken steam pipe.

The Padre had stopped at the station here to repair the pipe when the crash came.

Leon was underneath the engine repairing the steam feed line and was seriously injured. He is not expected to live.

Paul Shoup, president of the Southern Pacific railway, was in the Padre train, his private car having been attached to it at Los Angeles. He was returning to San Francisco from New York. He escaped uninjured.

The observation car was telescoped for 15 feet by the rear end collision.

Both trains are now proceeding to San Francisco.

NEW COMMITTEE IS FORMED FOR INDIA

NEW DELHI, India, Aug. 28.—(UP)—A new working committee of the All-India congress was formed today shortly after the announcement that 10 members of the old committee, arrested yesterday after the organization had been declared unlawful, had been sentenced to six months imprisonment.

The new committee was headed by Acting President Khalilul Azaman, an advocate and a resident of Lucknow. It consisted of six Moslems, six Hindus, and three members of the old committee who were not sentenced to prison.

A general hartal, or passive strike, began in new Delhi Wednesday.

PORTLAND FLIERS IN AIR 48 HOURS

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 28.—(UP)—Tex and Dick Rankin, Portland fliers, had been in the air 48 hours at 8:45 a. m. today.

A minor oil leak was causing them to fly at higher speed than they ordinarily would, but otherwise everything was running smoothly, according to a note dropped at the Rankin airport.

The fliers are making an avowed attempt to set a new airplane endurance flight record.

Calvin Coolidge Says

By CALVIN COOLIDGE
Former President of the United States

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Aug. 28.—Prosperity does not result from cheap goods but from fair profits.

Reports of food distributors show a very considerable decrease in retail prices. In theory, that is an advantage to all of us. It is the kind of political economy that some have long advocated. But, in practice, the well-to-do scarcely notices it and many who really would be benefited find that low prices are a delusion since they do not have enough money to pay them. The gain that comes to the few has to be paid for by the many through a very disproportionate loss in general property values, entire suspension of wages or part time employment. A small number with a fixed income may benefit from cheap goods sold at a loss but the country as a whole is always injured.

Our ideal is not cheapness in either goods or men. The country is most benefited by a business profit secured through a fair price for commodities and high wages for labor. We expect science and invention to decrease production costs but not to a bare level of cheapness. We want our people so well paid that they can afford to meet the price of prosperity.

H. L. MENCKEN, WOMAN HATER, TAKES BRIDE

BY HERBERT LITTLE
United Press Staff Correspondent
(Copyright 1930 by The U. P.)

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 28.—(UP)—Henry L. Mencken, editor and for many years regarded as a "woman hater" because of his tirades on marriage, was embarked today on a honeymoon.

He had wedded Miss Sara Haardt, Montgomery, Ala., writer, a week before the scheduled date after leaving to adorn the records of Mencken literature a credo which declared that "getting married, like getting hanged, is probably a great deal less dreadful than it has been made out."

He had written to the United Press, in answer to a frank catechism, equally frank answers which showed he believed the slogan "be polite" was the keynote for a happy married life, just as it is "the best rule for all human relations."

His revelations were given the United Press only a short time before he was married by Rev. Dr. Herbert Parrish, an old friend, of New Brunswick, N. J., yesterday in the Episcopal church of St. Stephen, the Martyr, with the formal Episcopal marriage service.

No Attendants

No attendants witnessed the ceremony at which the bride was given away by her brother-in-law, Charles Wickliffe Stevenson of Cincinnati. Only immediate friends were at the wedding of the author, who had been known throughout the country as the most confirmed of confirmed bachelors.

Mencken pictured himself as happy in his bachelorhood. He saw no reason, however, to alter his book, "In Defense of Women," which had gained him the reputation of a woman hater. He confessed that his venture into matrimony was based upon his penchant for "following hunches." The particular hunch which caused him to abandon sin-

PROHIBITION LEADERS TO START MOVE

Bone Dry Republican Will Be Selected to Oppose Both Wet Candidates

MEETING IS CALLED

Belated Returns Show San Francisco Mayor Over 24,000 Votes In Front

BULLETIN

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28.—(UP)—A conference of dry leaders of the state for the purpose of organizing to oppose the candidacy of Mayor James Rolph jr., of San Francisco, for governor, was announced today by Mrs. Eva C. Wheeler, president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

She set August 30 as the date for the meeting at the local headquarters.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—(INS)—Having won the Republican nomination for governor of California, Mayor James Rolph jr., of San Francisco, today faced the possibility of having to run against an independent candidate at the November general election.

The political ball has already been started rolling to this end by prohibition leaders in Southern California. Although the "wet" and "dry" question was not touched upon by Mayor Rolph in his campaign, he is known as a "liberal."

Such being the case prohibition leaders immediately began a discussion of the feasibility of putting an independent candidate in the field this fall.

Many Mentioned

Several prohibition leaders advanced the opinion that a Republican from the southern part of the state running on a "dry" platform could win the governorship.

It is figured that a "dry" Republican would have a much better chance running on an independent ticket, inasmuch as the Democratic vote in California is negligible. The nominee of the Democratic party, Milton K. Young, Los Angeles attorney, is also a liberal.

The name of William Gibbs McAdoo, secretary of the treasury under the Wilson regime, has already been suggested as a possible candidate to oppose Rolph. Charles H. Randall, former congressman and active prohibition worker, believes that McAdoo, although a Democrat, would appeal to the "drys" of both parties.

It was stated by other prohibitionists, however, that within a few days the candidacy of a "dry" Republican would be announced.

Wet and Dry Issue

The "wet" and "dry" issue also came to the fore in the race for the state assembly between I. M. Wright, author of the state bone dry prohibition law, and Frank Lannin, San Jose real estate man. After trailing as early returns came in, Wright finally whittled away the lead of his opponent and won by a margin of 303 votes.

With returns from 9,803 precincts out of 10,283 counted the vote for governor stood:

Rolph, 363,695; Young, 339,062; Fitts, 283,223.

DYNAMITE CHARGE KILLS POWDER MAN

SAN PEDRO, Aug. 28.—(UP)—A charge of dynamite, said to have been meant for his room-mate, exploded prematurely today and blew John Alcorn, 46, powder man, to pieces.

The explosion occurred under the shack in which Alcorn lived with W. H. Harper. Harper told police that he and Alcorn had been on bad terms recently and that Alcorn apparently had intended to blow up their shack in which Harper was sleeping at the time.

Alcorn, who formerly lived in Livingston, Calif., still was under the building when the dynamite exploded. Harper was not injured.

PUBLISHER RECOVERS

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 28.—(UP) — Lord Beaverbrook, British publisher and champion of empire free trade, was reported recovered today from an attack of poisoning believed caused by food. The publisher was aboard his yacht here when stricken, together with 13 social and political friends. The yacht steamed to sea late yesterday afternoon.

YOUNGSTER IS KILLED IN ZOO BY HUGE TIGER

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28.—(UP) —A boy who ignored danger signs in his zeal to re-enact a recent African movie by playing in an artificial jungle at Luna Park zoo, died today from wounds inflicted by the claws of a huge tiger which pounced upon him from the tangled glade.

The youngster, Alfred Hill, 12, was scalped by the ferocious beast late yesterday when he climbed a fence which surrounds the animal pen to lead three companions into the jungle set.

The tiger leaped from the artificial undergrowth just as Hill and one of his companions, Carl Sabins, also 12, dropped to the ground.

As the snarling cat bore down on his terrified victim, young Sabins fled screaming for help. The other two boys, poised on top of the fence, dropped back to safety.

Alfred struggled gamely with the powerful tiger, and was attempting futilely to stab the feline with his pocketknife when a bullet from the rifle of a zoo attendant saved him from further mutilation.

The shot which prolonged the boy's life by several hours, was fired by Melvin Koontz, 23, who had never before handled a rifle.

The first bullet, fired at the risk of hitting Alfred as he rolled about with the animal, pierced the beast's brain, killing it instantly.

Only the fact that the tiger was old, saved Hill from a quick death in the cat's jaws. As it was, the boy's hand was badly mutilated and his face and scalp hideously clawed.

He was rushed to an emergency hospital where at first it was believed he would recover. He gradually weakened from loss of blood, however, and in spite of a transfusion for which his mother, Mrs. Lynette Hill, furnished the blood, succumbed.

The other boys in the adventuresome party, William and Ralph Weberg, told police they had planned to emulate characters they had seen in the motion picture "Ingagi."

They knew movies were occasionally filmed in the pseudo-jungle within the zoo enclosure, but were unaware that a tiger was kept there part of the time.

The 12-foot fence which they climbed was posted with signs warning against trespassing.

SECOND VICTIM OF GANGSTERS PASSES

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(UP)—The second victim of gangster bullets died today in Trinity hospital, Brooklyn.

Joseph Silverman, 25, known in boxing circles as Joie Silvers, shot by one of four men Tuesday night as a result of a slot-machine racket war, died today. The bullet entered his chest above his heart.

Answers Queries

The questions propounded by the United Press and the replies Mencken gave in writing only a little while before the sudden announcement of his advanced wedding follow:

Q.—Will your wife drop her present name, assuming yours? Will this extend to her future writings?

A.—The bride-elect hails from the Confederate states and will thus use my name. Try to imagine a southern woman busting out as a Lucy Stoner. Her first book, written while she was Sara Haardt, will bear that name. What name she will sign to future books I don't know. But in all such matters I trust her good taste completely.

Q.—Is it to be a church or civil wedding in Birmingham, Ala.?"

A.—The wedding will not be in Birmingham but in Baltimore. If the bride-elect hears that you are marrying her in Birmingham she will be appalled. Birmingham to a native of Montgomery is what Los Angeles is to Baltimorean.

Q.—Have you or Miss Haardt decided whether the 'and obey' is to be stricken from the usual ritual?

A.—There is no promise to obey in the Angelican marriage service. Your question reveals a profound ignorance of canon law.

Q.—Have you any of the traditional fluster of a bridegroom-to-be?

A.—I discern no tremors. Getting married, like getting hanged, is probably a great deal less dreadful than it has been made out.

Q.—After years of bachelorhood, how did you know when you were enough in love to contemplate and invite marriage?

Was Inspired

A.—I can only say it was intuition. The holy spirit informed and inspired me. Like all other infidels, I am superstitious and always follow hunches. This one seemed to be a superb one.

Q.—Will you go on a so-called honeymoon? What do you think of that institution?

A.—I have no objections to honeymoons, nor to church weddings, nor to wearing a plug hat. In all matters of manners I am, and always have been, a strict conformist. My dissents are from ideas, not from decorums, and I do not favor wearing old clothes or living in an eccentric house, or making loud noises.

Q.—Who is furnishing the new house? Is it an apartment or a separate house with a yard?

A.—The new home in Baltimore is an apartment. It is on the third floor of a somewhat oldish house. It faces a park in front and a charming yard in the rear.

No street car passes the door. From the front window one sees the monument to George Washington, the first (and last) American gentleman. The apartment has been furnished by the bride-elect, who has excellent taste in such matters. My contributions were a Bible, a portrait (autographed) of Emperor Wilhelm II, and a battery of cocktail shakers. Disliking cocktails, I seldom use them, but they fill a room very pleasantly.

DEATHS

A WORD OF COMFORT

When you rejoice in a glorious sunset, in the steadying strength of the mountains, in the lilting song of the birds or in the delicate colors and scent of the flower, pause to realize that you have not begun to appreciate the full beauty and grandeur of the universe because your organs of sight and hearing are so limited in their capacity.

Then let your heart sing within you as you recognize the fact that your dear one, who is emancipated from the imperfections of the flesh, now has a joy and an understanding beyond your highest conception, and that the glory of the universe is increased a thousandfold.

ORANGE COUNTY FAIR LEADERS MAKE REPORTS

Directors of the Orange county fair board, at a meeting held last night at the fair grounds, heard from the heads of each department. In the opinion of those present the plans revealed and progress already made indicate larger displays and more entertaining programs than the annual fall show has been able to offer heretofore.

The feature tent, according to George Kellogg, chairman, will be particularly beautiful. The motif is international friendship and every exhibitor will choose a different nation to represent. Already Los Angeles county has spoken for space, but has not chosen its theme. Riverside county will portray "International Relations," Garden Grove will feature "Japan," the city of Orange, "United States," and West Orange, "Egypt." Indications are that every feature exhibit space will be taken within the next week or so.

The fair will be formally opened on the night of Tuesday, September 30 by Mayor James Rolph jr., of San Francisco.

The entertainment features will be varied this year that visitors will find no monotony in this department. A program of horse racing, also horse shows, rodeo, band concerts, aerial acts, girl revues, adagio athletes, and comedy acts, already have been arranged.

John Osterman, of the live-stock department, stated that his problem is going to be one of space. Heretofore the dates of the Orange county fair have conflicted with the state fair at Sacramento, with the result that many leading exhibitors naturally chose Sacramento. Now, with the local fair coming at the end of the circuit, a number of these exhibits will be shown here.

COLLEGE DRINKING DECLINING, CLAIM

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 28.—(INS)—Drinking among students is only about one per cent as heavy as it was a quarter of a century ago, in the opinion of Dr. Alexander C. Ruthven, president of the University of Michigan, who made known his views at a meeting of Utah alumni of the institution recently.

This statement from Dr. Ruthven comes as a marked surprise following the prohibition poll that was carried out at Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Dartmouth, and a number of other eastern schools last year, which showed that well over half of the students drank, the greater number at regular and far from infrequent intervals.

Using the University of Michigan as a representative institution of higher learning, Dr. Ruthven declared that he is convinced that the morals of students are on a much higher plane than ever before. Dr. Ruthven expressed himself as heartily in favor of co-education.

Portugal's seventeenth census is to be taken shortly. It is expected that the population will reach 6,500,000.

ORANGE COUNTY SCOUTS ARE TO HOLD MEETING

Boy Scouts from troops all over the county will meet tomorrow at 4 p. m. at Camp Purinton, situated at Flower street and Santiago creek, in response to a letter sent out to scoutmasters and chairmen of troop committees by E. T. McFadden, chairman of the camping committee.

The Santa Ana city council gave the Scouts permission, some time ago, to use the ground of the city at Flower street and Santiago creek and one of the stipulations was that the boys in the troops keep it in neat and orderly shape. It is for this reason that the Scouts will meet tomorrow afternoon and spend some time in cleaning the grounds up.

Troop 24, which is sponsored by the Rotary club, has taken advantage of the opportunity offered them, and recently has built a log cabin at Camp Purinton. The cabin is large enough to hold the entire troop of 30 boys in meetings which they hold there.

Seek Victim Of Cutting Scrape

First officers had to catch the man who did the cutting. Now they are seeking the man who was cut.

Such was the case of Porfirio Rico, charged with assault with a deadly weapon, in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court this morning.

Porfirio was taken to court to have his preliminary examination, but the state needed the chief witness, Jose Guitterez, to testify that he was cut. Jose couldn't be found.

The court wrote out a bench warrant for him and continued Rico's case until September 2.

Examine Men On Charge of Theft

Guido Paleri and E. C. Wider, Anaheim men, charged with grand theft in connection with the anserted theft of a truck several weeks ago, were being given their preliminary examination in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court today. The case started this morning and was continued until this afternoon.

The two men were arrested in El Centro several days ago by deputy sheriffs.

'Correct Attitude' Produces Rainfall

LAMESA, Texas, Aug. 28.—(INS)—There hadn't been any rain in about two months and the sand was about a foot deep in places, so Lamesa residents were startled and amused to read in the morning paper that a local firm offered a special sale of automobile mud chains.

There were few sales, but the merchant professed satisfaction.

The very next day a torrential rain struck Lamesa, converting the sand into mud. "Which proves," said the merchant, "the value of advertising, not to mention the results one may achieve if one assumes the correct mental attitude."

NEWSPAPER IN NORTH PRAISES LOCAL HISTORY

As the second edition of "Caminos Viejos" was off the press today, warm praise for the work of T. E. Williams, under whose direction the book was printed at the high school print shop, and for Postmaster T. E. Stephenson, author, was revealed in a recent issue of a San Francisco newspaper, which devoted a prominent position on its book review page to comments on the first edition.

Two of the woodcuts drawn by Jean Goodwin and Arthur Ames, which add attractiveness to the volume, were reproduced. A cut of Don Gaspar de Portola and another showing an old Mexican carreta, or cart, drawn by oxen, were printed.

"Master printers shown the volume, were enthusiastic over the masterly work shown by the printing students," said the newspaper reviewer.

"The story is by Terry E. Stephenson, veteran Santa Ana publisher, who obviously holds the key to the early lore of Orange county," the review continued.

The volumes are on display at the Santa Ana Book store.

Next Winter

by putting up fruit

This year sugar is so cheap and fruit so plentiful that home canning is real economy.

For the winter diet you can't have too much canned fruit. It is wholesome for everybody and adds variety to every menu.

Since sugar is exceedingly cheap and fine fruit plentiful, you will be surprised at how many jars of fruit and glasses of jelly can be put up without taxing your present food budget. And next winter when you start using this fruit you will be away ahead financially.

In addition to putting up preserves, jellies and jams, it is decidedly worth while to make some relishes and pickles. These are zestful accompaniments for meat and fish.

Plan now to put up some fruit. Just look at the low price of sugar and fruit and you'll see that home canning is real economy. A bit of sweet makes the meal complete. The Sugar Institute.

THIS CONCERNS YOU AS WELL..

Our loaning policies are not only important to borrowers but to you as an actual or prospective user of our facilities for savings. Therefore it is important to you to know that our loaning rate is 7% . . . outstandingly lower than the going rate in our field.

We established this lower rate as the surest way of bringing us the "pick of the loan crop" . . . the choicest first lien collateral offered to any California building and loan association.

Naturally such security is an important factor of protection to our savers . . . one which ranks with these factors, distinguishing our financial structure . . . the largest non-withdrawable invested capital of any building and loan association in the West . . . the largest voluntary cash and bond reserve . . . a statement free from real estate, furniture and fixtures and bank indebtedness.

On the basis of such distinguishing conservatism and liquidity, we solicit your consideration of our 6% and 5¼% facilities for savings.

EXPECT CROWD FOR RODEO OF POST IN BREA

BREA, Aug. 28.—The Labor day celebration of the Brea American Legion post is expected to attract crowds. There will be two performances each day, next Sunday and Monday.

Earl Thorpe, hard riding Dakota cowhand, who won the 1929 American Rodeo association's "all around cowboy" first prize, will complete; Paddy Ryan, winner of the Roosevelt trophies at Cheyenne and Pendleton, is another contestant; "Pete" Knight, champion bucking horse rider and roper of Cheyenne, is entered in six events; Rose Mullaly, first honor winner at the recent big Salinas Rodeo and Della Shriver of Oklahoma City, are already in Brea. More than half a hundred Arizona, Nevada and California cowboys, at present working in three big "westerns" now being filmed in Hollywood, likewise will be on hand to dispute the supremacy of the present title holders, and incidentally, win some of the big cash prizes for themselves.

Two car loads of bucking horses from the Boren ranch, near Manteca, Calif., are now in the corral, at Brea; another car load of stubborn, "long horn" steers from the Mexican border has been shipped in and the roping calves are real Bremans.

Latest standings in the queen contest were announced today as follows: Miss Brea, 32,400; Miss Tustin, 32,000; Miss La Habra, 31,700; Miss Anaheim, 30,000; Miss Fullerton, 30,000; Miss Garden Grove, 29,400; Miss Santa Ana, 28,000; Miss Buena Park, 27,800; Miss Capistrano Beach, 27,500; Miss Orange, 25,000; Miss San Clemente, 26,000 and Miss Newport Beach, 25,800.

The girls will parade Sunday noon. A car will be given away between the afternoon and evening performances on Monday. The queen candidate receiving the most votes will receive $200, second prize $100.

Editor Register—If you will allow me a few lines in your paper I would like to take this means of offering my congratulations to both Mr. Sam Collins and Mr. Harry Westover for the splendid race both ran in the elections of Tuesday.

It is my sincere desire that the voters of Orange county will think carefully between now and the November election and at that time will cast their votes for the candidate who will best serve the people of our county as district attorney.

I also wish to take this means of thanking my many friends for their loyal support and to say to them that I realize that it was entirely through their individual efforts, unassisted by newspaper support, that enabled me to receive the large number of votes that I did.

Sincerely,

D. G. WETTLIN.

PEACE TREATY WITH GERMANY IS EXPLAINED

In his talk over KREG last night L. L. Beeman, instructor in the Santa Ana Junior college, explained the treaty with Germany made at the Paris peace conference in 1919. His talk, in part, follows:

"The peace conference which met at Paris in January, 1919, drafted five peace treaties, one each with Germany, Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria, and Turkey. The treaty with Turkey had to be revised in 1923 and the United States made a separate treaty with Germany in 1921. This makes seven treaties in all.

"I shall explain in detail only the treaty with Germany. I will first explain the territorial changes.

"1. Three small German cities with a small territory around them, Moresnet, Eupen and Malmedy, were ceded to Belgium. These were inhabited wholly by Germans. The transfer was made arbitrarily without consulting the people. This was a violation of President Wilson's principle of seld-determination.

"2. The Saar basin was put under the control of the League of Nations for 15 years, during which time France is to exploit these coal mines. This was done as a reparation to France for the coal mines destroyed by the German armies. After 15 years, the people living in this Saar basin are to decide by vote whether they will continue under the League of Nations, reunite with Germany or join France. This vote is to be supervised by the League of Nations. This again violated the principle of self-determination. During these 15 years the French can colonize this territory with French people. The German population is more likely to decrease during this time than increase. Thus it is possible for the people then to vote to join France.

"3. Alsace-Lorraine was restored to France.

"4. In 1864 Prussia and Austria made war on Denmark and took from her two provinces bordering on Prussia. The two provinces were Schleswig and Holstein. The treaty provided that the people in these two districts should vote on whether they would remain under German authority or reunite with Denmark. An election was held by the League of Nations. The northern province, Schleswig, voted to join Denmark, the southern, Holstein, voted to remain with Germany. This was in harmony with the principle of self-determination.

"5. Poland, which had been divided up among the three powers, Prussia, Austria and Russia, was reorganized as a free and independent state. The Poles are a very old Slavic people. They inhabited, during the 16th, 17th and a large part of the 18th centuries, a territory larger than any other nation in Europe except Russia. Poland was hemmed in by Prussia on the west, Austria on the south, Russia on the east and the Baltic sea on the north. The Vistula river flows through the center, emptying into the Baltic. This river and the great harbor and seaport of Danzig at its mouth forms the natural outlet for all Poland. In the early middle ages missionaries went from Germany into the part of Poland west of Danzig on the Baltic sea, which was called Prussia, and converted the people there to the Roman Catholic faith.

"This strip of Polish territory along the Vistula river, which divided Prussia into two parts is known as the "Polish corridor." The Hohenzollern kings of Prussia wanted this corridor so their territories would be united. The Poles, a great people in many ways, have never shown any great baility to govern themselves. Some disorders within the Polish state itself gave these big powers an excuse to interfere. No two would stand by and see the third dismember and annex the great Polish territory to itself. So, the three agreed to divide it up among themselves.

"At the time of the Paris Peace conference in 1919, some of this Polish territory had been under foreign control for about 150 years. The people were still Poles in spite of the long period in which their captors and masters had been trying to make them Germans, Austrians or Russians. They ever prayed for deliverance from their bondage. The World war brought this deliverance. The members of the Peace conference were anxious to help the Poles set up an independent government along national lines. But there were many difficult problems connected with it. It was an easy matter to deal with these sections where practically all the people were Poles. But during these long years of foreign control parts of their land had become inhabited with a large number of people of other nationalities and in some places the Poles were greatly outnumbered. In order that the Poles might have an outlet to the sea and a good harbor, the Polish corridor was restored to the Poles. The city of Danzig was made a free city with an independent government under the supervision of the League of Nations. Danzig is under the Polish tariff system and is used by the Poles for their seaport. Germany or Prussia is now again divided into two parts, East and West Prussia, by this Polish corridor. When the Germans go from West to East Prussia now, they must either go around by the Baltic sea or cross this Polish territory. The treaty gives them the right of free transit across it for goods and persons. This is a constant source of friction between the two peoples.

"In Upper Silesia there were both Poles and Germans and both nations claimed the territory. The treaty provided that the question should be settled by a vote of the people living there. This election was held by the League of Nations. Some districts voted to remain with Germany and some voted to join Poland and that is the way the League Council decided the matter.

"6. Germany had to surrender all her colonies to the Allies. These consisted of large possessions in east, southwest and central Africa, also possessions in Asia and many islands in the South Pacific ocean. In disposing of these colonies, a new and interesting experiment was tried. It is known as the mandate system." The word "mandate" means to commit to one's charge or care; a contract by which one is employed to manage another's business. The peoples in these colonies were and still are incapable of governing themselves. Instead of permanently annexing them to their captors, they were divided up among the allied nations for the purpose of administration under the supervision of the League of Nations. The plan is that the mandatory nation shall help these people govern themselves for the benefit of the people governed and that some day in the future they will have progressed sufficiently to be given a free and independent government among the nations of the world."

when he learned of the Ensenada murders. He described the motorist as shabbily dressed, about 40 years old and weighing 180 pounds.

The bodies of the two victims will be brought to Los Angeles today by a party headed by Fred Farquier, head of the paint company employing Conlon.

Authorities first investigated the killing as the possible aftermath of a love tangle involving the young sweethearts and a third man. A robbery theory was scouted when valuables and a large sum of money were found in a tent the couple had pitched on the beach.

EARLY HISTORY TOLD TO LIONS BY STEPHENSON

A short talk on the early history of Orange county was given this noon before the members of the Lions club by Terry Stephenson, author of "Caminos Viejos," a book dealing with events in the history of Orange county.

Eugene Browne, program manager of KREG, with Mrs. Browne and two daughters, Velma and Barbara, were present and several musical numbers were sung by Velma, eight, and Barbara, four. The elder girl sang "Swinging In a Hammock," while Barbara sang "It Ain't No Sin," and "If I had a Talking Picture."

Speaking of early Indians of this region, Stephenson said that they had no pride or tribal instinct. If the Indians had not been such a low type the Spanish would not have been able to held them under subjection for so long, said the speaker. It was not until 160 years after the discovery of and exploration of this country that an expedition was made for the purpose of settlement, the local historian said.

The history of the Portola expedition, which came on foot to San Diego, was outlined. The first camp which it made in Orange county was just below San Juan Capistrano. The speaker further told of the settling of California by the Americans and the taking of the country for the United States. In closing he told a little of the history of the orange industry in Orange county.

Walnut Plant Ready For Opening Next Month

45 TONS WILL BE PACKED BY HOUSE DAILY

ORANGE, Aug. 28.—Plans were completed today for the opening of the Rosenberg brothers' new walnut packing house next month and inspectors for the state have completed their visits and inspection of the equipment.

Frank A. Short, representing the indutsrial accident commission of California, made an inspection of the plant yesterday afternoon in company with Frank Dale, building inspector of Orange, and with the exception of a few minor changes, the machinery was approved.

According to A. L. Witherow, plant foreman, he expects to employ about 15 men and 30 women but 30 or 35 women and more men have already asked for positions. The new plant will have a capacity of 45 tons of nuts daily, which is a large increase over the Los Angeles house that formerly handled all the nuts.

Witherow estimated that the plant would get into active operation about September 15 and turn out between 1200 and 1500 tons of walnus in the rough. The office force will arrive soon to take charge of the plant and Joe and Morris Handleman, manager, will arrive in a few days.

Remodeling work was started in April and continued up ot July 28. All motors are run by electricity and represent the most modern ideas in walnut packing. The walnuts for the new house are being contracted for all over Southern California, as far north as Goleta and south to Hemet. All of Orange county will be completely covered and many growers are already signed up with the company, it was learned.

TRIP THROUGH ORANGE COUNTY IS DESCRIBED

"During the hour devoted to a discussion of the viands. several musicians who were stationed in the dining room furnished many selections from the masters, and for the dancing from eight o'clock until after midnight, kept the guests busy. After dinner the guests were invited to enjoy themselves in any manner in which they wished. The ladies gathered in the drawing room and the gentlemen on the broad piazzas, after which all had obtained a general view of the hotel and its appointments a number of card tables were furnished and for an hour there were as many different kinds of games as there were tables. A number of the residents of Orange called and added to the welcome of Mr. Culver. Among those were Col. and Mrs. Scarritt and the Misses Scarritt, Mrs. Cauldwell, Miss Eva Cauldwell, A. B. Cauldwell and Mr. Coon.

"From 10 o'clock until midnight the musicians were kept busy furnishing music for the dances in which all indulged and which even the wisest of the City Fathers seemed to enjoy. Before 1 o'clock all had forgotten in sleep that they were in a strange place but their rest must have been very refreshing for bright and early yesterday morning there were to be seen merry parties scattered along the highway and in the orchard all busy admiring the hotel and its surroundings. Even the walnuts and flowers which were free for all, had no attraction when it was announced breakfast was ready. The exercise of the previous night together with the ozone of the atmosphere had made every one better able to appreciate the excellence of the table, and lost in the contemplation of the miracles of culinary art which were placed before them, those who had intended to leave on the early train forgot business for the time and determined to accept Mr. Culver's invitation to view the surrounding country.

"At half past nine o'clock Mr. Culver invited his guests to drive about the town and surrounding country. This invitation was accepted and in six carriages drawn by fast horses the party of 23 was given a view of one of the prettiest sections of California. Along well kept roads under long rows of pepper, eucalyptus, cypress and pine trees, the guests were driven through Orange where the well kept orchard, the fresh foliage of fruit trees, the heavily laden grape vines, and homelike dwellings reminded them of an Eutopia and told them the result of man's labors in a more forcible manner than words. The back-ground of mountains with the intervening hills and green meadows formed a picture of which no one became tired, and it was the unanimous opinion that Orange would be their choice for a residence. Later on, Tustin was driven through and later still Santa Ana, with its bustle and life was passed in the journey.

Promptly at noon the carriages drew up in front of the hotel, and the guests were conducted again to the dining room, where a dainty lunch was waiting."

COLOMBIA TOUR DESCRIBED FOR ORANGE LIONS CLUB AT WEDNESDAY LUNCHEON MEET

ORANGE, Aug. 28.—Harry Lewis, rancher of Santa Ana, who recently completed a tour of South America, entertained the Lions club yesterday at the regular meeting, telling of the opportunities for capital investment in South America and the conditions as they exist in those countries.

Lewis dwelled mostly on the country of Colombia, describing it as "one of the richest in undeveloped resources in the world and during the last 30 or 40 years has made wonderful strides." He described the wonderful feats of engineering that have been completed and attributed much of the progress to American capitalists and engineers who have taken over the development work.

Lewis declared that air travel was rapidly being accepted as a means of overcoming the slow travel down the rivers. Railroads are being developed at a fast rate and the increase of motor cars is making it necessary to improve the highways, Lewis pointed out. He declared, however, that the cost of importing a motor car and the high price of gasoline restricted the use of cars to the richest classes.

Lewis told of the trip from start to finish and illustrated his talk with large maps made by himself. He used a shark's backbone for a pointer and had several exhibits to pass around.

Miss Ola Holloway, director of musical organizations in the city schools of Montebello, favored with two vocal solos. She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Jess Coe. C. W. Coffey acted as program chairman for the meeting.

NOTED NAMES COLLECTED BY L. S. PARMENTER

ORANGE, Aug. 28.—For 30 years connected with the Flushing (N. Y.) Evening Journal, Lester S. Parmenter, retired newspaperman living at 291 North Glassell street, took every opportunity to collect famous autographs and as a result, has some old as well as valuable signatures.

His collection, which is partly framed, dates back to the Civil war and contains the names of presidents, generals, governors, lawyers and government officials. Parmenter attended banquets in New York and vicinity to which the notables were invited and received the signature and short sentiment from each visiting dignitary. About 20 years ago, he framed the best of his collection.

The oldest name is that of Edwin Booth, brother of John Wilkes Booth, assassin of President Lincoln. Parmenter declared that very few signatures of Edwin Booth were ever made and it is doubtful if any were saved. Another old name is that of Major General William T. Hancock, of Civil war fame, who signed in 1862 for Parmenter.

Some of the other names in the collection are those of Bishop Henry C. Potter of New York, William Jennings Bryan, Carter H. Harrison, former mayor of Chicago; Nelson A. Miles, lieutenant general of the United States army; President Grover Cleveland, Joseph A. Hawley, senator from Utah; Admiral George Dewey, William H. Hunt, governor of the Philippine islands; Mark Twain, William W. Cocks, famous congressman from New York City and pallbearer and close friend of President Theodore Roosevelt; Richard M. Grout, former controller of the city of New York; President William Taft, Governor Benjamin O'Dell of New York; H. C. Davis, friend and associate of William Jennings Bryan; Admiral W. S. Schley, rear admiral in the Spanish-American war.

Alton B. Parker, opponent of William McKinley for president; Herman Metz, former controller of the city of New York; Bloodgood H. Cutter, Long Island farmer poet, who accompanied Mark Twain on his trip that inspired "Innocents Abroad;" Thomas C. Platt, New York governor and political boss; President Theodore Roosevelt, Joe Cannon, famous speaker of the house; Sen. H. M. Teller, Chauncey M. Depew, financier, and John Hay, secretary of state for Roosevelt and Taft.

Parmenter has some very interesting and historic records, showing that ancestors of his mother, Mrs. Julia A. Abell, came to this country in 1640 and settled in Salem, Mass. The Baltimore Sun, one of the oldest and outstanding papers in the country, was established by the Abell family. Parmenter also has certified records showing that Thomas Abell was executed in London Square in 1540 for his religious faith. He was a high official in the court of Henry VIII.

Parmenter came to Orange in 1923 for the first time and settled here permanently in 1927, living with his sister at 291 North Glassell street. When John H. Ridenour, publisher of the Flushing Evening Journal, visited here in August, 1927, Parmenter brought him to The Register building to watch the installation of the press.

POLICE CHIEF, CITIZENS CHASE EL MODENA MAN

ORANGE, Aug. 28.—There was much excitement in Orange yesterday afternoon when Police Chief B. F. Richards was forced to fire two shots at a fleeing man who was reported to be trying to break into a house at 141 West Palm street.

Richards was called to the house about 3 p. m. and responded at once. When he drove up, a young man was trying to break open the door. Upon seeing Richards, he ran up the street before the police chief could catch him. Richards circled the block in his machine and saw the man dodge into Workman's garage at Palm and Glassell street.

When Richards entered the garage, the man again outran Richards, and two shots into the side of the garage to scare the fleeing man only made him run faster. Walter Pixley and Louis Frostefer saw the chase and caught the man, who was then handcuffed and brought back to the police station.

An investigation showed that the man was a resident of El Modena who had been confined to an institution for the feeble minded. He returned to Orange and was reported to be trying to enter the home of his aunt. He was returned to his home about 5 p. m.

Seating himself next to the insurance man, the robber thrust a gun concealed in a newspaper against Bradley's side, and demanded his money. Bradley handed over $9, and the robber quietly left the street car at its next stop.

Colton Club Has Fine Record; Will Extend Stars

CORNELIUS AND BOTTS TO HURL OPENER FRIDAY

Hubert Finlay, manager of the Colton Reds, the team which begins the Southern California Night Baseball association pennant series here tomorrow, Friday night, claims he has a nine without a single star.

The Inland Empire fans, who have given loyal support to the Reds througout the season whether the team is at home or traveling, prefer to feel that Finlay sticks his tongue fn his cheek when soberly refusing to pin any extra labels on at least a few of his players.

Venn Botts, a tall thin youth who is the first ranking pitcher of the Colton team, not only holds the best record in the league but generally is conceded to be the top-notch hurler of the American division. This should entitle him to more than passing recognition if stars get any rating. He delivers a fast ball which hops when he is right, but works with an occasional change of pace.

It is understood here that Finlay definitely has assigned Botts to work the first game of the series. He will face Joe Cornelius, the Santa Ana "iron man" who outpitched the two ace moundsmen of Whittier in the National Night league's titular playoff last week.

Of the Colton infield, Ray Shaddox, a pudgy third-sacker who is a quiet lad, and a speedy and heady fielder, has played his way into the warm heart of the fans. Only a few of the players at the far corner in the American division can hold a candle to him.

On first base is the slugger of the Reds. National league boosters who saw the Riverside-Whittier series last year will remember Jack Stone as the rather large first sacker for the Riverside crew. His brother, Bob, plays behind the plate. Jack pulled down an unweildly batting average during both halves of the season, and was in fact one of the few Reds to better the .300 mark consistently.

The American league champions are not put down as a hard-hitting team, but they have delivered in the pinches to win 22 out of 24 league contests, losing one of another dozen exhibition games. They have pulled many a game out of the fire and seldom crack in the field. Which results count with the club's manager, even if he gives them to believe that none of them is a star either with the slim willow or on the short diamond.

Hanegan at shortstop and Stock at second base complete the infield. The former is consistent in his playing, but occasionally turns in sparkling plays, while Stock, a midget, is the dash of the infield and a daring base runner.

Botts will get the call to go to the mound against the Stars Friday night and in reserve will be Montgomery, a less experienced pitcher who has been as successful against some of the teams in the inland league as Botts. He specializes in the familiar "raise" ball.

Whether there is any difference in the class of the type of ball played in the American and National divisions could be argued without decision, as the winners of a league can be depended on to be pretty good, and then, too, anything happens in ite ball.

Colton has not lost a game this year, however, to Riverside, the title nine of lant year and a team

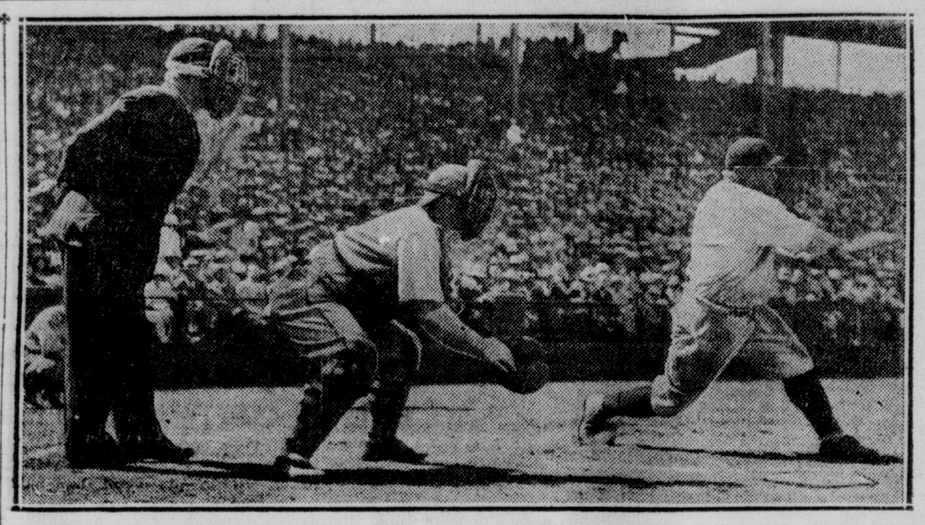
Camera Catches High Spots In The Day's Sporting News

With the passing of Phil Scott, another young Britisher will attempt a ring campaign in this country. He is John Pettifer, below, 21-year-old Londoner weighing over 200 pounds, standing six feet seven inches tall and having a reach of 82 inches. Pettifer will sail to America to fight in October.



When 'Hack" Wilson, who is battling Babe Ruth for home run honors this year, hits the ball, it stays hit. Wilson, whose four-base blows in the National league are knocking existing records for a row of tenpins, is shown here lifting the apple to remote regions during the Cubs-Giants series at Wrigley field, Chicago.

Here is Jean Borotra, the "Bounding Basque," who will take part in the national tennis championship tournament at Forest Hills in September.

The season's best fish story can be told by Richard Hockaday, below, of Point Isabel, Texas, who landed a tarpon bigger and heavier than himself. The tarpon measured five feet one inch in length and weighed 115 pounds. The 65-pound youngster had to battle the giant fish more than one hour.

WILSON, RUTH IN BATTLE FOR HOMER HONORS

By DAVIS J. WALSH
(I. N. S. Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—It's all over. There is nothing more to be done. Disaster stares full in the man's resolute visage. New York has decided that "Hack" Wilson, having hit 44 home runs to create a National league record, will live to hit no more of them once they get him out of Chicago for the rest of the season.

Publicly, Mr. B. Ruth, whose dominion is thus assailed for the first time in four years, takes a most singular stand. He stoutly maintains that Wilson is a great hitter. Privately, however, it is understood that Mr. Ruth is somewhat more interesting. He, too, is believed to feel that Lewis Robert Wilson will stop like an exclamation point when he hits the cement with the Cubs for the month of September.

Wilson Hard to Figure

I suspect that in this case Mr. Ruth is taking the wholly pardonable stand that, of any two home run hitters, he likes himself the best and, at that, I don't say the local sharpshooters are wrong about Wilson. All I say is that anybody who thinks he is right about Wilson is liable to be wrong. The man violates almost every precept of behavior.

He is a right hand hitter, yet he hits to right field where the home runs grow. He is what the ball players call a "loner," i. e., a gentleman who prefers company, provided it is his own; yet he is very popular with the ball club.

In appearance, he is a sort of daschund on two legs, yet those grotesque legs carry him very rapidly and not ungracefully over the ground; for 24 hours several years ago, he went around smiting random Cincinnati players on the mustache; yet they say he is a peaceful, even docile, man.

Wilson Hits 'Em at Home

So I contend that, if Wilson has hit only 16 of his 44 home runs outside Chicago, it doesn't necessarily signify that he won't hit a dozen or so on the road this time, just to be contrary. Mr. Wilson is very much like that. It behooves him, of course, to keep moving right along the line of march, for Ruth hasn't hit one in so long that steps may be taken to declare a legal holiday to commemorate the last occasion.

There is nobody more sinister than a Mr. Ruth who is overdue with an epidemic of home runs. He was on his way to a new record late in June when he flung himself gallantly into the screen at the Yankee stadium and almost forgot to bring his thumb back with him. He finally saved the thumb but lost the nail and the record. Unable to grip his bat, he hasn't hit a loud foul since then, as the records prove. These show that he had 30 when he was injured. Today, two months later, he has 44.

Babe's Hand Better

But the hand was almost better when he left for Washington yesterday and now he is ready to come with a rush like he did in 1927 when he hit his record 60 for the season. This, it might be mentioned, was the year in which Gehrig came forward to challenge his monopoly, much as Wilson is doing today. However, Gehrig stopped in the stretch and, in spite of what they say about the man's road record, I am not so sure that Wilson will do the same.

He still has eight games left in Chicago. He has three each in New York and Brooklyn, where the fences are short, and four in Phil-

34 ROUNDS ON DELHI BOXING CARD TONIGHT

Thirty-four rounds of boxing are on the card at the Orange County Athletic club tonight.

Promoter Henry T. Foust's second big "bargain bill" of the month shows all big men, heavyweights, middleweights and welterweights. Action, rather than speed, is promised.

In accordance with the policy Foust has had in effect at Delhi for several weeks, women will be admitted free if accompanied by escorts with tickets to the reserved sections.

Many new faces appear on the program and this feature should help swell the attendance.

Jack Haywood, a 200-pound Pasadena ..egro, faces Vic Pertley, promising young Los Angeles heavyweight, in the six-round main event. Haywood is a top-heavy favorite to win, possibly by a quick knockout. Haywood has been mingling in faster company than the Pertleys and figures to win unless Vic crashes over a lucky punch. All big men can sock so Pertley can't be denied an outside chance.

ABRUPT SELECTION OF YACHT ENTERPRISE TO RACE LIPTON CRAFT SURPRISES SPORTSMEN

By JACK LAWRENCE
(International News Service Sports Writers)

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 28.—That slim aristocrat of the seas, Enterprise, has been selected to represent the United States in the battle for the America's cup. Out of a collection of four sloops, she has been named as the most likely to defeat Sir Thomas Lipton's fifth Shamrock, challenger for the cup.

The abrupt action of the America's cup defense committee last night is very likely to turn up a most awful uproar here today. It is quite without precedent in the history of the America's cup history which stretches back across a span of 79 years.

Never in the history of the America's cup, dating from 1851, has any such sumptuary action been taken by a defense committee. In yachting circles here, the news could not be believed when it was announced in a brief and formal sentence signed by George Cormack, secretary of the America's cup committee.

The statement simply said that Enterprise had been selected to meet Shamrock V in defense of the America's cup.

This simple statement eliminates the J. P. Morgan sloop Weetamoe, sailed by Morgan's son-in-law, George Nichols. It sends to the scrap heap the hope of all New England, Yankee, which has been sailed by Secretary Adams of the U. S. navy and Whirlwind, the only wooden boat of the fleet.

And as a consequence there will be a lot of pointed questions asked today by the skippers of the discarded contenders. They may be questions the defense committee will find hard to answer.

WEST WINDS

Here and There in Local Sport

By EDDIE WEST

Colton is ready for any kind of an attack that Santa Ana may employ in the forthcoming series for the night baseball championship of Southern California. The Railroaders or Reds, as they are called by inland newspapers, have been scouting the Stars and rather expect Herb Salveson's henchmen to bunt-bunt-bunt to start their disturbances. What the other fellow thinks and feels is always interesting at a time like this and I am taking the liberty of quoting from the sports page of the Colton Courier, to wit:

Roger L. Shipley, manager of Joe Goeders, Santa Ana light heavyweight, has a reasonable explanation for Goeders' somewhat lackadaisical showing against Joe Bitto at Hollywood last Friday.

Goeders broke his hand in the fourth round.

X-ray pictures, taken by a Santa Ana physician, revealed a clean break. Joe has his duke in a cast now and Shipley has canceled prospective engagements for the hard-hitting heavy worth hundreds of dollars.

Goeders was signed to fight the main event at Wilmington next week.

Shipley and Goeders will loaf at Shipley's ranch for several weeks before Goeders again attempts to go postward hereabouts.

Jack Walker says he is ready to get rid of his two disgruntled fighters, Joe Reese and Jimmie Rivers.

He says he will sell the paper on either welterweight for $100.

Walker "went to bat" when Reese boxed Zenaydo Chavez here recently and proved that his contract for Reese's services was valid. Reese had "jumped" on Walker but Jack protested to the state boxing commission which tied up the youngster's purse. Walker eventually got his manager's "cut."

Reese's contract expires in January but Rivers' runs until 1931.

With Reese and Rivers at "outs" with him, Walker now has only one fighter on his string. Romeo Lemon has stuck faithfully by the husky little Englishman through thick and thin. Walker has signed "Romy" to fight Bert Sampson in a main event at Wilmington Wednesday.

RECORD CROWD FOR BIG GAME DUE TOMORROW

That another bumper crowd will jam the Bowl tomorrow night for the opening game of the Santa Ana-Colton championship series was certain today when the last seat in the permanent bleacher sections was sold.

Approximately 1500 tickets were disposed of here less than two days after they were put on the market. Six hundred tickets were shipped to Colton and some of these may be returned. If so they will be available at the main gate of the park before game-time.

No attempt will be made to reserve the "new" bleachers, the temporary stands that were installed along the left and right field lines before the Whittier game last week. These will accommodate more than 1000 fans who must file into the plant on the "first come—first served" plan.

Officials of the Santa Ana club maintain there never has been so much interest displayed in a baseball game here. Glad to shell out an extra dime for the privilege of securing reservations, the fans yesterday simply swarmed into the El Corral service station and Baker's bakery, ticket headquarters, in their mad quest for ducats. The rush was greater than ever experienced before, salesmen said.

Manager Herb Salveson will be able to use his regular lineup in the Friday affair. Wayne Nelson's trick shoulder, which went out on him last Sunday, is feeling much better and Nelson will be able to take his usual place in center field. This will allow Leavitt Daley to return to second base.

Joe Cornelius has been selected to pitch the opener against Colton but if he wins the first game it is understood that Ray Price will get a chance at the Railroaders in the second set-to Tuesday at Colton.

DOEG, LOTT OPPOSE TILDEN AND HUNTER

CHESTNUT HILL, Mass., Aug. 28.—The national men's tennis doubles championship advanced to the semi-final round here today with the four top seeded combinations still in the fight.

A limping Bill Tilden, paired with another veteran, Francis T. Hunter of New Rochelle, N. Y., sought to reach the eighth national doubles final in which he has figured in 12 years. In his way stood the defending champions, George M. Lott, Chicago, and John H. Doeg, Santa Monica, Calif.

Tilden has shared five times in national doubles victories and twice has been runner-up. This year he is handicapped both by an injury and the youth of his opponents. His advance through the early rounds was marked largely by a tendency to depend on Hunter for court coverage.

PROBE CHARGES HUDKINS, M'VEY IN FAKE FIGHT

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28.—Fistic fans here awaited with interest today the outcome of a meeting of the state athletic commission in San Francisco at which the Ace Hudkins-Jack McVey fiasco of Tuesday night will be aired.

The commission had before it a candid report from Lieut. Jack Kennedy of the United States navy, who refereed the bout here and threw the men out of the ring just before it was to end in the tenth round. Kennedy said the men stalled practically the whole time and held numerous conversations with each other.

Supporting his charge that the bout appeared prearranged, Kennedy said he heard McVey say to Hudkins in the ninth round, "This is your round, kid." Then, Kennedy said, McVey took a light tap and rolled over for an eight count.

Hudkins lost a $3027 purse for his part in the affair and McVey lost $1295. The money will go to the commission and eventually for war veterans' relief work in the state.

INLAND ELEVEN MAY GET OPEN SCHEDULE DATE

BY GRIDDER

Coach "Tex" Oliver was sick today—but not too ill to talk football with an inquisitive reporter who was anxious to know the when, where, how and why about this football season just around the bend in the road.

The imperturbable counsellor of Santa Ana's high school eleven is just shaking off the effects of an attack of quinsy, in other words a good old-fashioned inflammation of the throat that cost the coach 10 pounds in weight, but he was able to whisper a few phrases worth digesting along with the succotash tonight.

Saint football candidates will report to Oliver at Poly field one week from today, Thursday, September 4.

Anxious To Meet Newcomers

That was the mentor's choicest morsel of information.

The vanguard of the high school's 1930 machine will assemble in Andrews gymnasium at 3 p. m. Oliver is especially anxious to meet non-varsity men, and new boys in the city. He feels these will benefit more by the week of individual attention than the more experienced lettermen who, however, are expected to report, too, if possible.

Practice will proceed daily from next Thursday on through the long, gruelling championship season which will not end until Thanksgiving Day—and not then if the Saints are fortunate enough to win their league.

The one and only open date on the Santa Ana schedule, that of Saturday, October 4, probably will be filled by San Bernardino high school.

The inland management has asked Oliver for the date and the coach has virtually decided to complete arrangements for the practice skirmish which would be the last before the locals open their conference campaign at Long Beach October 11 against Woodrow Wilson high school, a new member of the Coast Preparatory league.

Saints Play Orange, Tustin

The Saints will open against Orange and Tustin, members of the Orange league, away from home . Oliver plans to play one of the games on Friday, September 26, the other on Saturday, the 27th. The whole squad will be divided for these encounters, the "irregulars" playing Tustin in what will be little more than a scrimmage for both clubs.

Captain Al Reboin and Harold Pangle, veteran aces of the Saint backfield, are both in great shape for the impending season and anxious to don the moleskins again.

Reboin and Pangle will be playing their third year for Santa Ana this semester. Reboin has been working in a local ice plant all summer. Pangle has been employed in the construction of the Newport Beach high school. Both athletes are as hard as nails and ready for the gong.

Laguna Council Fails To Act On Improvements

PETITION WITH 80 NAMES ASKS EARLY ACTION

LAGUNA BEACH, Aug. 28.—No action was taken on the Cliffs streets last night, despite a petition bearing nearly 80 names urging that the council award a contract. Following the reading of the petition by City Clerk George W. Prior, Councilman Maurice B. McMillan moved that all bids rejected for the public good. No second was received and Councilman Frank B. Champion moved that the low bid be accepted and the contract awarded. Councilman R. L. McCrea seconded the motion, but in the roll call vote, Councilmen McMillan, C. R. Clapp and Mayor J. E. Bishop opposed.

The petition itself was filed on a motion made by McMillan, supported by Clapp and Mayor Bishop, McCrea and Champion, failing in their endeavor to have the petition granted. Later the petition was returned to those who presented it, Roy M. Ropp and George E. Thompson, when Arthur M. Ellis, attorney for the city for improvement work, pointed out that it would be unfair to withhold this petition while permitting an opposition one to be circulated.

H. W. Read asked, by letter, that prompt action be taken on the streets in getting improvements under way. George R. Wells, owner of property on the Cliffs, told the council that he was familiar with the plans and specifications, is a contractor, and considered the plans good and that they should be used. He thought the cost not great and construed the council's vote as negative and therefore a mistake. He asserted that macadam work done in the winter was not so good as that done during dry weather.

The argument regarding the desirability of taking early action on the bids was renewed, with G. E. Thompson, Roy Ropp, Councilman Clapp and Mayor Bishop participating.

Councilman McCrea thought that those opposed to the work, referred to by Mayor Bishop, should present their reasons in some form. The mayor had referred to what he characterized as a "whale of a minority," which he said was opposed to the work going forward on any of the bids offered. Mr. Ropp said he had encountered only six or seven who declined to sign the petition.

Ed Hofer was cheered by many present when he said that if he were on the council and had received a petition as strong as the one filed he would vote for improvements. He said he did not understand why the council refused to take action without giving reason.

H. R. Armstrong, following, said he wanted to improve his place and get some pleasure out of it, that no improvement was likely to go through without opposition of some kind, and that action should not be deferred because of possible opposition.

Mr. Ellis said it was the only case of this kind he had encountered in 25 years of legal work, that the council could pass a resolution to abandon proceedings, but if not desiring to do that they could consider that they were taking more time for consideration and need take no action if they did not want to at present. The matter was finally laid over to next Wednenday.

Following the meeting, Thompson and Ropp, active in getting signatures for the petition, made it known that they would go after additional names and urged interested persons to see them at their offices and sign.

A new card table has been given a hinged top, the under-side of which, when lifted, forms a screen for a home motion picture projector.

Pier Repair Crews Make Progress In Huntington Beach

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 28.—The pier repair job crews are well toward the end of the pier with their repair work and they work when the waves and the tides permit. In putting on the collars to hold gunite, it is necessary to work when there is no danger of waves or high tide sweeping the wet gunite away. It takes but a few minutes for the gunite to set, 15 minutes to be exact, but when the waves are running high, a "captain" may blow by any minute that will reach up and move a new laid cement job, like moving sand off the beach.

The mechanics with the cement guns watch the waves and the tides and when they can work they get busy. Then when the tide comes in or the tide wind comes up and the waves run high, they stop work until conditions are normal again. The work from now until the end of the pier is reached will move a little slower than it did on the section of the pier nearest the shore line. But the contractors are making good progress and are several days ahead of their schedule.

NEW LA HABRA TEACHERS FOR TERM LISTED

LA HABRA, Aug. 28.—Work is progressing satisfactorily on additions to the three local schools. The work was started this summer at a cost of $60,000. Two of the schools, the Lincoln and Wilson, are expected to be ready for occupany by the opening of school, September 15.

The largest building at the Washington school wil not be completed until the middle of Octob er or the first of November.

The following assignment of teachers has been selected by Superintendent E. R. Berry to serve for the coming year, subject to a few possible changes: Washington school, kindergarten, Miss Charlotte Hewitt; first grade, Mrs. Buelah Wagner and Miss Dorothy Townsend; second grade, Mrs. Ann Marsh and Miss Hazel Tilson; third grade, Miss Mollie Steinberg and Mrs. Carrie Glazier; fourth grade, Miss Avis Elder and Mrs. Jane Stephens; fifth grade, Miss Ruth Dickey; sixth grade, Miss Ruth Lana; seventh grade, Miss Gertrude Beam and Raymond Wright; eighth grade, Mrs. Margaret West.

Robert McCarter will be principal of the school and will teach manual training and physical education. Miss Ruth Dickey will teach penmanship; Miss Ruth Lena, departmental history; Miss Gertrude Beam, departmental English; Raymond Wright, physical education and geography; Joe Severns, mathematics; and Mrs. Margaret West, departmental reading.

Mrs. Alta Proud will be principal again this year at the Lincoln school. Other teachers will be Miss Linn Sholes, kindergarten; Miss Lillian Milligan, first grade; Mrs. Evelyn Treff, second grade; Miss Dorothy Drew, third grade; Miss Eleanor Maryott, fourth grade; and Miss Leah Felton, fifth grade.

Special supervisors will be Frank Barrow, music, assisted by Mrs. Ann Marsh; art, Mrs. Louraine Tummond, assisted by Miss Hazel Tilson; office work and home economics, Mrs. Marion Hayes.

CHECK SCHEME WARNING GIVEN COUNTY STORES

NEWPORT-BALBOA, Aug. 28.—Merchants and other business persons in Orange county are warned against counterfeit coins and bogus check schemes, and it was stated that beach business places should be particularly careful during the coming Labor day week-end.

Counterfeit silver dollars have been circulated here, several merchants being victimized during the past few days, according to reports. Charles A. Goldberg received two of the spurious coins.

Charles H. Way, Balboa merchant, told members of the Exchange club yesterday about a check scheme which failed in the case in which he was the intended victim, but which might be tried on anyone.

The check artist telephoned the Way store, using the name of one of his well known customers and asked that a check for $40 be cashed, explaining that the cash was needed for a game. The clerk who answered the phone was asked to bring a deck of cards, taking the price of the cards out of the check and to bring both the cards and the rest in cash over to the address given.

Way became suspicious as the customer was not in the habit of putting through such transactions, and he telephoned the party that he would have to come to the store personally for the required service. Apparently the check artist also became suspicious, as he did not show up. Had he done so a police officer would have been there also.

Chief of Police Hodgkinson gave another instance of a check artist, who, it was found, was wanted in no fewer than 57 other places in Southern California alone. He is still loose, as far as known. His scheme is to come into a store, with working clothes on, buy some article, asking that it be delivered at a fictitious address, and give a check, getting part of it in cash.

La Habra School Superintendent To Change Schedules

LA HABRA, Aug. 28.—Several changes in the school schedule will be made this year by E. M. Berry, superintendent of schools. Some of the methods which will be tried out this year in an experimental way are original as outlined by the school head.

The new scheme will work into a junior high school plan as far as possible with available equipment and will include vocational work for the seventh and eighth grades with a chance for selective work at a certain period each week for the subject in which the pupil is most interested, and at which time he will be allowed several weeks course of study.

With the completion of the enlargement of the school buildings many of the conjested conditions of the past year will be eliminated.

NEW OIL WELL SCHEDULED IN FIELD AT H. B.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 28.—There is one new well projected in the field this week. The Richfield Oil company has put in the derrick foundation for a third well on the Wieter Goeley lease at Garfield and Huntington. The new well will offset the Rex Oil company well across the street, which is really not a well yet as it is still drilling. Richfield owed the Dieter-Goeley lease another well, and so is fulfilling its offset requirements and lease requirements at the same time.

The lease comprises 10 acres and was formerly known as the Arnold lease. It was drilled and the well pronounced a failure. The casing in the old hole was sold and in pulling the casing the old well started flowing. Efforts were made to bring it in at 3500 feet and near 4000 feet, but no oil was found. Drillers always maintained the oil came from around 2600 feet. Six years later the Richfield found a 2600-foot sand on the place that now contains two wells with a third well drilling. The sand is good for around 100 barrels a day. The Rex company is after the sand adjoining the Richfield lease on the east.

The Indian Oil company is successfully operating the old Wellington property in the Garfield street addition. This is one of the well located small leases in the section of the field. It has been a steady producer since the early history of the field. The Indian Oil company, is a San Francisco firm. A good price was paid for the Wellington property with its two fairly good producing wells, it is said. The Indian also holds the D. O. Stewart lease on the east side and is one of the strong independent companies that has been quietly taking over leases and wells in the Huntington Beach field. If a deep sand is discovered here, the companies which have taken holdings in the field during a period of depression in the oil industry will profit enormously through their holdings, it is pointed out.

It is unofficially reported here that the Standard has purchased six million barrels of storage oil from the Richfield, together with the storage tanks, located near the Lomita field, and a part of the big crude supply taken over by the Richfield when it bought the Pan American Western from the Doheny interests. This is one of the largest crude oil deals in California for the past two years, if the report is correct.

J. B. Smith has leased 50 feet of frontage on Eighteenth street between Walnut and Ocean for a bonus of $750 cash and $75 a month rent. The lease carries one-sixth royalty and is held by a Long Beach group of speculators. They can hold the lease at their option without drilling until a sand is discovered below 5000 feet in depth, after which drilling must start on the Smith lease within 30 days. This is the highest price yet reported for a two-lot lease in the west end town lot section.

Superior Oil company has set casing on the W. I. Jones lease at Twenty-second and Ocean in the well being redrilled there and being directed out under the ocean. The present cement job will protect the 4000 foot sand from which many wells in that section are producing. The Jones well was announced as a deep test, but it may be brought in from the present depth.

Superior has moved a large amount of well drilling equipment and general oil field equipment to its yards on Main street near Eleventh street. Oil men in the field hope the activity on the part of the Superior may mean an extensive development campaign here. Superior has been remarkably successful in Huntington Beach. The King Gillette community leases and individual leases taken over by Superior, proving highly productive. Gillette made a profit on the sale of the leases to Superior, but lost an oil fortune by not developing the leases himself, it is said.

Sheriff's Office And Beach Police Seek Check Passer

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 28.—The operator of a rabbit farm, whose customers included several Huntington Beach meat markets, is being sought by the sheriff's office and the Huntington Beach police on a charge of issuing fraudulent checks. H. B. STORE OWNER ACQUIRES PROPERTY

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 28.—R. Y. Another building houses the High- by shoe repair shop and the third building is occupied by Ye Art and Style shop.

HARBOR PLANS DISCUSSED AT CLUB SESSION

NEWPORT-BALBOA, Aug. 28.—Steps taken by the city council and the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce to improve the inside harbor and make it available for more boats during such events as the recent Pacific Coast championship yacht regattas, held here, were told to members of the Newport Beach Exchange club at their weekly session yesterday noon at the Yacht club, by M. S. Robinson, harbor master.

Robinson said that the recently appointed special committee had taken a trip over the bay and would suggest several things to the city council. The committee was named chiefly to see what can be done about greater mooring facilities in the bay, the number of new boats coming here this season showing that more room and more anchorage will be a necessity before another summer season.

The committee consists of City Councilmen Lloyd Claire and A. J. Garfield, Frank L. Smith and J. B. McNally, chamber of commerce representatives, City Engineer R. L. Patterson and Robinson.

It was also stated at the meeting that the chamber is working with city and county officials toward having the state law amended so that boats here can be taxed by the city and county. At present they can be assessed and taxed only at port of entry where registered.

H. O. Ensign, school principal, who recently returned from a trip to New Orleans, said that the schools of this city and county were as good as any in the country. He announced that school here would begin Wednesday, September, Admission day, coming September 9.

Charles H. Way, Balboa merchant, and Chief of Police Hodgkinson, president of the club, told of efforts of would-be check artits to defraud merchants here had been foiled.

The status of the proposed viaduct at the Arches crossing was told by City Engineer Patterson and J. P. Greeley.

Foothill Players At Laguna Beach On September 5, 6

LAGUNA BEACH, Aug. 28.—The Foothill players of Altadena will appear at the Community playhouse September 5 and 6 at 8:15 o'clock under the auspices of the woman's club. They will give a group of short plays under the direction of Bird Del Bundy.

The program is diversified, with a different one for each of the two evenings that the guest players are to be here. The costumes, sets and foreign plays are by Madame Eleanore Armstrong, with special attention given to the music arrangement under the direction of Miss Alice Ryder.

The Foothill players are said to be very successful. They have not previously appeared in this city. Mrs. Frank B. Champion is president of the Woman's club.

SAN CLEMENTE GIVEN PRAISE BY HOTEL MAN

SAN CLEMENTE, Aug. 28.—"Here in California where so many hotels exist on seasonable business, the hotel man is on the lookout for a place where an all-around year business can be established. And I think that San Clemente has all the qualifications of such a location."

This was the opinion expressed by Walter Raymond, proprietor of the Hotel Raymond in Pasadena, which opens December 27. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond have been spending the past few weeks in the Spanish village, resting and preparing for their winter work.

"Having visited all the coast section, having grown up in the hotel business in California, when Pasadena was a village of 1500 people and Los Angeles a city of 15,000, I was anxious to see what Ole Hanson had done at San Clemente," Raymond said. "And I think he has built well. Here he has taken climate, historical background and environment and built a city that is one of the show places of the coast. I see no reason why this city should not support many famous hotels in the year's to come. You have everything that the seeker of rest is after."

CHORUS CLASS PLANNED FOR BEACH SCHOOL

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 28.—The Huntington Beach union high school board of education has decided to conduct a vocal class in chorus singing for men, taking over at the invitation of the newly organized male chorus, that organization as the first unit of the new departure in adult education. CHAPTER 24

The camera men had set up their tripods between the table and the door to the judge's chambers. As if they were taking some bizarre oath, each right hand was lifted, holding aloft the handle of a small metal trough of flashlight powder. The square black boxes were all turned in one direction, focussed on the face of Aline Everett.

The bailiff tiptoed across the room with a dripping paper cup filled with water, which he placed on the table close to her hand. But she pushed it aside with a brusque gesture of refusal.

"Now boys, if you don't want to be fined for contempt of court, remember—just one flash, and wait till the verdict's rendered," the judge gave the warning over his shoulder as he mounted the steps to the bench.

"Down in front there—your head's in the way!" Andrews commanded in a stage whisper, and Peter obediently ducked.

"The foreman will read the verdict."

An old man in the front row arose slowly, cleared his throat, and drew a spectacle case from his pocket. With extreme deliberation he opened the spectacles and adjusted them across his nose. Even with the glasses in place, he read haltingly, with the embarrassment of one unaccustomed to hearing his own voice in public.

The roar of many waters was in Aline's ears, beating her down—a Niagara of sound, in which words were indistinguishable. Her fingers gripped the edge of the table before her. It was like struggling to hold on to consciousness under ether. It was a whirling down and down into emptiness. But there was something she must hear—something they were about to do to her—

Then, through the smothering welter in which she fought for breath, her mouth felt suddenly cold and wet. The bailiff, leaning over her shoulder, was spilling the water which he held to her lips. Thin and clear and very slow a far away voice was saying: "We, the jury, find the defendant—not guilty!"

With the simultaneous explosion of the flashlights in her ears, the room rocked back into place. But Aline did not look at Max beside her, nor at Travis, who had turned toward her with outstretched hand. With the palms of her hands pressing flat on the table for support, she pulled herself to her feet and stared straight into the faces of the jury. She took a step forward, fumblingly, drawn toward them without consciousness of her own movement, staring at them with wide, dazed eyes. Then suddenly her arms were flung wide in a gesture of bewildered surrender.

The reporters had begun to scramble to their feet at the reading of the verdict, but they stood motionless, caught in the tension of the moment. Travis leaned forward as if to stop her, then sank back as she passed beyond his reach.

"Why," she said in a high clear voice, "I—I don't understand!" Peter thought that he had never seen such sheer amazement on a human face. "You—you had your chance—you hated me—and you didn't take it. You hated me, and yet you were fair to me. I thought you were—stupid!" The tears were streaming down her face now. She brushed at them with impatient fingers, but she did not try to hide them. The strangest thing in all that strange scene was Aline Everett's tear-drenched face turned to the jury without the slightest effort at concealment.

"You didn't do it because you felt sorry for me—I wouldn't let you feel sorry for me! You did it with your minds, because you were just to the woman you could have destroyed if you wanted to—and you must have wanted to. You were fairer to me—than I've ever been to you!"

A woman with straggling gray hair at the end of the front row stepped awkwardly around the railing which hemmed in the jury box. She pulled a handkerchief out of the shabby black bag suspended from her arm, and thrust it into Aline's hand. She hesitated for a moment, as if uncertain of her ground. Then a determined arm encircled Aline's shoulder, and Aline's bowed head was pressed against a calico bosom.

"There, there, dearie. It don't matter what you done—it's all over now."

"My God," Andrews groaned aloud. "What a picture! And the judge wouldn't let us take but one flashlight!"

"Well, that's over," Everts said. "It was a good story while it lasted—but what a town to get stuck in! They ought to arrange these murders with more consideration for the poor laboring man." He turned to Peter, but Peter had already lounged across the room, pausing to whisper a few words in Max's ear. He crossed to Aline and took her gently by the arm.

"I want you to drive to Gray's Flat with me," he said, his lips close to her ear. "The air will do you good. I've got to wire the story of the verdict—and I want to talk to you."

For a moment Aline looked at him as if she had forgotten who he was.

"Oh—it's you," she said when the moment of blankness passed. "Yes—I'll come."

Automatically she opened her bag and reached for lip-stick and powder compact. Then, with a tremulous smile at the woman who still stood with an arm protectively circling Aline's waist, she withdrew her hand empty.

"Your nose really is a mite shiny, and no wonder. Here, take mine!" Mrs. Jenkins extracted a tin box of talcum powder from her reticule. A square of chamois skin was wound around its sprinkler top, secured by an elastic band.

"Oh, thank you so much!" Aline was not smiling now. With a sidewise glance at Peter which dared him to laugh, Aline, whose powder was specially blended to order in the city, smeared the dead white talcum on her face without the aid of a mirror.

Peter waited, jerking with impatience, while she gently pried herself loose from Mrs. Jenkins.

"Come this way," he urged, as he led her out by the side door. "We have got to get away from that bunch of buzzards. They think the story's over, but it's just got off to a good start."

Aline turned obediently, but something in the fatigue of her drooping shoulders touched him.

"I'm sorry," he said gruffly, "but it can't be helped."

"I know," Aline murmured. "I can't give in now. There's a reason why I've simply got to find out who really did kill him. If you can help me, I'll be more than grateful."

"You bet I'll help you," Peter assured her. "Finding out who killed Mortison is 'the fondest thing I'm of," as an old prospector said to me the other day. His voice was raised to carry above the roar of Bossy's racing engine. "I'm glad you want to carry it through," he added.

"I've got to cary it through," Aline spoke with desperate intensity. "I'm afraid—afraid—" her voice broke.

"There are not many things that can make you afraid," Peter suggested.

"This is more important than the trial. It's been worrying me terribly. I'm afraid that whoever killed Don took my letters with him. Don't you see how awful that would be? It would mean—that it was all for nothing!"

Peter considered a moment.

"I can tell you one thing," he said at last. "There weren't any letters in the lodge. Iwent over it with a fine tooth comb." If she were worried about the loss of the letters, she would do her utmost to give him every help in her power—and the other papers weren't even touching it. They were letting it slip, because their interest in the trial had centered in the defendant, not the victim. With the verdict, they considered the story "dead."

He had the advantage in his hands—the tremendous advantage of her fear. The story came first. Of course it came first! Why, a month ago he hadn't even heard of these people. What did they matter, compared with the Herald? Without the impetus of her fear to make her help him, he might lose out entirely. And then, just as if he had not settled the argument in his own mind, he spoke the words that would relinquish that advantage.

"I think that you are making a mistake," he said, as Bossy swung out into the main road. "If you take my advice, you'll tell your husband how things were between you and Mortison. You haven't anything to be afraid of, really. I couldn't say it of many men, but Max is something out of the ordinary. I think he'd understand."

"You mean—tell him—?"

"Everything," Peter said firmly. "I—I couldn't!"

"You mean you're afraid to do it?"

"No," Aline said slowly. "I don't mean that. I mean I haven't the right. He'd try to understand, but he couldn't. He's too different. He'd only forgive. And I can't place on him the burden of that forgiveness, just to give myself the relief of telling him. I owe it to him to make him believe that I was worthy of his trust. That's the only thing I can do—and I've got to do it, for his safe!"

"And the letters—you think they may have been taken by the murderer?"

"I don't know. I only know that I've been terrified about them—terrified with the thought that they would be found, and then that they wouldn't. I tell you, I'd gladly have had that jury tonight bring in a verdict of guilty and send me to prison—to the gallows—if in return I could have those letters in my hands and know that Max need never see them!"

Peter, humped over the wheel to peer around the next curve, shrugd his shouldrs.

"Well, if you feel that way about it, we'd better get busy," he said. "It's just one more little problem. If we could just get hold of the right end, it would probably all unravel like a chain stitch. But getting hold of the end—there's the rub." His foot pressed the accelerator, taking advantage of a short stretch of straight road ahead.

"By the way, you haven't told me yet what was in the Chinese box," he observed after a thoughtful silence.

"I don't know what that had to do with it either, but I'm sure it's important somehow! It was—"

"I don't want to know yet. I want you to fit it into its proper place. Something tells me we've an awful lot left to learn about Mortison. Suppose you begin by telling me all you know."

RELIC'S PASSING

COLUMBUS, S. C., Aug. 28.—One of the oldest relics in the city is to be pulled down, and it will leave memories with many of the city's residents. It is the old single-story house on Assembly street, one of the last places where cock-fights were held publicly in the country. The house was owned by "Doc" Kraft, a policeman, and when cock-fights were declared illegal, the contests were held in his basement.

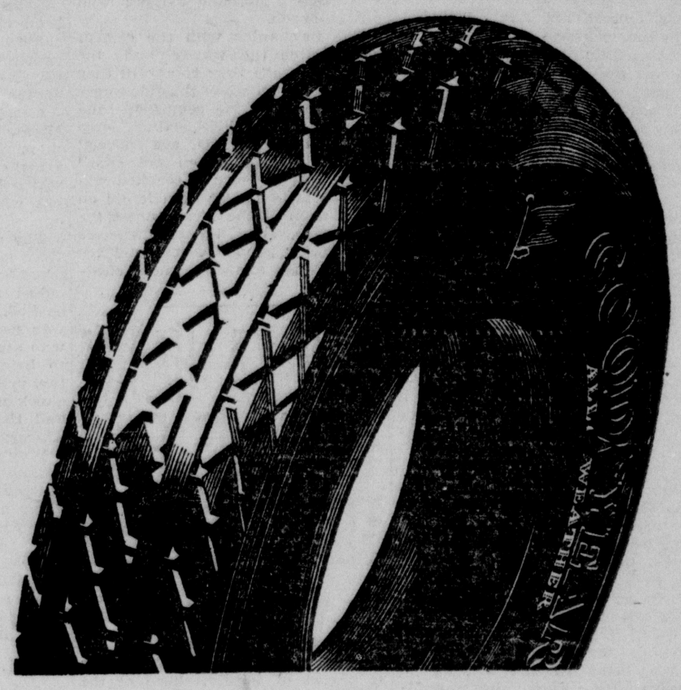
NOW!—New and Greater values in Goodyear Tires than ever before!



That headline is strictly true.

Two bed-rock reasons make it true.

One reason is, Goodyear Tires are better right now than they have ever been.

The other reason is, rubber is cheap and consequently Goodyear Tires are available at the lowest prices in history.

People are not slow to seize a chance like this.

They are buying Goodyear Tires at an unparalleled rate.

Their preference for Goodyears rests upon definite Goodyear superiorities in both tread and carcass, the two main parts of a tire.

Now* is the time to get YOURS

The Goodyear All-Weather Tread is superior in traction.

The Goodyear Supertwist Carcass is superior in vitality and long life.

You are not asked to believe these statements without proof.

Any Goodyear Dealer will be glad to demonstrate the facts.

And the great fact certainly is this: More people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind.

That is true of the people who buy new cars.

It is true of people who buy replacement tires from dealers.

It is true of buses which carry passengers—more transcontinental, urban and interurban buses and coaches operate on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind.

It is true also of trucks—more Goodyear Truck Tires are made and sold than any other kind.

Year after year, throughout the world, the number continually increases. Millions more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind.

Junior College To Give Intensive Business Course

TWO TYPES OF CLASSES WILL BE CONDUCTED

In order to meet the demands of the employer for competent office workers, Santa Ana Junior college will introduce this year, two short business training courses. Those wishing to prepare themselves as quickly as possible to get jobs will find these courses short, thorough, practical and free of all tuition, according to George B. Holmes, head of the college commercial department.

A one-year course of a practical character, which will train students to enter employment as stenographers, typists and office clerks will be given. This course will be intensive, and students will be placed in employment whenever they have attained such ability as will enable them to hold jobs satisfactorily, regardless of the time required. Subjects covered in this course will include shorthand, typewriting, bookkeeping, business English, business mathematics, office machines, and office procedure. This course should appeal to those who wish to get on the job without delay, said Holmes. Only essentials will be stressed.

A two-year course is planned, which also will train students to enter employment as stenographers, typists and office clerks. This course will include the same subject as will be found in the one-year course but will enable the student to enroll in other subjects also. Students completing this course will receive the regular college diploma upon graduation.

"This course should appeal to the student who wishes to prepare himself for employment and at the same time take the full two years of college work. It is felt that students completing this course will be sought after to fill the better type of positions due to the fact that they have a complete junior college education as well as the practical training required to fill the job," Holmes stated.

Tuition is free in either course.

Those desiring further information relative to these courses or other courses in commerce may consult Holmes who will be in his office, room 217 Junior college building, from 9 to 12 a. m. daily.

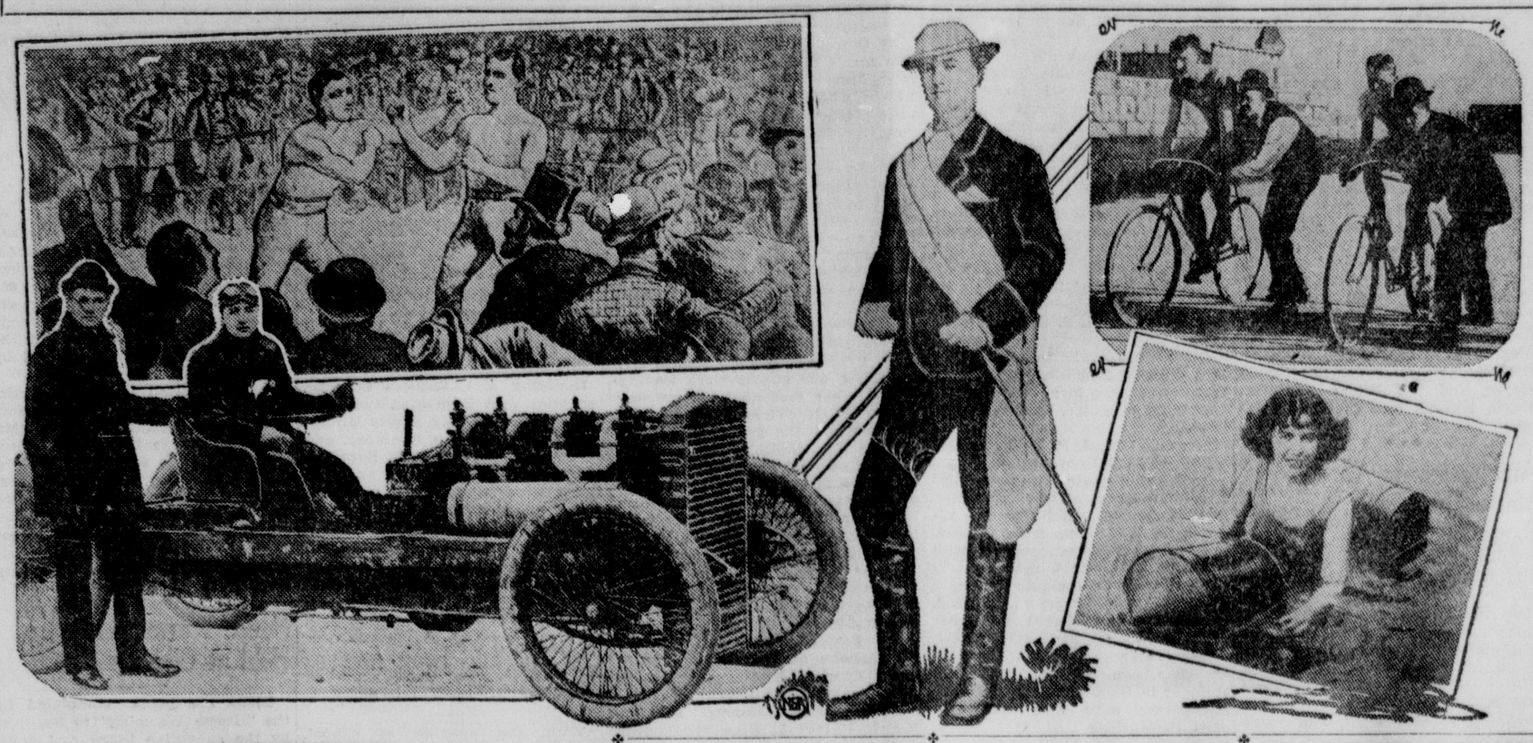
ENDURANCE CONTESTS FOUND FAVOR, EVEN IN 'GOOD OLD DAYS'

In the "good old days" of fights-to-a-finish, when the spectators took time out for meals, fouls were unknown in the boxing game and you could hit your opponent with almost anything except a two-by-four. The old print at the left in the upper part of the picture shows "The Battle of the Giants" between John L. Sullivan and Paddy Ryan in 1882. The photo below at the left shows Barney Oldfield, pioneer race driver, and Henry Ford, who used to be an endurancer too. Twenty-five years ago Oldfield used to burn up dusty roads in the car shown here and Ford also drove it for a world record. The man standing in the center picture was the famous Edward P. Weston, pedestrian par excellence. Having no place to go in his regalia, he walked 500 miles in an endurance contest in a coliseum at Newark, N. J., 50 years ago. The sash helped him—in a walk.

Back in the days of hard-boiled derbies, weeping willow mustaches and free lunch, bicycle riding was all the rage, although at times it was hard to distinguish between the handlebars and the rider's mustache—and here are two of them getting off to a fine start. The little lady is Milly Barrett, forerunner of the channel swimmers, in her water bicycle.



BICYCLE MARATHONS ON LAND AND WATER WERE AMONG FREAK STUNTS STAGED IN LONG AGO

By BERYL MILLER
NEA Service Writer

This endurance craze business isn't anything new—it's just a quaint old American custom.

Tree sitters flagpole sitters, refueling aviators and the like may be having their inning just now, but back in the good old days—or the bad, according to your viewpoint—there were plenty of other stunts that were just as freakish and exhausting.

Times and methods may have changed—but human nature has not.

A half century ago the American public got a thrill when Edward Payson Weston walked 500 miles against time in the old industrial Hall at Newark, N. J. He completed the distance in the amazing time of six days, lacking just 22 minutes.

A few years later came the gruelling six-day bicycle marathons, in which one man rode the entire time. It drew fire of reformers who charged it was inhuman.

Emancipation of woman hadn't really started in 1895, but the fair sex decided to conduct a bike race of their own. Nearly all of them dropped out after the 36-hour mark, but one lass named Frankie Nelson courageously kept on through the entire week, finishing alone after riding the final day in almost a semi-conscious condition.

In 1898, the New York legislature took action to prohibit one man riding more than 12 hours of every 24. The two-man teams, now used in this type of marathon, then made their debut.

Boxing devotees still talk about the old-time "fights to a finish" that lasted until one of the contestants sank to the floor unconscious.

At some of these long bouts, spectators went out for meals, and then came back to witness the remainder of the scrap.

In thel ongest bare-knuckle battle on record in the United States, J. Fitzpatrick and James O'Neil went 4 hours and 40 minutes at Merwick, Me., on Dec. 4, 1860.

Jake Kilrain and John L. Sullivan fought 75 rounds in their famous encounter, each round ending when a man was knocked, fell or was thrown to the ground. Some days, these were.

The first automobiles added another thrilling chapter to the history of endurance stunts in the day of the gold-toothed soubrette and the 20-cent lunch for business men.

Henry Ford, then a struggling young mechanic, and Barney Oldfield, the racing driver, broke world records with their famous "999" racing car in 1902. Ford himself drove the car to a world straightaway record.

Oldfield startled the country when he appeared in the first 24-hour automobile endurance race at Columbus, Ohio, in 1905.

Newspapers in 1910 hailed to 65-mile airplane flight by the late Glenn H. Curtiss from Euclid Beach Park at Cleveland, Ohio, to Cedar Point, Ohio, as one of the greatest feats of the century. It was the longest over-water flight on record at that time.

A girl paddled a "water bicycle" in a freak one-mile race from the Battery to Midland Beach at New York. She was the forerunner of the channel swimmers who monopolized page one of newspapers a few years ago.

A man started to walk backwards from Philadelphia to San Francisco, plodding along holding a mirror in front of his face to see where he was going.

Another "endurer" went on a long trek through every state in the union pushing a wheel barrow. He traveled 99,986 miles and wore out nine wheels in five years.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hoff of New York wanted to see the world, but their baby daughter seemed a barrier. They put the child in a baby carriage and started shoving it on a three-year jaunt.

C. C. Pyle's coast-to-coast "bunion derbies" revived the almost lost are of running.

Another man received nation-wide publicity by pushing a peanut up Pike's Peak with his nose.

Just now, the tree-sitters and refuel flyers hold the spotlight. And you can't be sure what freakish stunt is coming next.

COLLEGE GROUP GIVES PROGRAM AT CONFERENCE

A program given by pupils of Laverne college was a feature of a recent afternoon session of the summer conference of Brethren churches of Southern California and Arizona, now being held in this city at the local church of this denomination at the corner of Ross and Camille streets. About 200 delegates are in attendance.

The convention will close Friday evening. Today an educational program was in charge of Harrison A. Frantz. Yesterday afternoon Mrs. C. P. Schaffer and L. Dickey, of La Verne, presided. Lunches and dinners are being served by the women of the church.

An interesting exhibit of Chinese curios and linens is in charge of Miss Eunice Horning, of Long Beach, and was sent to her by her sister, who is a missionary in China. Proceeds from the sale are to go to the mission school.

A legal 8-hour working day and 48-hour week is now in force throughout the entire Republic of Argentina.

FUND CREATED FOR FAMILIES OF PRISONERS

Acting on recommendations that have been made by the judges of the superior court and particularly by Judge James L. Allen, the board of supervisors in the regular weekly session yesterday took action setting up a fund for indigent prisoners. Judge Allen has long contended that some fund should be available from which families of prisoners in the county jail could be paid as a result of the labor of the prisoner, when there was no other means of support for the family.

On a motion by Supervisor Charles Chapman the board set up a fund of $500 for this purpose. Chapman said today in discussing the measure that it was the intention of the board to maintain this fund in the future so long as it was not abused. In this way, a prisoner who refuses to support his family may be sentenced to labor by the court and his earnings paid to the family from this special fund.

The board took action on several other matters during its session yesterday, which was often interrupted as a result of interest in election returns. The supervisors' room was piled high with bags from the 189 precincts in the county containing the ballots and tally sheets, which formed a rampart about the desks of the supervisors.

All bids on supplying tires and tubes for the county fleet of trucks and autos were rejected and ordered re-advertised. The bids were submitted last week.

An appropriation of $3500 to the Orange county fair association was made. The fair will open September 30 this year, a month later than in the past. This money is to come from the advertising fund of the county.

Purchase of certain property in Orange County Water Works district 4, which is the San Juan Capistrano area, was ordered for the use of the district. The value of the property is $10,000.

Furtherance of the proposed new road connecting Buena Park and La Habra took place yesterday with the approval of agreements with the Standard Oil and Murphy Oil companies for rights of way across their holdings in the district to be tranversed by the road.

Other road work that received attention of the board yesterday was in connection with the widening of Alamitos road, the expense of which is to be jointly shared by Los Angeles and Orange counties. An agreement covering the cost of widening the bridge on this road was approved. The total cost of the work is $12,977, of which Orange county will pay half.

Bids were ordered advertised on revised plans for the county garage and storeroom, which is to be constructed at the county yard on East Fruit street, to be opened on September 16. When bids for this work were received previously, the costs ran about $2000 more than the architect's estimates. Plans were ordered revised and the new set will be advertised.

TRAVEL TALKS ARE GIVEN BY SMILEY, KELLY

Members of the local Kiwanis club heard two travel talks yesterday noon at St. Ann's inn. The speakers were D. N. Kelly, local Kiwanian, who told of his trip to the East; and J. A. Smiley, who recently traveled in Egypt.

The purpose of Kelly's trip was primarily to attend an Elks' convention, which was held last month in Atlantic City. But following the convention he visited many historic spots throughout the East. Kelly spoke of many interesting things which he witnessed at Atlantic City, the population of which, he said was 300,000 during the summer. Among the other places which were visited were Niagara Falls, Charleston, Boston, Philadelphia and New York. Speaking of New York, Kelly said that the thing that impressed him was the large amount of traffic.

Smiley started on his tour last January and was gone for five months. The speaker told of stopping at the Madeira Islands and discussed the people and products of the islands. It was from these islands, the speaker said, that Columbus started on his discovery voyage. The next spot that was touched was the northern part of Africa, where a short stop was made. Spain was also included in the tour. Smiley told of his trip up the Nile from Alexandria to Cairo on a stern wheeler. In closing, the speaker told of the extensive farming which has been carried on on the banks of Nile for thousands of years.

Tuesday evening's interest did not all center around election returns, for a number of girls of the local telephone office were busily engaged in staging a surprise miscellaneous shower on one of their associates, Mrs. A. The pleasant hours were spent socially, and were concluded by a delectable refreshment course.

Those present, other than the honoree, Mrs. A. E. Stephens, were the hostesses, the Misses Alma Dritchel and Tito Decker, and the Misses Lula Manning, Leola Koehler, Malinda Cordes, Ann Cordes, Mrs. Lorene Miller, Mrs. Frances Barnhill, Mrs. Wanda Braden, and Mrs. B. Finley.

Complimenting their daughter, Juanita Louise on her third birthday and anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Trujillo, 1004 East Washington avenue, were hosts at a waffle supper recently given in the home of the little maid's grandmother, Mrs. Thomas Monreal.

Many lovely gifts were presented to the honor guest. Juanita wore a frock of peach organdie the gift of her mother, and resembled nothing so much as a peach-petaled blossom in her fluffy skirts.

Reception Is Given As Farewell Event For Church Workers

A note of joy was mingled with an undercurrent of regret at one of the loveliest receptions of the summer, held last night in the parlors of the First Baptist church when the Women's society sponsored the affair given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. R. Fred Chambers, whose wedding was an event of August 7. While church members are rejoicing in the marriage of the two popular young people, they regret that they are soon to loose Mr. Chambers for a year's time, as he leaves for New Haven, Conn., tomorrow to attend Yale university where he will take up advanced work. He has been filling the position of director of religious education in the First Baptist church for the past 19 months.

The church parlors were gay with the most brilliant of late summer flowers, with vari-colored dahlias and asters in prominence. Mrs. E. R. West headed the committee in charge of the decorations. In the receiving line with the honored guests, Mr. and Mrs. R. Fred Chambers, were the Rev. and Mrs. Harry Evan Owings. Hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Brubaker, Mr. and Mrs. Mac O. Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Fairbanks, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Bell, and three past presidents of the Women's society, Mrs. W. H. Harrison, Mrs. Minnie Holmes, and Miss Gertrude Minor. Mrs. C. Tolifaro, mother of Mrs. Chambers was also a guest of honor. About 175 were present.

Early in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Chambers were presented with a handsome pair of silver candlesticks, in colonial pattern, the gift of the Women's society. The presentation was made very informally, in harmony with the informal note which was carried out during the evening. Musical numbers were especially lovely, and featured violin selections by Miss Emaline Richards and cello numbers by Richard Robbins, accompanied at the piano by Miss Laura Joiner.

Refreshments carried out a pink and white color scheme, with Mrs. Fannie Reeves in charge of the arrangements. She was assisted in serving by Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Wyman, and Mr. and Mrs. John Swanke.

Mrs. Chambers will remain here to continue in her church work with the young people, and it is expected that she will join her husband during the latter part of November.

Radio Entertains Members of Lodge

An unusual program was featured at the monthly meeting of Calumpit Camp and Auxiliary, U. S. W. V., held Tuesday night, when a radio was installed and election returns took the place of other usual numbers.

About 75 members and their families gathered in the hall for the pot-luck dinner served early in the evening at tables prettily decorated with zinnias and asters in a variety of attractive hues. The dinner committee included Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Randall, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Sturtevant, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Waffle, and Mr. and Mrs. Burt Deck.

Informal games of bridge were included on the program. Members were especially glad to have with them Captain and Mrs. A. F. Moulton, and daughter, Frances, who have just returned from a trip which kept them east for a year. Other members present who have been away during the summer were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dickson who will spend the week here and then return to their cabin in the San Bernardino mountains and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wassum, and family, who came here from their Laguna Beach summer cottage just for the evening.

Arrangements Are Made For Card Party in October

In line with the various organizations whose social meetings of the summer are now giving place to the more detailed plans for the fall programs, members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Jack Fisher Chapter Disabled American Veterans, convened for their regular meeting last night, and made plans for a public card party which is to be an event of October. Proceeds will go towards the Welfare fund.

Miss Lydia Fisher presided during the business session, and it was also decided to hold a membership contest which is to begin September 1 and continue for one month. The members will work as individuals, and not in teams. Those present were especially glad to welcome Mrs. Frank J. Kelley, 301 South Main, following her return from Chicago and New York where she has been spending the summer. She is the patriotic instructor of the local chapter.

Following a report by Mrs. Rose Edwards, concerning the welfare work of the group during the past month, the members joined the Jack Fisher chapter in a social hour. An appetizing refreshment course concluded the evening.

Guests From Texas Are Entertained By E. A. Clardys

The past month has been an especially delightful one for Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Clardy, 1024 West Washington street, who have been entertaining as house guests, Mr. Clardy's sister, Mrs. Frances Carpenter, whom he had not seen for eighteen years, together with her daughter, Miss Vera Carpenter, and a friend, Miss Lillian Wood, all of La Fors, Tex. The three visitors left here yesterday for their home, concluding a most interesting motor trip.

While the travelers were in California they enjoyed numerous side trips, with Mrs. Carpenter remaining with Mr. and Mrs. Clardy the greater part of the time, and touring the country with them, while Miss Carpenter and Miss Woods journeyed into the northern part of the state, visiting Yosemite, the Big Redwoods, San Francisco and Berkeley. While they were in Kern county they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Clardy. Southern California's noted Huntington Library was among the places of interest which found special favor with the young travelers, both of whom are teachers in Texas.

Honoring Mrs. Frances Carpenter, Miss Vera Carpenter, and Miss Lillian Wood, was a lovely dinner party of recent date, when Mr. and Mrs. James Nuckolls, 2401 Santiago avenue were hosts. Table appointments were especially attractive, and the delectable dinner menu was followed by a social evening. The hours were very much enjoyed by all present, as Mr. Nuckolls sang several solos, and other members of the party contributed to the musical program.

Clothing and Fruit Are Needed at Day Nursery

With the opening of school, clothing of all sorts is greatly needed at the Ebell Day Nursery, according to Mrs. Robert Tuthill, president Ebell society. While not quite so many children have enjoyed playing in the shady yard at the nursery this year as did last year, yet a large number have kept the swings busily mounting to the leafy branches of the trees and the other playground equipment in almost continual use. A big sand pile is one of the most popular means of enjoyment in the nursery grounds.

Fresh and canned fruits and jellies and jams can be used at the nursery, Mrs. Tuthill says, as children are given a hot lunch at noon. The fact that work for mothers has not been quite so plentiful as formerly, is given as the reason for the decreased attendance this summer.

Organization Holds Pleasant Session

Members of the Woman's Relief Corps enjoyed a delightful all day meeting yesterday when they met in the K. P. hall. Mrs. Margaret Hill was dinner chairman and Mrs. Elizabeth Birkhead was in charge of the lovely decorations. Fifty-six members, comrades and friends shared the occasion.

At 2 o'clock the business session was held and an interesting feature of the program was a talk given by Mrs. Clara Wedgewood who has just returned from the east where she has been visiting for the past three months.

Reports given revealed that the past month has been a busy one with 80 calls made, 30 bouquets given away, 16 officers and 56 members present at meetings, fruit, jellies and jams given out, $10 presented to the health camp, $5 presented to the fancy work booth at the Pacific Palisades, one new member, Mrs. Margaret Johnson, received into the organization and one new application for membership made.

Mrs. Ida Millen presided at the meeting.

"Call Of The Flesh" Opens Today

NOVARRO SEEN AS OPERA STAR IN BIG PICTURE

"Call of the Flesh," Ramon Novarro's newest starring vehicle, which will open tomorrow at the Fox Broadway theater, will permit picturegoers to hear Novarro's voice as an opera singer for the first time. To sing in opera has been a lifelong ambition of the star, and in the new photoplay he achieves at least a partial fulfillment of this desire, via the Hollywood microphones.

The operatic numbers which Novarro sings in "Call of the Flesh," are in English, Spanish and Italian, so that followers of the film star in foreign countries will have their first opportunity to hear him render popular and classical songs in their native tongue.

Appearing as a young opera singer who finds himself in love with a dancer and a little convent girl, Novarro will sing several compositions by Herbert Stothart and Clifford Grey as well as a number of operatic arias, including "Ridi Pagliacci," perhaps the best known aria of the late Enrico Caruso, and "Questa o Quella" from "Rigoletto." In the foreign versions of the picture he will replace the "Pagliacci" number by arias from "Traviata" which he claims are better known across the Atlantic.

Dorothy Jordan will again be seen opposite the star and the cast includes Ernest Torrence, Nance O'Neil, Renee Adoree, Mathilde Comont and Russell Hopton. The picture was directed by Charles Brabin who produced "The Bridge of San Luis Rey."

A radio signal will be attempted to the moon in the near future by Dr. A. Hoyt Taylor, superintendent of radio at the Belleview Naval Research Laboratory.

SCREEN LOVERS

"DAWN PATROL" IS SPLENDID AIR FILM

From any angle you may care to view it, "The Dawn Patrol," a First National Vitaphone picture starring Richard Barthelmess, is a splendid production. Widely heralded as an epic of the air, showing the heroism of youthful aviators in the World War, "The Dawn Patrol" surpasses anything of the kind that has been seen on the screen. This may sound like an exaggerated statement, but actually it is justified by the picture now showing to the Fox Broadway theater.

While Richard Barthelmess is the outstanding figure in the role of a squadron commander, on a battlefront in France, other characterizations are so splendidly conceived and presented that no one individual stands out pre-eminently.

In following the picture, one is made to feel the devastating effects of war, the breaking down of nervous resistance and above all the incomparable spirit manifested through unselfish heroism.

Prominent in the superb cast assembled under the direction of Howard Hawks are Neil Hamilton, William Janney, James Finlayson, Clyde Cook, Gardner James, Edmund Breon and Frank McHugh —surely a striking assemblage of names. Each one of the players is ideally suited to the type needed and from beginning to end no false note is sounded.

VIENNA, Aug. 28.—The Smokers' Club, organized here 40 years ago, is still going strong—and so are the pipes. Long clay pipes, of a very old vintage, are permitted in the club, as are meerschaums and porcelain pipes. Cigars, cheroots, or ciragets are not permitted to be smoked by members of the club.

WILLIAM HAINES IN "NAVY BLUES" HERE

William Haines—Gob.

Haines has played everything from a football player to a Marine, but his role as an enlisted man on a destroyer is his most comical, as well as one of the best acted characters, he has ever given the screen. It is, incidentally, in "Navy Blues," his first all-talking picture, now playing at Walker's State theater, that he gives film fans this new slant on his many-sided talent.

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star is deft as ever with his whimsical humor, but he has tempered it with some very serious and remarkably fine acting in the dramatic love story that is the central theme of the picture.

'ARIZONA KID' SEEN AT FOX WEST COAST

"The Arizona Kid," a picture that proved to be one of the biggest drawing cards of last year's films in Santa Ana and a picture which earned for the star the most coveted actor's medal in filmdom, is being returned to the Fox West Coast theater today and tomorrow, by popular demand.

The picture was requested by so many persons that it was booked by Manager Norman Sprowl as part of the Greater Movie Season entertainment for Santa Ana.

The Arizona Kid is the story of a highwayman of the early days in California. He is the original Cisco Kid, and his daring banditry stunts will thrill and enthuse any audience, but his love making to a girl who tricks him and his revenge on her make the picture one of the most interesting brought to Santa Ana.

Carol Lombard and Mona Maris have the leading feminine parts in the production.

A Fox Movietone news reel, together with an all-talking comedy also are shown.

MICKEY MOUSE CLUB TO MEET SATURDAY

Kiddies who attend the Saturday meeting of the Santa Ana Mickey Mouse club at the Fox West Coast theater, will wear hill-billy costumes, in which they will compete for prizes, according to an announcement made today by Norman Sprowl, Fox theaters manager here.

The wearing of the costumes is part of the entertainment for the day which will be headed by "Tumbleweeds," famous William Hart western picture that he made famous several years ago. It is a thriller from the start and declared ideal for the Mickey Mouse club.

There also will be vaudeville on the stage, with Noodles Fagan as master of ceremonies and a Mickey Mouse cartoon.

Mothers and fathers of children who attend the show with them will be allowed to remain for the Saturday afternoon matinee "All Quiet on the Western Front" which is being returned to Santa Ana by popular request Saturday and Sunday. The matinee will not be over however, until 5 p. m.

ARIZONA KID

Warner Baxter, the Cisco Kid, in the great film, 'The Arizona Kid,' which is being returned to the Fox West Coast theater today and Friday by popular request of the Greater Talkie Season entertainment.

New Recipe for Apricot Marmalade

If you can find a few stray apricots in the market, do try this method of making marmalade. It is equally good with peaches, early pears, or those lucious yellow plums.

FRENCH MARMALADE

Wash the fruit and scald if the fruit peels better that way—but peeled it must be. Cut in dice and mash smoothly with a wire potato masher. Cook the unsweetened fruit just enough to soften, then rub through a sieve.

Measure the pulp and weigh and add three-fourths as much sugar as there is fruit pulp. Put over the fire and stir until the sugar is dissolved and thereafter almost constantly while the marmalade cooks rapidly for 20 minutes.

By now it is beginning to thicken and it burns easily, so put it on a heavy asbestos mat, lower the flame and cook it until it is thick when tested on a saucer.

The French woman considers it thick enough when a dab on forefinger and thumb will stick the fingers together. Seal in small sterile glasses and use it as you would the crown jewels.

When you are making a "French Pastry" pie spread a little of this wonderful marmalade directly over the cooked pastry shell, before the pie filling is put in. It makes a marvelous glaze for butterhorns, and for glazing a layer cake before the boiled frosting is applied.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Broiled Crab Legs

Whole crab legs
Melted butter
Salt and paprika
Thin buttered toast
Lemon slices for garnish

Unless crabs are to be had for the asking don't attempt to get enough legs to broil off whole crabs. Go to a fish store and buy the legs by the pound—they will come quite high but you won't have the waste shell and other meat to deal with.

Use a glass baking dish. In it put a fair amount of melted butter, roll the shelled whole crab legs in the butter and place under the broiler to cook for a few minutes, turn them once while in the broiler.

Have thin buttered toast triangles ready, slip them along the edge of the baking dish and under the crab legs, pour over the whole thing more melted butter, highly seasoned, and mixed with lemon juice if you like the flavor.

When served as an entree three or four crab legs make a generous serving. The calorie total per portion some 250, most of which can be charged to butter.

There is no reason why the whole crab cannot be done this way. Just take it out of the shell in pieces as unbroken as possible and broil along with the legs. Another delicious way to use the extra crab meat is to mix it with a deviled cream sauce and bake it in the crab shell, covered with buttered crumbs.

Spoon Breads, the current leaflet, describes all the steps in the making of the lightest, fluffiest food ever concocted. I have a way all my own and it has yet to fail me. Onto that way of making spoon bread I grated another idea, combining them both together.

If I seem to swell up and brag you will understand after you try the recipe yourself. Just send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope this week and you'll get a free copy.

Pork Chops Italiene, a very nice way to bake pork chops, will be described tomorrow.

I used to feel miserable at certain times but now I feel 100% better and have gained a little in weight too. I am only nineteen years old. Unsightly Blemishes on Face and Neck. Healed by Cuticura.

"I was bothered with pimples that later developed into sore eruptions. These unsightly blemishes appeared on my face and neck and caused considerable itching and discomfort. The irritation was very severe at times, especially when I got warm. I was bothered with them for two years.

THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES by KING

The Boy Scouts told the Tinymites of lots of very pretty sights that they could see while traveling in Athens, day by day. They spoke of buildings towering high that could be seen, in passing by. Said one, "A lot have pillars which were built, it seems, to stay."

The Travel Man said, "You are right. They make a very pretty sight. The architects of olden days were clever as could be. We've traveled 'round for days and days. I'm sure we always will have praise for things we've seen in Athens, if the boys agree with me."

Then Clowny said, "I'll bet that I could blow your bugle. Can I try? I promise I won't toot too hard and break the thing in two." "Of course you can," the lad replied. He took the bugle from his side and handed it to Clowny, saying, "See what you can do."

Poor Clowny blew real hard and then, he caught his breath and blew again. A little queer toot was the only sond that he could get. "Ha! ha!" laughed Coppy. "Use more zeal. So far you've only made it squeal. If you don't have more luck than that, I guess you'll lose your bet."

Once more he blew and it went, "Whe-e-e-." Then Clowny gave up, saying, "Gee, I guess that I am much too tired. I'll try some other day." Then to the Boy Scouts they said, "Well, you've treated all of us real swell." And then they bid the Scouts good-bye and traveled on their way.

A Camera Man soon came in sight, which tickled Clowny Tinymite. "I'll have my picture taken in a Grecian suit," said he. A suit was rented from a store and Clowny scampered out once more. He posed before the Camera Man, as proud as he could be.

(The Tinymites meet a very funny moving man in the next story.)

Missing Letter Links

RULES:

1. In playing golf on the Missing Letter Links the object is to change one word to another in a given number of strokes which is par. For example, to go from TEE to PIN in three strokes sounds hard but isn't: TEE-TIE-PIE-PIN. It's probably more difficult on a real course.

2. Change but one letter at a time and be sure the word you have used is one in good usage.

3. The order of the letters cannot be changed.

TURF to RACE—A TURF RACE is the attraction on the letter links today. See if you can jockey over the course in par five.

equally as strong. It split even in a two-game series with Anaheim, a strong first-division club of the National division. During the first half, Pomona nosed out the Reds for their only defeat, but were blanked on the same field in the second half.

In the second half of the season, Corona administered a 2 to 1 defeat, and it may be significant to Santa Ana fans to learn that Rubidoux, the pitcher who did the trick, performs in the box in much the same style as Cornelius, ace of the Stars.

The huge man who will appear in the first base coacher's box and who might be confused for an umpire, will be Manager Finlay. Despite the fact that his leg was amputated because of an injury, he played semi-proball as a catcher on strong Southern California teams for years.

This is the second year of league nite ball for Colton, and its stands in the municipal park will accommodate 3100 spectators. A packed clay diamond is in good condition and the lighting system is better than the average. The field is level, and is surrounded by a low screen fense.

All in all, I see no reason why he shouldn't hit at least six more before October and thus be the first man, other than Ruth, to break into the fifty-a-year class. If he does better than that, he might beat Ruth himself. If he does only as well, he will have an outside chance. If he doesn't he will have practically none.

"We hope this is true, for in the event the Saints meet the Reds for the championship, they're going to have one sweet time getting by with the short hits against the Shaddox-Botts-Stone combination. Several have tried this, but few landed safe on the first sack. However, this is a game that two can play at, and the local have several boys who can lay 'em down as good as the best.

"The Saints must be given due credit for having a powerful, well-balanced team and it's going to be up to the Reds to step out on the field and play real ball, if they want to grab off the bacon.

"Local fans and supporters from Riverside, San Bernardino and other Orange Belt cities are all behind the Reds to a man to win the pennant and with such encouragement as this we bank on the hometown boys to do or die on the old lot.

"In the two games Shorty Stock has played with the Reds, the former Pomona flash has shown to a good advantage. Manager Finlay pulled a fast one when he grabbed off this boy to hold down the keystone sack. It makes it kind of tough on "Hank" Hannagan to make a showing now with a speed burner on each side of him, but "Hank" says he is putting in all his spare time in training and by the time the playoff comes, he'll be able to run the shirt off either of them.

Asa Vandermasts Are Hosts at Dinner Party

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Vandermast were hosts at a delightful dinner party last evening, when they entertained in their home at 425 South Birch street in observance of Mr. Vandermast's birthday anniversary.

The atmosphere of gaeity which was first evidenced in the numerous bouquets of brilliant late summer blooms which decked the rooms was continued in the table appointments which centered around a lovely cluster of pink asters. Slim tapers in the same delicate hue were at each place, and harmonized with the tiny nut cups and place cards as well. Concluding the appetizing courses was a huge birthday cake, beautifully decorated in pink and white which was made by Mrs. Murray Vandermast. An interesting social hour concluded the evening.

Those sharing the pleasant affair with Mr. and Mrs. Asa Vandermast, were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Vandermost, of San Pedro; Mrs. Emma Lyday, of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Vandermast, and son, Newell Vandermast, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Prince and son, Kenneth Prince, Mr. and Mrs. Will McConnell and Mr. and Mrs. Murray Vandermast.

when a man's powers are slipping away, when age dims his brilliance and slows his step, when he needs cheers most of all.

They yelled at Mathewson, "Take him out." Big Six sensed the animosity the crowd bears for the has-been and quit pitching before the anvil chorus got well tuned up. Babe Ruth is a victim of the crowd's mood every time he strikes out.

PANGS FROM WITHIN

The other day in Paris, just before departing to compete in the national championships at Forest Hills, Jean Borotra made a frank little confession to Minott Saunders, Paris correspondent for NEA Service and this newspaper.

The picturesque Borotra, probably the most popular of international tennis players and the most graceful sportsman known to the game, is in his early thirties. He wasn't worried so much about being defeated at Wimbledon and in the Davis cup match at Paris, but it was the five-set struggle with George Lott that convinced him he was slipping.

"I never want to make my friends suffer again as they did during that match," the Bounding Basque told Saunders. "Nor do I want to live through again the Calvary that I endured before Lott I must admit that I am too old.

"This year I trained as never before. I worked like a demon and was in perfect physical condition, but it was only by a hair that I managed to avoid complicating things for my teammates. I think too much importance is placed upon Davis cup play, but since it is I do not feel that my shoulders should bear the burden of a national defeat."

GIVES JOB TO RENE

Next year, says Borotra, the care of the Davis cup will be entrusted to Henri Cochet and Rene Lacoste, with Jacques Brugnon almost certain to be seen in the doubles.

"It's all settled,' said Borotra. "I lunched with Lacoste and we fixed it up between the fruit and the cheese. Rene is stronger now and says he will be in top form next year. He will have to do the heavy work with Cochet. I will stand aside. Of course I shall play in tournaments, but I am getting too old for Davis cup play."

Lacoste, who late last June married Mlle. Simone Thion de la Chaume, French golf champion for six successive years, is now training at his new villa near Biarritz. Sickness made him feel that he was not strong enough for tournaments this year.

It is not so much the jeers Borotra says he feels. It is the realization that his star is waning that hurts. He has heard jeers before. At Germantown when the famous French four won the Davis cup, a volley of American boos and jeers greeted their every move on the courts. And should a Frenchman miss a stroke in that tournament, the gallery would break into wild shouts and applause.

Borotra bore that with a cynical smile. But the inner realization is what hurts the most.

Beach Party Enjoyed Around Blazing Fire

A merry group of young friends, who often meet for social affairs, last evening enjoyed a weiner and marshmallow bake, accompanied by the other good things to eat that are so necessary for picnics. The event took place on the sands of Balboa Point. Following supper, which was enjoyed about a blazing campfire, a group of games furnished the entertainment for the rest of the evening.

Those invited to the pleasant affair were the Misses Edna Hall, Eunice Bright, Marthella Hardijen, Norma Tantlinger, Edith Southworth, Mary Mateer, Gladys Best, Margaret Willebrant, Helen Hendricks, Martha Hendricks, Iva Lester, Miriam Samuelson, and Messrs. Francis Hall, Lawrence Taqlor, John Van Dyke, Jack O'mara, George Haskell, Earl Trueblood, DeWitt Bishop, and Miss Virginia Robb, and John Taylor, who entertained, and Mr. and Mrs. John Taylor, and Mr. J. E. Hall.

NEW YORK CURB

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(UP)—Narrow price movements and a fairly steady undertone prevailed on the curb market in a quiet session today, although a few individual issues stepped out of the rut and showed wider changes. Among the lateer were Texon Oil and Land, which spurted more htan 2 points to a new high for the year, Dow Chemical, which advanced more than a ponit, and Northern States Power A, an isue with a thin market that was bid up three points in light trading.

Public utility leaders failed to maintain their upswing of the past few sessions as a result of profit taking that was encountered on all advances. American Gas and Electric and Electric Bond and Share receded to their previous closing levels after early advances. Cities Service was in supply at a fractional concession.

However, Brazilian Traction showed a reversal of trend and moved up more than a point on good buying attracted by its recent decline. American and Foreign Power warrants and United Light A were firm at fractional advances.

Oils were rather steday, although price movements were confined to a narrow range. Vacuum and Standard of Indiana moved up slightly. Investment Trusts showed narrow and mixed changes with Goldman Sachs gaining a fraction after an early dip.

"Tickletoes" Is the Wonder Doll of the Age

"TICKLETOES" is the only doll in the world with soft, life-like rubber legs and rubber arms, and those marvelous rolling-sleeping-winking eyes. Squeeze either leg and hear this baby cry, or turn her over and she cries.

She is the cutest and happiest of all baby dolls, for she can clasp her hands, turn her head, suck her thumb, enjoy her pacifier. She is elegantly dressed in baby clothes and wears stockings, moccasins and real rubber panties.

Just picture the joy of the children proudly "mothering" cute little "Tickletoes." Even grown-ups like to play with this "almost-human" doll.

IT'S EASY TO WIN "TICKLETOES"

HERE'S HOW

All you have to do is to secure only four new two months subscriptions to the Register and the doll will be given you free. Miniature Golf Snaps
Why launch a new golf course when there are bargains to be had in ESTABLISHED, STABILIZED courses? For six months we have done nothing but design, build, operate and sell miniature golf. We are in touch with HUNDREDS OF COURSE OWNERS in four counties. We believe that THE GAME IS HERE TO STAY. Many misfits have rushed into the game. Many hurry-up partnerships were formed that failed to jell. This has produced a situation where fundamentally sound courses that are being mismanaged CAN BE PICKED UP RIGHT. We specialize in the sale of such properties. For instance—Established 18 hole course in nearby town. Netting about $400 month. Blvd. location. Low overhead. Stand most rigid investigation. About $2500 cash necessary. SEE US ABOUT THIS —No information over phone.

ANALYZING THE VOTE

In the contests for sheriff and district attorney, there has been a division in the forces standing more pronouncedly for the enforcement of law. It is quite significant that one of the candidates for sheriff who was endorsed by the Law Enforcement League, received the highest number of votes of any of the seven, and the second man who was endorsed by the league came in third on the ticket. These two candidates, Mr. Jackson and Mr. Pearson, received very nearly 50 per cent of all votes cast,—their combined vote lacking but 2,000 of having a distinct majority of all the votes. This is extremely significant.

The vote on the office of district attorney is not so clear and pronounced, but at the same time it is significant. There was not the campaign carried on in the district attorney's race that there was in the sheriff's race, Logan Jackson having been out in the campaign for months, and Pearson being very active for quite a number of weeks.

In the district attorney's race, there was little done comparatively for the candidates who were endorsed by the Law Enforcement League. On the other hand, the organization directly behind the candidate who led was strong, open and pronounced. This showed up in his home city of Fullerton and in the city of Anaheim, where the disparity of the vote assured the candidate of the leading place on the ticket. In Anaheim the latter received over 1300 votes against the opposition field of 800, and in Fullerton, 1500 votes against the opposition field of 800.

In San Clemente, Mr. Collins received 198 votes and Mr. Westover 22, and in Newport Beach, Mr. Collins received 411 against Mr. Westover's 175. This indicates the determination if possible to have made the nomination an election.

The contest for this office will undoubtedly be the strongest contest which will be conducted in Orange county. Mr. Westover will get none of the so-called liberal vote, whether it be of liquor or of gambling. His dependence must be upon the other group.

Mr. Westover won a place because he was the most pronounced in the position which he took. Undoubtedly Mr. Wettlin, would have been in the run-off, certainly in second place, if not in first place, if he had been as frank and open in the position which he took as Mr. Westover. Mr. Wettlin maintained that his record was right; that he had answered the questionnaire, and we know that many of pronounced views on the 18th Amendment supported him. Certainly it appears that none of the other crowd did, for in San Clemente he received but two votes, and in Newport Beach but 61 against 411 for the high man

THE TRUE PARTY SENTIMENT

The smoke has cleared away over the election, and we are beginning to see some things in their perspective.

The prohibition and law enforcement forces in California, from a gubernatorial point of view, are momentarily in the wilderness. The candidate on the Republican ticket for governor and the candidate on the Democratic ticket for governor are impossible to support on any ground that would prompt a man, who believed in the Constitution and the law, to vote for the chief executive in the state that is supposed to typify both.

We have always been associated with the Republican party. We believe in the party organization. We have faith in our present national administration. We believe in the position of Mr. Hoover, and because we believe in the position of Mr. Hoover and believe that he typifies the best there is in the Republican party, by the same token, in order to be loyal to those views, we find it impossible to be loyal to the principles and ideals of the Mayor of San Francisco.

A party does not consist of its candidates. It does not consist of its executive committee. A party consists of all those people who have joined together, believing that through the party they can find the finest expression of their principles. The Republican party consists, therefore, of all the voters, and nearly two-thirds of the Republican voters of California voted for candidates whose views on prohibition and law enforcement are diametrically opposed to those of the man who was nominated.

We are still loyal to the principles. We are loyal to the two-thirds of the Republican party in California. We are not going to desert the Republican party, but if an opportunity is afforded that looks like business, we are going to do just exactly as we would do if our home were infested with vermin—we would move out temporarily, give it a thorough dose of formaldehyde, kill the vermin and move back in. In respect to the governorship of the state, we are inclined to move out, give it a thorough cleansing by the support and election of a man who stands right upon the fundamental principles of the Republican party nationally; who supports President Hoover in his administration as far as this principle is concerned, and after it is over, it is possible that candidates and supporters of such candidates shall realize that they cannot control the majority of the party with a minority.

Those whose loyalties and obligations are primarily to the party, and not to the principles involved may support the candidate selected. We have been told by friends that it would hurt politically to be against the candidate on the ticket. If we were looking for political preferment, or desired to build up a political machine, or were planning to receive something from a party organization, it is possible that we would consider what might be valuable from that point of view. But we have never supported any candidate yet of that type, and we do not propose to begin now.

Orange county, in its total vote, was nearly four to one against that candidate. In the state, in the Republican ranks as a whole, it was nearly two to one. We are hoping that the people of California will have an opportunity to express the real convictions on election day, as they did in the primaries, with the difference of being unified instead of divided.

Once there was a newspaper paragrapher who read about Einstein's theory of space and never once thought about making a crack about our parking problem.

"WHALE, HO!"

There was tremendous excitement in New York harbor the other day. The sound of "Whale, Ho!" was wafted to the captain of a little ship bound down the harbor for Atlantic Highlands, New Jersey. Sure enough there was a whale, a very rare visitor in New York harbor. It was a pleasure craft and the whale was the most exciting thing the fun-makers were likely to encounter that day. But Captain John Cameron had never broken his sailing schedule and wouldn't put his boat, which had been making considerable speed past the whale, around to afford the passengers more views of the whale.

But the whale had something to say about this disrespect. On the trip homeward the ship, the Monmouth, was shaken from stem to stern. All hands were ordered to stand by but there was nothing to do about the apparent earthquake which was upheaving the gallant ship. In a short time it settled into the water again and the whale was seen disappearing in the distance.

Airways to The South

Oakland Tribune

To another Pan-American Reciprocal Trade Conference, delegates will be flying from the south. Right now airplanes are blazing new travel paths between the Americas, rescuing many places from long-time obscurity and giving a cosmopolitan touch to others.

The National Geographic Society has sent a flying party down there to make maps, photographs, visit the leading centers, and carry on the work of friendship and information. Frederick Simpich, correspondent with the party, says: "An air line for mail and passengers ties the two Americas together, and a small army of highly trained men is required to fly and care for the airplanes which operate this long-distance service. At our hotel in Para, 27 guests from the United States were registered. All were seaplane employees or air passengers. Already, seaplane patrons and crews have increased business enough in some remote parts, off the main steamship lanes, so that new or remodeled hotels are discussed.

"Flying has brought new types to cities all the way from Havana and San Juan de Porto Rico to Para and Pernambuco. Guests at hotels are accustomed now to seeing a crowd of sun-burned, khaki-clad flying Yankees come trooping in to lunch, just in from a long flight, too hungry to stop to change clothes. In a day the mailplane pilots make anywhere from 1200 to 1500 miles, eating breakfast in Miami and dinner in Haiti, or sleeping one night in Para, Brazil, and the next in Port of Spain, Trinidad. Passengers who ride these planes are up at dawn, and into the air before sunrise Agents supply each with a lunch, and reading matter is put on the ships Baggage is limited, but careful choice of light wash clothes and quick work by seaport laundry women afford comfort to travelers."

A Cult on the Wane

San Diego Union

Engineers and the engineering type of mind in other than structural or mechanical fields, are but slowly beginning to realize the drawbacks entailed in bigness as a standard of competition. Size has been too much applauded. Resisting the incentive of the crowd's plaudits, thoughtful workers in all fields are buckling down to the monotonous business of checking up on ascertainable results.

Gentlemen who have won reputations through the construction of the biggest bridge, the biggest locomotive, the biggest plane, are beginning to acknowledge—a few of them, at least, here and there—that their attainments have not been altogether worthy of the applause won. The same applies to leading spirits in building bigger cities, bigger stores, bigger mergers. The fact that size is not an end in itself is being re-discovered.

There are locomotives too big for the economical haulage of the average loads available. There are buildings too big for profitable rental—buildings that return profits, not upon the buildings themselves, but upon the de luxe attractions and high-pressured salesmanship invoked to obtain tenants. There are cities too big to afford sane living conditions to the majority of their citizens.

Size is a childish standard of excellence—which is to say merely that it is an easy standard. We have seen, in our own time, a greatly over-stimulated competition for the easy applause and foolish admiration that mere size excites.

Like most of humanity's foolish fancies, however, the cult of bigness matures its own correctives. The lesson will be learned again. Far back in human history the builders of some biggest war canoe learned it. In our own time the builders of some biggest ocean liner will learn it all over again.

No More, Thanks

San Diego Union

It is a comfort to learn that the common council will not permit another marathon-dance fiasco in San Diego. In view of past experiences here, it is astonishing that any organization would petition for a permit to hold one. It is possible that there are honest and reputable and responsible marathon-dance promoters—or at least it is possible that at some time in an illimitable future there will be. But promoters of these affairs commonly screen themselves by promising to pay a reputable organization for the use of its name. The "contest" itself is a shabby and foolish affair. And in the past there has often been a shoddy aftermath of evaded contracts, unpaid bills and attachments. Nobody wants more of the same.

We trust that the council's decision will set a precedent for all time to come.

The Menace!

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

TO A SNAKE

I know, from what I've read in books
That you've been much maligned,
That, quite despite your evil looks,
Your soul is calm and kind.
Although your eyes are glittering jet,
Your heart is not of stone,
And you are harmless, if you're let Alone.

Upon man's foes, the insect breed
Which swarm about our flanks
Like greedy wolves, you daily feed
And decimate their ranks.
And, stowed beneath your bony slats
When bugs do not suffice
To serve your need, are many rats
And mice.

You never seek for human prey
As sharks and tigers do,
The grizzly bear's voracious way
Has no allure for you.
With your companions or alone,
Abroad, or in your lairs,
Your system is to mind your own
Affairs.

But yet, since Old Man Adam's day
You have been held in fear,
And human beings flee away
When you come wriggling near.
I know that I ought not to share
This prejudice of old,
Yet, Mr. Snake, you always scare
Me cold.

Is Good Business Any Business of the Government?

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

Following the stock market crash of last fall, the Government took aggressive leadership for the avowed purpose of sustaining trade and employment. Some objections were raised to this policy. A number of men insisted that "good business is no business of the Government."

A distinguished economist, Dr. Gustav Cassel, of Sweden, declared that the course taken by the United States Government was "a mistake of the first magnitude."

Recently there has been much discussion of the three Wagner Bills relating to unemployment. These bills provide certain measures whereby the Government, through its own activities, will help to keep business prosperous. A number of Senators objected to these bills on the ground that they provide for the interference of Government with business.

We must bear in mind, however, that no matter what the United States Government does it is certain to affect business. The Government is the largest spender in the world. It pays out close to four billions of dollars a year.

Such stupendous expenditures must either help or hinder private business. There are times when private spending is too large; and there are times, like the present, when private spending is too small. The least the Government can do is to take account of these fluctuations in business activities and spend the flexible parts of its budget when such spending will do the most good.

In the first six months of last year there was no occasion for the Government to increase its expenditures. Private spending was just about keeping pace with increased production. During the first six months of the present year, however, trade and employment were so far below normal that it was sound business policy to increase Government expenditures. Under such conditions it is literally true that the country can create certain public works at no real cost whatever.

And at the same time benefit private business.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking a cigar and looking at it between puffs as if he wasent positive weather he liked it or not, and ma sed, Well, Willyum, theres many a true word spoken in jest.

Speek a few for me, pop sed, and ma sed, About the baby's tooth, I meen. You remember the other day you sed if the baby herd some kind of stirring music such as the Frentch Marsellaise, it mite induce the tooth to come through. You happened to suggest it in a kind of a flippant way, but I thawt about it later, and this afternoon I stopped in at Gladdises house and explained the theory to her, and we tried it out, ma sed.

Ultra modern dentistry, yee gods, pop sed, and ma sed, We dident think the Frentch Marsellaise would do because its too military and mite sound as though we were using force insted of suggestion, and we certenly dident want to brake the babys spirit just for one tooth. So we looked all through Gladdises tawking machine record till we came to Waiting at the End of the Road, so we tried that to give him a mental pickture of his patient mother and grandmother waiting with outstretched arms for the tooth to appear. But Willy dident seem to feel any specific reaction. In fact he dident even wake up, so we tried Till the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold to suggest that we would be patient indefinitely and in that way perhaps werk on his little concients, and then we put on that wonderful song from Madam Butterfly where the little Japanese gerl is sitting by the window singing to her falts lover that she is still waiting for him, and low and behold the little angel woke up with a proud and happy laff, and it was out at last. It certenly speeks well for his taist in music. I think we awt to at least go to the movies to celebrate, she sed.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

THINGS THAT REMAIN

Last week, as part of America's look back into the last decade of her aconomic life. I listed the major factors that underlay the phenomenal prosperity of that period.

Yesterday and the day before I discussed some of these factors that has disappeared or diminished in force.

Today I want to ask what, out of all these factors that gave us such abounding plenty during the last decade, remains. Finding the right answer to this question is an important part of the inventory of assets that America needs now to make as she faces the future.

Let us glance into a few representative fields of economic activity:

(1) The automobile industry. During the last decade the annual production of automobiles rose from about 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 cars. We cannot keep up that rate of production increase. We made that dramatic jump in production in the period when some 23,000,000 Americans were becoming car owners, many of them for the first time. The best estimate I can get indicates that replacement and the new demand from growth in population may in the years immediately ahead require an annual production of about 4,000,000 cars. Some one may, of course, out-Ford Ford and create a car enough below existing cars in price to create another impetus to the motor industry.

(2) The radio industry. Despite the fact that many competent observers are confident that the next electrify all the homes and communities that need electrification, her economic life would receive a tonic to the tune of multiplied bildecade of this industry will be less be more active in the next decade we may witness technical developments in the field of transmission of sight and sound that will give an unsuspected stimulus to the radio industry.

(3) The building trade. While it is true that the epidemic exodus from cities to the suburbs has reached a relative stabilization, our cities are still over-crowded, in terms of really liveable living quarters, an dthere is much potential life still left in the suburban building program. As a whole, America is under-built. She needs more and better homes. And granted intelligent economic leadership generally, we should see a healthy building program under way during the next decade.

(4) The electric power industry. Here is an industry that should be more active in the nevt decade than in the last. If America could lions of dollars. I should be glad, I know, to see electrification still the voice of the sleep-destroying engine that paraded and puffed outside my hotel window last night.

I could go on, but I want only to illustrate the fact that everything basic remains in America's economic life, except that, in a few super-mechanized and super-efficient industries, a first fresh pioneer market has been exploited and a period of stabilization must be faced.

There are still 120,000,000 or more mouths to be fed and bodies to be clothed in a domestic market that is unhampered by internal tariff barriers. As a people, we have far from satisfied the legitimate demands of a healthy and civilized nation.

To tolerate depression in this stage-setting is to confess a shameful bankruptcy of leadership.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

PREPARATION FOR SCHOOL

Fear is one of the fundamental causes of school failure the first term. The little children are afraid of school. Many of them have not been prepared for the new world they discover in the classroom. They walk in dread and sit in terror for days on end. That kills all hope of growth. Until that fear is banished the child gains nothing.

"You wait until you get to school. The teacher will beat you good. She won't let you move." "Just wait until the teacher sees what a bad child you are. She'll put you in the black closet and you won't get home any more." "If you don't behave in school the teacher will pull your ears out."

One such speech is enough to send a child to school in mortal terror. We have had children refuse to move, once they reached a bench. Some of them have refused to touch a pencil or a bit of paper. They feared that if they did so they might make a mistake and the teacher would do them harm in some way or other. We have had children who refused to speak for months on end because someone had told them that if they said words the wrong way the teacher would cut the end of their tongues off. Such cruelty as that is still practiced in America.

Fear causes children to stutter. It makes them stupid because neither eyes nor ears can function under such fear as some of them feel. It will make children vomit the moment they enter the building. It will make some of them hysterical, restless, flighty and loud. It will make the teacher's task well nigh impossible. Until she gains the confidence of the children she makes no progress.

Then why not prepare the children for school? Begin by telling them all its good points. Take them to visit the school. Let them watch the children there at work and at play. Let them become acquainted with the teacher. Let them learn the plan of the building and accustom them to find their way about it.

Prepare the child physically. If his teeth need attention have them cared for months before school-opening. Have all the vaccinations done well before time. If tonsils or adenoids are troublesome have them treated before the child enters school. It is most unwise to wait until a child enters school and then begin a long series of treatments, each of which is more or less of a shock to the child.

Send the child to school in health, mental and physical and you have set the stage for success. Send him there in fear, ailing in body or in mind, and you set the stage for certain failure. The success or failure of a child's school life is set before he enters, not afterward. The school works on what the child brings to it. It never adds to his original equipment. It modifies and changes and leads but it cannot add to what the child IS.

Then help this child all you can. Send him to school in shape to profit as much as possible by the instruction he receives there.

TOLSTOY'S BIRTH

On August 28, 1928, Leo Tolstoy, a famous Russian novelist and one of the world's greatest novelists, was born in the government of Tula, Russia.

He went to the University of Kazan but after he graduated he said he knew "literally nothing." Induced by his brother, an army officer, to visit in Caucasia, Tolstoy became so fascinated with the life there that he, too, joined the army. It was at this time he wrote of his experiences in Sebastapol. Because his sketches painted the horrors of war with its false and real heroes with such realism, he soon rose to fame as a writer.

Leaving the army after the Crimean war, Tolstoy decided to devote himself to literature. He first went to Germany to add to his learning and culture but his experience there only intensified his doubts and disappointments. He had lost faith in modern civilization and became a champion of the common people, an enemy of the artificial upper classes.

Tolstoy wrote much on education and in his later years devoted himself to religious teaching. He made "Resist not evil" the keystone of the Christian faith. His religious views are set forth in "My Confession." His ,'War and Peace" is regarded as his masterpiece but his "Anna Karenina," largely autobiographical, is the more popular.

"DRY" INDEPENDENT BEING SOUGHT TO FACE ROLPH IN FINAL BALLOT

HOTEL WILL BE CLOSED NEXT MONTH

Several County Officers to Be Moved From Court House and Hall Records

ACTION IS UNANIMOUS

Money From Unbudgeted Reserve Will Be Used to Finance Big Project

ST. ANN'S INN, for years the most valuable hotel property in Orange county and known throughout the state as one of its most famous hotels, will be bought by the County of Orange on September 30, according to an announcement made today.

The county will purchase the hotel property for $145,000, according to a resolution made by the county board of supervisors in a meeting held yesterday.

The hotel will be turned into county offices and the county is expected to take possession sometime before January 1. The inn is to be renovated to suit the purposes of various offices which will be moved across the street from the court house property, but no announcement was made as to the nature of the changes to be made in the hotel.

The county court house has been crowded for space for years and the purchase of the hotel property will relieve this situation. At the present time there are three county officers paying rent away from the court house for space. The county farm bureau, which formerly was in the basement of the hall of records building, is now located in the Santa Ana Hotel building on North Main street, and the county flood control and county welfare offices are located in a building north of the Y. M. C. A. building on North Sycamore street.

These together with other crowded county offices in the court house will be moved over to the St. Ann's Inn property when the county takes charge of it.

Although nothing was stated at the meeting, it is believed that the money for the purchase of the property will come from an unbudgeted reserve fund which the county has had for some time with an idea of building additional buildings on its present property.

There had been talk for years of building another building where the old county jail building stood between the county court house and the hall of records. This property eventually will be built on, but the purchase of St. Ann's Inn property will delay it for sometime.

The supervisors announced that more than $300 was being spent per month now for rent for the offices that were forced to seek more space outside of the court house property, giving this as one reason for the purchase of the hotel property.

That there also are several other offices inside the court house building that will be allotted more space when the county takes over the new property, was intimated, including the district attorney's office, which is overcrowded.

Workman Under Train As Crash Comes Believed Seriously Injured

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Aug. 28.—(UP)—Eighteen persons were injured, one probably fatally, when two Southern Pacific trains collided here early today.

Thomas Leon, Southern Pacific repairman, is the only one whose life is in danger. He suffered severe internal injuries and the loss of his left leg.

The injured:

Ralph Hall, Jamuil, Calif., head injuries.

W. O. Carvio, San Diego, neck strain.

Miss Minnie F. Myers, Oakland, back injuries.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hazen, Chicago, neck injuries.

E. Allison, Los Angeles, elbow injuries.

Mrs. Ruth Murphy, Los Angeles, leg and neck injuries.

Mrs. C. W. Bixby, New York, head injuries.

Six others received minor cuts and bruises.

The collision occurred at 2 a. m. The Lark was proceeding north bound from Los Angeles and overtook the Padre, also northbound and running 20 minutes behind schedule, due to a broken steam pipe.

The Padre had stopped at the station here to repair the pipe when the crash came.

Leon was underneath the engine repairing the steam feed line and was seriously injured. He is not expected to live.

Paul Shoup, president of the Southern Pacific railway, was in the Padre train, his private car having been attached to it at Los Angeles. He was returning to San Francisco from New York. He escaped uninjured.

The observation car was telescoped for 15 feet by the rear end collision.

Both trains are now proceeding to San Francisco.

Calvin Coolidge Says

By CALVIN COOLIDGE
Former President of the United States

NORTHAMPTON, Mass.,—Aug. 28.—Prosperity does not result from cheap goods but from fair profits.

Reports of food distributors show a very considerable decrease in retail prices. In theory, that is an advantage to all of us. It is the kind of political economy that some have long advocated. But, in practice, the well-to-do scarcely notices it and many who really would be benefited find that low prices are a delusion since they do not have enough money to pay them. The gain that comes to the few has to be paid for by the many through a very disproportionate loss in general property values, entire suspension of wages or part time employment. A small number with a fixed income may benefit from cheap goods sold at a loss but the country as a whole is always injured.

Our ideal is not cheapness in either goods or men. The country is most benefited by a business profit secured through a fair price for commodities and high wages for labor. We expect science and invention to decrease production costs but not to a bare level of cheapness. We want our people so well paid that they can afford to meet the price of prosperity.

PROHIBITION LEADERS TO START MOVE

Bone Dry Republican Will Be Selected to Oppose Both Wet Candidates

Belated Returns Show San Francisco Mayor Over 24,000 Votes In Front

BULLETIN

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28.—(UP)—A conference of dry leaders of the state for the purpose of organizing to oppose the candidacy of Mayor James Rolph jr., of San Francisco, for governor, was announced today by Mrs. Eva C. Wheeler, president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

She set August 30 as the date for the meeting at the local headquarters.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—(INS)—Having won the Republican nomination for governor of California, Mayor James Rolph jr., of San Francisco, today faced the possibility of having to run against an independent candidate at the November general election.

The political ball has already been started rolling to this end by prohibition leaders in Southern California. Although the "wet" and "dry" question was not touched upon by Mayor Rolph in his campaign, he is known as a "liberal."

Such being the case prohibition leaders immediately began a discussion of the feasibility of putting an independent candidate in the field this fall.

Many Mentioned

Several prohibition leaders advanced the opinion that a Republican from the southern part of the state running on a "dry" platform could win the governorship.

It is figured that a "dry" Republican would have a much better chance running on an independent ticket, inasmuch as the Democratic vote in California is negligible. The nominee of the Democratic party, Milton K. Young, Los Angeles attorney, is also a liberal.

The name of William Gibbs McAdoo, secretary of the treasury under the Wilson regime, has already been suggested as a possible candidate to oppose Rolph. Charles H. Randall, former congressman and active prohibition worker, believes that McAdoo, although a Democrat, would appeal to the "drys" of both parties.

It was stated by other prohibitionists, however, that within a few days the candidacy of a "dry" Republican would be announced.

Wet and Dry Issue

The "wet" and "dry" issue also came to the fore in the race for the state assembly between I. M. Wright, author of the state bone dry prohibition law, and Frank Lannin, San Jose real estate man. After trailing as early returns came in, Wright finally whittled away the lead of his opponent and won by a margin of 303 votes.

With returns from 9,803 precincts out of 10,283 counted the vote for governor stood:

INSTIGATOR OF PERU'S REVOLT NAMED LEADER

LIMA, PERU, Aug. 28.—(UP)—Hailed as a national hero and given the reception of a conqueror when he arrived here from Arequipa by airplane yesterday afternoon, Lieut. Col. Luis S. Sanchez Cerro was at the head of a new military junta, or committee, charged with conducting the government of Peru today.

Sanchez Cerro instigated the original revolt at the Arequipa garrison which resulted in the overthrow of President Augusto B. Leguia. Yesterday he succeeded the military committee headed by General Maria Ponce and formed his own government. He administered the oath to the following members of his cabinet last night:

Minister of foreign relations—Col. Ernesto Montagne.

Minister of interior—Major Gustavo Jiminez.

Minister of the treasury—Col. Ricardo Llona.

Minister of public works—Col. Eulogio Castillo.

Minister of the navy—Commandante Carlos Rotaldo.

Minister of war—Major Elejandro Barco.

Sanchez Cerro's action cleared the Peruvian political situation at least temporarily. He will serve as president of the new junta without portfolio.

Three factions were considered as contestants for power over the country before the new junta was sworn in. Sanchez Cerro and his followers were conceded an advantage over Gen. Ponce and the committee which took over the government after Leguia's resignation.

COAST GUARDSMEN SEEK SINKING SHIP

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 28.—(UP)—Coast guardsmen continued searching today for the Francis T., which is supposed to be disabled and sinking off shore here with four men aboard, according to the tale told police by three "supervisors," who swam ashore here yesterday.

The men, John Larrie, 24; Freeman Banbury, 25, and Clarence Atkinson, 27, are natives of Halifax, N. S.

MURDER FIEND BEING SOUGHT NEAR ENSENADA

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Aug. 28.—(UP)—A "murder fiend" was sought by American and Mexican officials today for the Ensenada Beach slaying of Lois Marion Kertle, Los Angeles sorority girl, and her fiance, Francis Conlon, 24-year-old Monrovia, Calif., paint store manager.

Three men were held "on suspicion" in connection with the case, and were questioned at the jail in Ensenada, a resort city in Lower California 69 miles below Tia Juana. Governor Jose Maria Tapia of Lower California, who ordered a search for the supposed fiend, refused to say what the three were held for but admitted he believed they knew little of the double slaying.

Lacking evidence of a motive for the murders, authorities said a clue offered by William De Tarr and his wife of Los Angeles was the most promising advanced since the pajama-clad bodies of Miss Kentle and Colon were found half buried in the sands of Ensenada Beach early Tuesday.

De Tarr told Los Angeles police that he and his wife were picked up by a lone motorist last Sunday while hiking to Tia Juana. The man continually talked of murdering them, De Tarr said, and once he stopped to ask De Tarr if he had a knife.

"It would be easy to kill you and bury your bodies in the sand," the man was quoted as saying.

De Tarr said they rode with the man to Tia Juana, where they left him as soon as possible.

The Los Angeles man said he decided to tell the police of the affair

NEW COMMITTEE IS FORMED FOR INDIA

NEW DELHI, India, Aug. 28.—(UP)—A new working committee of the All-India congress was formed today shortly after the announcement that 10 members of the old committee, arrested yesterday after the organization had been declared unlawful, had been sentenced to six months imprisonment.

The new committee was headed by Acting President Khalilul Azaman, an advocate and a resident of Lucknow. It consisted of six Moslems, six Hindus, and three members of the old committee who were not sentenced to prison.

A general hartal, or passive strike, began in new Delhi Wednesday.

PORTLAND FLIERS IN AIR 48 HOURS

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 28.—(UP)—Tex and Dick Rankin, Portland fliers, had been in the air 48 hours at 8:45 a. m. today.

A minor oil leak was causing them to fly at higher speed than they ordinarily would, but otherwise everything was running smoothly, according to a note dropped at the Rankin airport.

The fliers are making an avowed attempt to set a new airplane endurance flight record.

H. L. MENCKEN, WOMAN HATER, TAKES BRIDE

BY HERBERT LITTLE
United Press Staff Correspondent
(Copyright 1930 by The U. P.)

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 28.—(UP)—Henry L. Mencken, editor and for many years regarded as a "woman hater" because of his tirades on marriage, was embarked today on a honeymoon.

He had wedded Miss Sara Haardt, Montgomery, Ala., writer, a week before the scheduled date after leaving to adorn the records of Mencken literature a credo which declared that "getting married, like getting hanged, is probably a great deal less dreadful than it has been made out."

He had written to the United Press, in answer to a frank catechism, equally frank answers which showed he believed the slogan "be polite" was the keynote for a happy married life, just as it is "the best rule for all human relations."

His revelations were given the United Press only a short time before he was married by Rev. Dr. Herbert Parrish, an old friend, of New Brunswick, N. J., yesterday in the Episcopal church of St. Stephen, the Martyr, with the formal Episcopal marriage service.

No Attendants

No attendants witnessed the ceremony at which the bride was given away by her brother-in-law, Charles Wickliffe Stevenson of Cincinnati. Only immediate friends were at the wedding of the author, who had been known throughout the country as the most confirmed of confirmed bachelors.

Mencken pictured himself as happy in his bachelorhood. He saw no reason, however, to alter his book, "In Defense of Women," which had gained him the reputation of a woman hater. He confessed that his venture into matrimony was based upon his penchant for "following hunches." The particular hunch which caused him to abandon sin-

ASKS ANNULMENT OF HER FIFTH MARRIAGE

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28.—(UP)—Five marriages against four divorces and annulments was the marital score of Eugenia Bankhead-Hoyt-Butt-Lee, daughter of Congressman W. B. Bankhead of Alabama, as she walked into court today in quest of an annulment of her marriage with Howard Lee, aviator and sportsman.

The hearing opened yesterday, with Mrs. Lee testifying that her fifth husband had misrepresented his social standing to her by telling her that he was an official of an aviation company and earned $24,000 a year.

DYNAMITE CHARGE KILLS POWDER MAN

SAN PEDRO, Aug. 28.—(UP)—A charge of dynamite, said to have been meant for his room-mate, exploded prematurely today and blew John Alcorn, 46, powder man, to pieces.

The explosion occurred under the shack in which Alcorn lived with W. H. Harper. Harper told police that he and Alcorn had been on bad terms recently and that Alcorn apparently had intended to blow up their shack in which Harper was sleeping at the time.

Alcorn, who formerly lived in Livingston, Calif., still was under the building when the dynamite exploded. Harper was not injured.

PUBLISHER RECOVERS

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 28.—(UP) — Lord Beaverbrook, British publisher and champion of empire free trade, was reported recovered today from an attack of poisoning believed caused by food. The publisher was aboard his yacht here when stricken, together with 13 social and political friends. The yacht steamed to sea late yesterday afternoon.

YOUNGSTER IS KILLED IN ZOO BY HUGE TIGER

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28.—(UP) —A boy who ignored danger signs in his zeal to re-enact a recent African movie by playing in an artificial jungle at Luna Park zoo, died today from wounds inflicted by the claws of a huge tiger which pounced upon him from the tangled glade.

The youngster, Alfred Hill, 12, was scalped by the ferocious beast late yesterday when he climbed a fence which surrounds the animal pen to lead three companions into the jungle set.

The tiger leaped from the artificial undergrowth just as Hill and one of his companions, Carl Sabins, also 12, dropped to the ground.

As the snarling cat bore down on his terrified victim, young Sabins fled screaming for help. The other two boys, poised on top of the fence, dropped back to safety.

Alfred struggled gamely with the powerful tiger, and was attempting futilely to stab the feline with his pocketknife when a bullet from the rifle of a zoo attendant saved him from further mutilation.

The shot which prolonged the boy's life by several hours, was fired by Melvin Koontz, 23, who had never before handled a rifle.

The first bullet, fired at the risk of hitting Alfred as he rolled about with the animal, pierced the beast's brain, killing it instantly.

Only the fact that the tiger was old, saved Hill from a quick death in the cat's jaws. As it was, the boy's hand was badly mutilated and his face and scalp hideously clawed.

He was rushed to an emergency hospital where at first it was believed he would recover. He gradually weakened from loss of blood, however, and in spite of a transfusion for which his mother, Mrs. Lynette Hill, furnished the blood, succumbed.

The other boys in the adventuresome party, William and Ralph Weberg, told police they had planned to emulate characters they had seen in the motion picture "Ingagi."

They knew movies were occasionally filmed in the pseudo-jungle within the zoo enclosure, but were unaware that a tiger was kept there part of the time.

The 12-foot fence which they climbed was posted with signs warning against trespassing.

SECOND VICTIM OF GANGSTERS PASSES

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(UP)—The second victim of gangster bullets died today in Trinity hospital, Brooklyn.

Joseph Silverman, 25, known in boxing circles as Joie Silvers, shot by one of four men Tuesday night as a result of a slot-machine racket war, died today. The bullet entered his chest above his heart.

Answers Queries

The questions propounded by the United Press and the replies Mencken gave in writing only a little while before the sudden announcement of his advanced wedding follow:

Q.—Will your wife drop her present name, assuming yours? Will this extend to her future writings?

A.—The bride-elect hails from the Confederate states and will thus use my name. Try to imagine a southern woman busting out as a Lucy Stoner. Her first book, written while she was Sara Haardt, will bear that name. What name she will sign to future books I don't know. But in all such matters I trust her good taste completely.

Q.—Is it to be a church or civil wedding in Birmingham, Ala.?"

A.—The wedding will not be in Birmingham but in Baltimore. If the bride-elect hears that you are marrying her in Birmingham she will be appalled. Birmingham to a native of Montgomery is what Los Angeles is to Baltimorean.

Q.—Have you or Miss Haardt decided whether the 'and obey' is to be stricken from the usual ritual?

A.—There is no promise to obey in the Angelican marriage service. Your question reveals a profound ignorance of canon law.

Q.—Have you any of the traditional fluster of a bridegroom-to-be?

A.—I discern no tremors. Getting married, like getting hanged, is probably a great deal less dreadful than it has been made out.

Q.—After years of bachelorhood, how did you know when you were enough in love to contemplate and invite marriage?

Was Inspired

A.—I can only say it was intuition. The holy spirit informed and inspired me. Like all other infidels, I am superstitious and always follow hunches. This one seemed to be a superb one.

Q.—Will you go on a so-called honeymoon? What do you think of that institution?

A.—I have no objections to honeymoons, nor to church weddings, nor to wearing a plug hat. In all matters of manners I am, and always have been, a strict conformist. My dissents are from ideas, not from decorums, and I do not favor wearing old clothes or living in an eccentric house, or making loud noises.

Q.—Who is furnishing the new house? Is it an apartment or a separate house with a yard?

A.—The new home in Baltimore is an apartment. It is on the third floor of a somewhat oldish house. It faces a park in front and a charming yard in the rear.

No street car passes the door. From the front window one sees the monument to George Washington, the first (and last) American gentleman. The apartment has been furnished by the bride-elect, who has excellent taste in such matters. My contributions were a Bible, a portrait (autographed) of Emperor Wilhelm II, and a battery of cocktail shakers. Disliking cocktails, I seldom use them, but they fill a room very pleasantly.

PROHIBITION LEADERS TO START MOVE

Rolph polled a tremendous vote in his home city, getting 73,666 as against 39,110 for Gov. C. C. Young and 6,718 for Buron Fitts, district attorney of Los Angeles county.

On the basis of late but incomplete returns, it was indicated that Young had won in 39 counties, Rolph in 15 and Fitts in four.

Frank Merriman, Long Beach, appeared to be safely out in front for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor.

Returns from 9558 precincts showed that he had 242,820 votes as against 217,312 for H. L. Carnahan, incumbent, and 208,697 for State Senator Tallant Tubbs.

It is reported that a meeting will be held in Los Angeles on Saturday morning at which time plan will be discussed for the selection of a candidate to represent the dry element of the state.

DEATHS

A WORD OF COMFORT

When you rejoice in a glorious sunset, in the steadying strength of the mountains, in the lilting song of the birds or in the delicate colors and scent of the flower, pause to realize that you have not begun to appreciate the full beauty and grandeur of the universe because your organs of sight and hearing are so limited in their capacity.

Then let your heart sing within you as you recognize the fact that your dear one, who is emancipated from the imperfections of the flesh, now has a joy and an understanding beyond your highest conception, and that the glory of the universe is increased a thousandfold.

ORANGE COUNTY FAIR LEADERS MAKE REPORTS

Directors of the Orange county fair board, at a meeting held last night at the fair grounds, heard from the heads of each department. In the opinion of those present the plans revealed and progress already made indicate larger displays and more entertaining programs than the annual fall show has been able to offer heretofore.

The feature tent, according to George Kellogg, chairman, will be particularly beautiful. The motif is international friendship and every exhibitor will choose a different nation to represent. Already Los Angeles county has spoken for space, but has not chosen its theme. Riverside county will portray "International Relations," Garden Grove will feature "Japan," the city of Orange, "United States," and West Orange, "Egypt." Indications are that every feature exhibit space will be taken within the next week or so.

The fair will be formally opened on the night of Tuesday, September 30 by Mayor James Rolph jr., of San Francisco.

The entertainment features will be varied this year that visitors will find no monotony in this department. A program of horse racing, also horse shows, rodeo, band concerts, aerial acts, girl revues, adagio athletes, and comedy acts, already have been arranged.

John Osterman, of the live-stock department, stated that his problem is going to be one of space. Heretofore the dates of the Orange county fair have conflicted with the state fair at Sacramento, with the result that many leading exhibitors naturally chose Sacramento. Now, with the local fair coming at the end of the circuit, a number of these exhibits will be shown here.

COLLEGE DRINKING DECLINING, CLAIM

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 28.—(INS)—Drinking among students is only about one per cent as heavy as it was a quarter of a century ago, in the opinion of Dr. Alexander C. Ruthven, president of the University of Michigan, who made known his views at a meeting of Utah alumni of the institution recently.

This statement from Dr. Ruthven comes as a marked surprise following the prohibition poll that was carried out at Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Dartmouth, and a number of other eastern schools last year, which showed that well over half of the students drank, the greater number at regular and far from infrequent intervals.

Using the University of Michigan as a representative institution of higher learning, Dr. Ruthven declared that he is convinced that the morals of students are on a much higher plane than ever before. Dr. Ruthven expressed himself as heartily in favor of co-education.

Portugal's seventeenth census is to be taken shortly. It is expected that the population will reach 6,500,000.

Judges for the contest were Dr. J. V. Gilbert, of Los Angeles; M. V. Newcomer, member of the faculty of Santa Ana Junior college, and Miss Nancy Elder, secretary of the Santa Ana Y. W. C. A. Other contestants were Hoyt Deeter, of Glendale; Fred Butterbaugh, of La Verne, and Neuman Larick, of Covina. The subjects of the prize winning orations were "Outlawing War," on which Replogle spoke; "World Peace," Miss Rexroad's subject, and "The Prince of Peace," with which Miss Scarisbrick won third prize.

The program at the conference today continued the education program, which was inaugurated yesterday, during the morning session with several addresses by church leaders concerning liberal arts colleges. The missionary program of the district was the theme of the afternoon sessions and will occupy the attention of the hundreds of delegates and visitors tonight. The annual banquet honoring ministers and their wives will be held at the Church of the Brethren, corner of Ross and Camille streets, where the conference sessions are being held, commencing at 5:30 p. m. today.

The business session of the conference will be held tomorrow and will close the convention.

Erwin McComb Forbes, 70, passed away at 2:00 a. m. today at his home, 826 North Flower street.

Mr. Forbes is survived by his wife, Jeanie B. Forbes, five children, Mrs. L. C. Crittenden, of Beatrice, Neb.; Richard H. Forbes, St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. E. C. Hunter, of Santa Ana, and Erwin M. Forbes jr., of Santa Ana; and one sister, Mrs. R. M. Lane, of Sturgis, S. D.

The announcement of the funeral will be made by Harrell and Brown.

ORANGE COUNTY SCOUTS ARE TO HOLD MEETING

Boy Scouts from troops all over the county will meet tomorrow at 4 p. m. at Camp Purinton, situated at Flower street and Santiago creek, in response to a letter sent out to scoutmasters and chairmen of troop committees by E. T. McFadden, chairman of the camping committee.

The Santa Ana city council gave the Scouts permission, some time ago, to use the ground of the city at Flower street and Santiago creek and one of the stipulations was that the boys in the troops keep it in neat and orderly shape. It is for this reason that the Scouts will meet tomorrow afternoon and spend some time in cleaning the grounds up.

Troop 24, which is sponsored by the Rotary club, has taken advantage of the opportunity offered them, and recently has built a log cabin at Camp Purinton. The cabin is large enough to hold the entire troop of 30 boys in meetings which they hold there.

Seek Victim Of Cutting Scrape

First officers had to catch the man who did the cutting. Now they are seeking the man who was cut.

Such was the case of Porfirio Rico, charged with assault with a deadly weapon, in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court this morning.

Porfirio was taken to court to have his preliminary examination, but the state needed the chief witness, Jose Guitterez, to testify that he was cut. Jose couldn't be found.

The court wrote out a bench warrant for him and continued Rico's case until September 2.

Examine Men On Charge of Theft

Guido Paieri and E. C. Wider, Anaheim men, charged with grand theft in connection with the asserted theft of a truck several weeks ago, were being given their preliminary examination in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court today. The case started this morning and was continued until this afternoon.

The two men were arrested in El Centro several days ago by deputy sheriffs.

'Correct Attitude' Produces Rainfall

LAMESA, Texas, Aug. 28.—(INS)—There hadn't been any rain in about two months and the sand was about a foot deep in places, so Lamesa residents were startled and amused to read in the morning paper that a local firm offered a special sale of automobile mud chains.

There were few sales, but the merchant professed satisfaction.

The very next day a torrential rain struck Lamesa, converting the sand into mud. "Which proves," said the merchant, "the value of advertising, not to mention the results one may achieve if one assumes the correct mental attitude."

The rock of Gibraltar is composed of limestone covered in shale.

NEWSPAPER IN NORTH PRAISES LOCAL HISTORY

As the second edition of "Caminos Viejos" was off the press today, warm praise for the work of T. E. Williams, under whose direction the book was printed at the high school print shop, and for Postmaster T. E. Stephenson, author, was revealed in a recent issue of a San Francisco newspaper, which devoted a prominent position on its book review page to comments on the first edition.

Two of the woodcuts drawn by Jean Goodwin and Arthur Ames, which add attractiveness to the volume, were reproduced. A cut of Don Gaspar de Portola and another showing an old Mexican carreta, or cart, drawn by oxen, were printed.

"Master printers, shown the volume, were enthusiastic over the masterly work shown by the printing students," said the newspaper reviewer.

"The story is by Terry E. Stephenson, veteran Santa Ana publisher, who obviously holds the key to the early lore of Orange county," the review continued.

The volumes are on display at the Santa Ana Book store.

Police News

Next Winter
by putting up fruit

This year sugar is so cheap and fruit so plentiful that home canning is real economy.

For the winter diet you can't have too much canned fruit. It is wholesome for everybody and adds variety to every menu.

Since sugar is exceedingly cheap and fine fruit plentiful, you will be surprised at how many jars of fruit and glasses of jelly can be put up without taxing your present food budget. And next winter when you start using this fruit you will be away ahead financially.

In addition to putting up preserves, jellies and jams, it is decidedly worth while to make some relishes and pickles. These are zestful accompaniments for meat and fish.

Plan now to put up some fruit. Just look at the low price of sugar and fruit and you'll see that home canning is real economy. A bit of sweet makes the meal complete. The Sugar Institute.

1930 IS REWARDING CAREFUL SAVERS

THIS CONCERNS YOU AS WELL..

Our loaning policies are not only important to borrowers but to you as an actual or prospective user of our facilities for savings. Therefore it is important to you to know that our loaning rate is 7% . . . outstandingly lower than the going rate in our field.

We established this lower rate as the surest way of bringing us the "pick of the loan crop" . . . the choicest first lien collateral offered to any California building and loan association.

Naturally such security is an important factor of protection to our savers . . . one which ranks with these factors, distinguishing our financial structure . . . the largest non-withdrawable invested capital of any building and loan association in the West . . . the largest voluntary cash and bond reserve . . . a statement free from real estate, furniture and fixtures and bank indebtedness.

On the basis of such distinguishing conservatism and liquidity, we solicit your consideration of our 6% and 5¼% facilities for savings.

EXPECT CROWD FOR RODEO OF POST IN BREA

BREA, Aug. 28.—The Labor day celebration of the Brea American Legion post is expected to attract crowds. There will be two performances each day, next Sunday and Monday.

Earl Thorpe, hard riding Dakota cowhand, who won the 1929 American Rodeo association's "all around cowboy" first prize, will complete; Paddy Ryan, winner of the Roosevelt trophies at Cheyenne and Pendleton, is another contestant; "Pete" Knight, champion bucking horse rider and roper of Cheyenne, is entered in six events; Rose Mullaly, first honor winner at the recent big Salinas Rodeo and Della Shriver of Oklahoma City, are already in Brea. More than half a hundred Arizona, Nevada and California cowboys, at present working in three big "westerns" now being filmed in Hollywood, likewise will be on hand to dispute the supremacy of the present title holders, and incidentally, win some of the big cash prizes for themselves.

Two car loads of bucking horses from the Boren ranch, near Manteca, Calif., are now in the corral, at Brea; another car load of stubborn, "long horn" steers from the Mexican border has been shipped in and the roping calves are real Bremans.

Latest standings in the queen contest were announced today as follows: Miss Brea, 32,400; Miss Tustin, 32,000; Miss La Habra, 31,700; Miss Anaheim, 30,000; Miss Fullerton, 30,000; Miss Garden Grove, 29,400; Miss Santa Ana, 28,000; Miss Buena Park, 27,800; Miss Capistrano Beach, 27,500; Miss Orange, 25,000; Miss San Clemente, 26,000 and Miss Newport Beach, 25,800.

The girls will parade Sunday noon. A car will be given away between the afternoon and evening performances on Monday. The queen candidate receiving the most votes will receive $200, second prize $100.

Communications under this heading must be signed by the name of the writer. These communications express the opinions of the writers of them. The opinions may or may not be the opinions of The Register.

Editor Register—If you will allow me a few lines in your paper I would like to take this means of offering my congratulations to both Mr. Sam Collins and Mr. Harry Westover for the splendid race both ran in the elections of Tuesday.

It is my sincere desire that the voters of Orange county will think carefully between now and the November election and at that time will cast their votes for the candidate who will best serve the people of our county as district attorney.

I also wish to take this means of thanking my many friends for their loyal support and to say to them that I realize that it was entirely through their individual efforts, unassisted by newspaper support, that enabled me to receive the large number of votes that I did.

Sincerely,
D. G. WETTLIN.

PEACE TREATY WITH GERMANY IS EXPLAINED

In his talk over KREG last night L. L. Beeman, instructor in the Santa Ana Junior college, explained the treaty with Germany made at the Paris peace conference in 1919. His talk, in part, follows:

"The peace conference which met at Paris in January, 1919, drafted five peace treaties, one each with Germany, Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria, and Turkey. The treaty with Turkey had to be revised in 1923 and the United States made a separate treaty with Germany in 1921. This makes seven treaties in all.

"I shall explain in detail only the treaty with Germany. I will first explain the territorial changes.

"1. Three small German cities with a small territory around them, Moresnet, Eupen and Malmedy, were ceded to Belgium. These were inhabited wholly by Germans. The transfer was made arbitrarily without consulting the people. This was a violation of President Wilson's principle of seld-determination.

"2. The Saar basin was put under the control of the League of Nations for 15 years, during which time France is to exploit these coal mines. This was done as a reparation to France for the coal mines destroyed by the German armies. After 15 years, the people living in this Saar basin are to decide by vote whether they will continue under the League of Nations, reunite with Germany or join France. This vote is to be supervised by the League of Nations. This again violated the principle of self-determination. During these 15 years the French can colonize this territory with French people. The German population is more likely to decrease during this time than increase. Thus it is possible for the people then to vote to join France.

"3. Alsace-Lorraine was restored to France.

"4. In 1864 Prussia and Austria made war on Denmark and took from her two provinces bordering on Prussia. The two provinces were Schleswig and Holstein. The treaty provided that the people in these two districts should vote on whether they would remain under German authority or reunite with Denmark. An election was held by the League of Nations. The northern province, Schleswig, voted to join Denmark, the southern, Holstein, voted to remain with Germany. This was in harmony with the principle of self-determination.

"5. Poland, which had been divided up among the three powers, Prussia, Austria and Russia, was reorganized as a free and independent state. The Poles are a very old Slavic people. They inhabited, during the 16th, 17th and a large part of the 18th centuries, a territory larger than any other nation in Europe except Russia. Poland was hemmed in by Prussia on the west, Austria on the south, Russia on the east and the Baltic sea on the north. The Vistula river flows through the center, emptying into the Baltic. This river and the great harbor and seaport of Danzig at its mouth forms the natural outlet for all Poland. In the early middle ages missionaries went from Germany into the part of Poland west of Danzig on the Baltic sea, which was called Prussia, and converted the people there to the Roman Catholic faith.

"This strip of Polish territory along the Vistula river, which divided Prussia into two parts is known as the "Polish corridor." The Hohenzollern kings of Prussia wanted this corridor so their territories would be united. The Poles, a great people in many ways, have never shown any great baility to govern themselves. Some disorders within the Polish state itself gave these big powers an excuse to interfere. No two would stand by and see the third dismember and annex the great Polish territory to itself. So, the three agreed to divide it up among themselves.

"At the time of the Paris Peace conference in 1919, some of this Polish territory had been under foreign control for about 150 years. The people were still Poles in spite of the long period in which their captors and masters had been trying to make them Germans, Austrians or Russians. They ever prayed for deliverance from their bondage. The World war brought this deliverance. The members of the Peace conference were anxious to help the Poles set up an independent government along national lines. But there were many difficult problems connected with it. It was an easy matter to deal with these sections where practically all the people were Poles. But during these long years of foreign control parts of their land had become inhabited with a large number of people of other nationalities and in some places the Poles were greatly outnumbered. In order that the Poles might have an outlet to the sea and a good harbor, the Polish corridor was restored to the Poles. The city of Danzig was made a free city with an independent government under the supervision of the League of Nations. Danzig is under the Polish tariff system and is used by the Poles for their seaport. Germany or Prussia is now again divided into two parts, East and West Prussia, by this Polish corridor. When the Germans go from West to East Prussia now, they must either go around by the Baltic sea or cross this Polish territory. The treaty gives them the right of free transit across it for goods and persons. This is a constant source of friction between the two peoples.

"In Upper Silesia there were both Poles and Germans and both nations claimed the territory. The treaty provided that the question should be settled by a vote of the people living there. This election was held by the League of Nations. Some districts voted to remain with Germany and some voted to join Poland and that is the way the League Council decided the matter.

"6. Germany had to surrender all her colonies to the Allies. These consisted of large possessions in east, southwest and central Africa, also possessions in Asia and many islands in the South Pacific ocean. In disposing of these colonies, a new and interesting experiment was tried. It is known as the mandate system." The word "mandate" means to commit to one's charge or care; a contract by which one is employed to manage another's business. The peoples in these colonies were and still are incapable of governing themselves. Instead of permanently annexing them to their captors, they were divided up among the allied nations for the purpose of administration under the supervision of the League of Nations. The plan is that the mandatory nation shall help these people govern themselves for the benefit of the people governed and that some day in the future they will have progressed sufficiently to be given a free and independent government among the nations of the world."

The bodies of the two victims will be brought to Los Angeles today by a party headed by Fred Farquier, head of the paint company employing Conlon.

Authorities first investigated the killing as the possible aftermath of a love tangle involving the young sweethearts and a third man. A robbery theory was scouted when valuables and a large sum of money were found in a tent the couple had pitched on the beach.

EARLY HISTORY TOLD TO LIONS BY STEPHENSON

A short talk on the early history of Orange county was given this noon before the members of the Lions club by Terry Stephenson, author of "Caminos Viejos," a book dealing with events in the history of Orange county.

Eugene Browne, program manager of KREG, with Mrs. Browne and two daughters, Velma and Barbara, were present and several musical numbers were sung by Velma, eight, and Barbara, four. The elder girl sang "Swinging In a Hammock," while Barbara sang "It Ain't No Sin," and "If I had a Talking Picture."

Speaking of early Indians of this region, Stephenson said that they had no pride or tribal instinct. If the Indians had not been such a low type the Spanish would not have been able to held them under subjection for so long, said the speaker. It was not until 160 years after the discovery of and exploration of this country that an expedition was made for the purpose of settlement, the local historian said.

The history of the Portola expedition, which came on foot to San Diego, was outlined. The first camp which it made in Orange county was just below San Juan Capistrano. The speaker further told of the settling of California by the Americans and the taking of the country for the United States. In closing he told a little of the history of the orange industry in Orange county.

Walnut Plant Ready For Opening Next Month

45 TONS WILL BE PACKED BY HOUSE DAILY

ORANGE, Aug. 28.—Plans were completed today for the opening of the Rosenberg brothers' new walnut packing house next month and inspectors for the state have completed their visits and inspection of the equipment.

Frank A. Short, representing the indutsrial accident commission of California, made an inspection of the plant yesterday afternoon in company with Frank Dale, building inspector of Orange, and with the exception of a few minor changes, the machinery was approved.

According to A. L. Witherow, plant foreman, he expects to employ about 15 men and 30 women but 30 or 35 women and more men have already asked for positions. The new plant will have a capacity of 45 tons of nuts daily, which is a large increase over the Los Angeles house that formerly handled all the nuts.

Witherow estimated that the plant would get into active operation about September 15 and turn out between 1200 and 1500 tons of walnus in the rough. The office force will arrive soon to take charge of the plant and Joe and Morris Handleman, manager, will arrive in a few days.

Remodeling work was started in April and continued up ot July 28. All motors are run by electricity and represent the most modern ideas in walnut packing. The walnuts for the new house are being contracted for all over Southern California, as far north as Goleta and south to Hemet. All of Orange county will be completely covered and many growers are already signed up with the company, it was learned.

TRIP THROUGH ORANGE COUNTY IS DESCRIBED

"During the hour devoted to a discussion of the viands, several musicians who were stationed in the dining room furnished many selections from the masters, and for the dancing from eight o'clock until after midnight, kept the guests busy. After dinner the guests were invited to enjoy themselves in any manner in which they wished. The ladies gathered in the drawing room and the gentlemen on the broad piazzas, after which all had obtained a general view of the hotel and its appointments a number of card tables were furnished and for an hour there were as many different kinds of games as there were tables. A number of the residents of Orange called and added to the welcome of Mr. Culver. Among those were Col. and Mrs. Scarritt and the Misses Scarritt, Mrs. Cauldwell, Miss Eva Cauldwell, A. B. Cauldwell and Mr. Coon.

"From 10 o'clock until midnight the musicians were kept busy furnishing music for the dances in which all indulged and which even the wisest of the City Fathers seemed to enjoy. Before 1 o'clock all had forgotten in sleep that they were in a strange place but their rest must have been very refreshing for bright and early yesterday morning there were to be seen merry parties scattered along the highway and in the orchard all busy admiring the hotel and its surroundings. Even the walnuts and flowers which were free for all, had no attraction when it was announced breakfast was ready. The exercise of the previous night together with the ozone of the atmosphere had made every one better able to appreciate the excellence of the table, and lost in the contemplation of the miracles of culinary art which were placed before them, those who had intended to leave on the early train forgot business for the time and determined to accept Mr. Culver's invitation to view the surrounding country.

"At half past nine o'clock Mr. Culver invited his guests to drive about the town and surrounding country. This invitation was accepted and in six carriages drawn by fast horses the party of 23 was given a view of one of the prettiest sections of California. Along well kept roads under long rows of pepper, eucalyptus, cypress and pine trees, the guests were driven through Orange where the well kept orchard, the fresh foliage of fruit trees, the heavily laden grape vines, and homelike dwellings reminded them of an Eutopia and told them the result of man's labors in a more forcible manner than words. The back-ground of mountains with the intervening hills and green meadows formed a picture of which no one became tired, and it was the unanimous opinion that Orange would be their choice for a residence. Later on, Tustin was driven through and later still Santa Ana, with its bustle and life was passed in the journey.

Promptly at noon the carriages drew up in front of the hotel, and the guests were conducted again to the dining room, where a dainty lunch was waiting."

COLOMBIA TOUR DESCRIBED FOR ORANGE LIONS CLUB AT WEDNESDAY LUNCHEON MEET

ORANGE, Aug. 28.—Harry Lewis, rancher of Santa Ana, who recently completed a tour of South America, entertained the Lions club yesterday at the regular meeting, telling of the opportunities for capital investment in South America and the conditions as they exist in those countries.

Lewis dwelled mostly on the country of Colombia, describing it as "one of the richest in undeveloped resources in the world and during the last 30 or 40 years has made wonderful strides." He described the wonderful feats of engineering that have been completed and attributed much of the progress to American capitalists and engineers who have taken over the development work.

Lewis declared that air travel was rapidly being accepted as a means of overcoming the slow travel down the rivers. Railroads are being developed at a fast rate and the increase of motor cars is making it necessary to improve the highways, Lewis pointed out. He declared, however, that the cost of importing a motor car and the high price of gasoline restricted the use of cars to the richest classes.

Lewis told of the trip from start to finish and illustrated his talk with large maps made by himself. He used a shark's backbone for a pointer and had several exhibits to pass around.

Miss Ola Holloway, director of musical organizations in the city schools of Montebello, favored with two vocal solos. She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Jess Coe. C. W. Coffey acted as program chairman for the meeting.

NOTED NAMES COLLECTED BY L. S. PARMENTER

ORANGE, Aug. 28.—For 30 years connected with the Flushing (N. Y.) Evening Journal, Lester S. Parmenter, retired newspaperman living at 291 North Glassell street, took every opportunity to collect famous autographs and as a result, has some old as well as valuable signatures.

His collection, which is partly framed, dates back to the Civil war and contains the names of presidents, generals, governors, lawyers and government officials. Parmenter attended banquets in New York and vicinity to which the notables were invited and received the signature and short sentiment from each visiting dignitary. About 20 years ago, he framed the best of his collection.

The oldest name is that of Edwin Booth, brother of John Wilkes Booth, assassin of President Lincoln. Parmenter declared that very few signatures of Edwin Booth were ever made and it is doubtful if any were saved. Another old name is that of Major General William T. Hancock, of Civil war fame, who signed in 1862 for Parmenter.

Some of the other names in the collection are those of Bishop Henry C. Potter of New York, William Jennings Bryan, Carter H. Harrison, former mayor of Chicago; Nelson A. Miles, lieutenant general of the United States army; President Grover Cleveland, Joseph A. Hawley, senator from Utah; Admiral George Dewey, William H. Hunt, governor of the Philippine islands; Mark Twain, William W. Cocks, famous congressman from New York City and pallbearer and close friend of President Theodore Roosevelt; Richard M. Grout, former controller of the city of New York; President William Taft, Governor Benjamin O'Dell of New York; H. C. Davis, friend and associate of William Jennings Bryan; Admiral W. S. Schley, rear admiral in the Spanish-American war.

Alton B. Parker, opponent of William McKinley for president; Herman Metz, former controller of the city of New York; Bloodgood H. Cutter, Long Island farmer poet, who accompanied Mark Twain on his trip that inspired "Innocents Abroad;" Thomas C. Platt, New York governor and political boss; President Theodore Roosevelt, Joe Cannon, famous speaker of the house; Sen. H. M. Teller, Chauncey M. Depew, financier, and John Hay, secretary of state for Roosevelt and Taft.

Parmenter has some very interesting and historic records, showing that ancestors of his mother, Mrs. Julia A. Abell, came to this country in 1640 and settled in Salem, Mass. The Baltimore Sun, one of the oldest and outstanding papers in the country, was established by the Abell family. Parmenter also has certified records showing that Thomas Abell was executed in London Square in 1540 for his religious faith. He was a high official in the court of Henry VIII.

Parmenter came to Orange in 1923 for the first time and settled here permanently in 1927, living with his sister at 291 North Glassell street. When John H. Ridenour, publisher of the Flushing Evening Journal, visited here in August, 1927, Parmenter brought him to The Register building to watch the installation of the press.

POLICE CHIEF, CITIZENS CHASE EL MODENA MAN

ORANGE, Aug. 28.—There was much excitement in Orange yesterday afternoon when Police Chief B. F. Richards was forced to fire two shots at a fleeing man who was reported to be trying to break into a house at 141 West Palm street.

Richards was called to the house about 3 p. m. and responded at once. When he drove up, a young man was trying to break open the door. Upon seeing Richards, he ran up the street before the police chief could catch him. Richards circled the block in his machine and saw the man dodge into Workman's garage at Palm and Glassell street.

When Richards entered the garage, the man again outran Richards, and two shots into the side of the garage to scare the fleeing man only made him run faster. Walter Pixley and Louis Frontefer saw the chase and caught the man, who was then handcuffed and brought back to the police station.

An investigation showed that the man was a resident of El Modena who had been confined to an institution for the feeble minded. He returned to Orange and was reported to be trying to enter the home of his aunt. He was returned to his home about 5 p. m.

ROBBED ON TROLLEY

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—(UP)—An enterprising gunman, whose motto might well be "Don't inconvenience your victims," robbed Harry E. Bradley, an insurance broker, while Bradley was riding on a street car. Seating himself next to the insurance man, the robber thrust a gun concealed in a newspaper against Bradley's side, and demanded his money. Bradley handed over $9, and the robber quietly left the street car at its next stop.

Piles Go Quick

Piles are caused by congestion of blood in the lower bowel. Only an internal remedy can remove the cause. That's why salves and cutting fail. Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, succeeds, because it relieves this congestion and strengthens the affected parts. Hem-Roid has given quick, safe and lasting relief to thousands of Pile sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. McCoy's Drug Stores and druggists everywhere sell Hem-Roid with this guarantee.—Adv.

Colton Club Has Fine Record; Will Extend Stars

CORNELIUS AND BOTTS TO HURL OPENER FRIDAY

Hubert Finlay, manager of the Colton Reds, the team which begins the Southern California Night Baseball association pennant series here tomorrow, Friday night, claims he has a nine without a single star.

The Inland Empire fans, who have given loyal support to the Reds througout the season whether the team is at home or traveling, prefer to feel that Finlay sticks his tongue in his cheek when soberly refusing to pin any extra labels on at least a few of his players.

Venn Botts, a tall thin youth who is the first ranking pitcher of the Colton team, not only holds the best record in the league but generally is conceded to be the top-notch hurler of the American division. This should entitle him to more than passing recognition if stars get any rating. He delivers a fast ball which hops when he is right, but works with an occasional change of pace.

It is understood here that Finlay definitely has assigned Botts to work the first game of the series. He will face Joe Cornelius, the Santa Ana "iron man" who outpitched the two ace moundsmen of Whittier in the National Night league's titular playoff last week.

Of the Colton infield, Ray Shaddox, a pudgy third-sacker who is a quiet lad, and a speedy and heady fielder, has played his way into the warm heart of the fans. Only a few of the players at the far corner in the American division can hold a candle to him.

On first base is the slugger of the Reds. National league boosters who saw the Riverside-Whittier series last year will remember Jack Stone as the rather large first sacker for the Riverside crew. His brother, Bob, plays behind the plate. Jack pulled down an unweildly batting average during both halves of the season, and was in fact one of the few Reds to better the .300 mark consistently.

The American league champions are not put down as a hard-hitting team, but they have delivered in the pinches to win 22 out of 24 league contests, losing one of another dozen exhibition games. They have pulled many a game out of the fire and seldom crack in the field. Which results count with the club's manager, even if he gives them to believe that none of them is a star either with the slim willow or on the short diamond.

Hanegan at shortstop and Stock at second base complete the infield. The former is consistent in his playing, but occasionally turns in sparkling plays, while Stock, a midget, is the dash of the infield and a daring base runner.

Botts will get the call to go to the mound against the Stars Friday night and in reserve will be Montgomery, a less experienced pitcher who has been as successful against some of the teams in the inland league as Botts. He specializes in the familiar "raise" ball.

Whether there is any difference in the class of the type of ball played in the American and National divisions could be argued without decision, as the winners of a league can be depended on to be pretty good, and then, too, anything happens in ite ball.

Colton has not lost a game this year, however, to Riverside, the title nine of last year and a team

Camera Catches High Spots In The Day's Sporting News

With the passing of Phil Scott, another young Britisher will attempt a ring campaign in this country. He is John Pettifer, below, 21-year-old Londoner weighing over 200 pounds, standing six feet seven inches tall and having a reach of 82 inches. Pettifer will sail to America to fight in October.

When "Hack" Wilson, who is battling Babe Ruth for home run honors this year, hits the ball, it stays hit. Wilson, whose four-base blows in the National league are knocking existing records for a row of tenpins, is shown here lifting the apple to remote regions during the Cubs-Giants series at Wrigley field, Chicago.

Here is Jean Borotra, the "Bounding Basque," who will take part in the national tennis championship tournament at Forest Hills in September.

The season's best fish story can be told by Richard Hockaday, below, of Point Isabel, Texas, who landed a tarpon bigger and heavier than himself. The tarpon measured five feet one inch in length and weighed 115 pounds. The 65-pound youngster had to battle the giant fish more than one hour.

34 ROUNDS ON DELHI BOXING CARD TONIGHT

Thirty-four rounds of boxing are on the card at the Orange County Athletic club tonight.

Promoter Henry T. Foust's second big "bargain bill" of the month shows all big men, heavyweights, middleweights and welterweights. Action, rather than speed, is promised.

In accordance with the policy Foust has had in effect at Delhi for several weeks, women will be admitted free if accompanied by escorts with tickets to the reserved sections.

TONIGHT'S CARD

Jack Haywood vs. Vic Pertley, 200 pounds, six rounds.

Frank Rudzinski vs. Leroy Haynes, 190 pounds, six rounds.

Jack Dunseith vs. Glen Thompson, 175 pounds, four rounds.

Max Hernandez vs. John Todd, 160 pounds, four rounds.

Getsell Hood vs. Eddie Reinhart, 175 pounds, four rounds.

Many new faces appear on the program and this feature should help swell the attendance.

Jack Haywood, a 200-pound Pasadena ..egro, faces Vic Pertley, promising young Los Angeles heavyweight, in the six-round main event. Haywood is a top-heavy favorite to win, possibly by a quick knockout. Haywood has been mingling in faster company than the Pertleys and figures to win unless Vic crashes over a lucky punch. All big men can sock so Pertley can't be denied an outside chance.

WILSON, RUTH IN BATTLE FOR HOMER HONORS

By DAVIS J. WALSH
(I. N. S. Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—It's all over. There is nothing more to be done. Disaster stares full in the man's resolute visage. New York has decided that "Hack" Wilson, having hit 44 home runs to create a National league record, will live to hit no more of them once they get him out of Chicago for the rest of the season.

Publicly, Mr. B. Ruth, whose dominion is thus assailed for the first time in four years, takes a most singular stand. He stoutly maintains that Wilson is a great hitter. Privately, however, it is understood that Mr. Ruth is somewhat more interesting. He, too, is believed to feel that Lewis Robert Wilson will stop like an exclamation point when he hits the cement with the Cubs for the month of September.

Wilson Hard to Figure

I suspect that in this case Mr. Ruth is taking the wholly pardonable stand that, of any two home run hitters, he likes himself the best and, at that, I don't say the local sharpshooters are wrong about Wilson. All I say is that anybody who thinks he is right about Wilson is liable to be wrong. The man violates almost every precept of behavior.

He is a right hand hitter, yet he hits to right field where the home runs grow. He is what the ball players call a "loner," i. e., a gentleman who prefers company, provided it is his own; yet he is very popular with the ball club.

In appearance, he is a sort of daschund on two legs, yet those grotesque legs carry him very rapidly and not ungracefully over the ground; for 24 hours several years ago, he went around smiting random Cincinnati players on the mustache; yet they say he is a peaceful, even docile, man.

Wilson Hits 'Em at Home

So I contend that, if Wilson has hit only 16 of his 44 home runs outside Chicago, it doesn't necessarily signify that he won't hit a dozen or so on the road this time, just to be contrary. Mr. Wilson is very much like that. It behooves him, of course, to keep moving right along the line of march, for Ruth hasn't hit one in so long that steps may be taken to declare a legal holiday to commemorate the last occasion.

There is nobody more sinister than a Mr. Ruth who is overdue with an epidemic of home runs. He was on his way to a new record late in June when he flung himself gallantly into the screen at the Yankee stadium and almost forgot to bring his thumb back with him. He finally saved the thumb but lost the nail and the record. Unable to grip his bat, he hasn't hit a loud foul since then, as the records prove. These show that he had 30 when he was injured. Today, two months later, he has 44.

Babe's Hand Better

But the hand was almost better when he left for Washington yesterday and now he is ready to come with a rush like he did in 1927 when he hit his record 60 for the season. This, it might be mentioned, was the year in which Gehrig came forward to challenge his monopoly, much as Wilson is doing today. However, Gehrig stopped in the stretch and, in spite of what they say about the man's road record, I am not so sure that Wilson will do the same.

He still has eight games left in Chicago. He has three each in New York and Brooklyn, where the fences are short, and four in Phil-

(International News Service Sports Writers)

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 28.—That slim aristocrat of the seas, Enterprise, has been selected to represent the United States in the battle for the America's cup. Out of a collection of four sloops, she has been named as the most likely to defeat Sir Thomas Lipton's fifth Shamrock, challenger for the cup.

The abrupt action of the America's cup defense committee last night is very likely to turn up a most awful uproar here today. It is quite without precedent in the history of the America's cup history which stretches back across a span of 79 years.

Never in the history of the America's cup, dating from 1851, has any such sumptuary action been taken by a defense committee. In yachting circles here, the news could not be believed when it was announced in a brief and formal sentence signed by George Cormack, secretary of the America's cup committee.

The statement simply said that Enterprise had been selected to meet Shamrock V in defense of the America's cup.

This simple statement eliminates the J. P. Morgan sloop Weetamoe, sailed by Morgan's son-in-law, George Nichols. It sends to the scrap heap the hope of all New England, Yankee, which has been sailed by Secretary Adams of the U. S. navy and Whirlwind, the only wooden boat of the fleet.

And as a consequence there will be a lot of pointed questions asked today by the skippers of the discarded contenders. They may be questions the defense committee will find hard to answer.

WEST WINDS

Here and There in Local Sport

Colton is ready for any kind of an attack that Santa Ana may employ in the forthcoming series for the night baseball championship of Southern California. The Railroaders or Reds, as they are called by inland newspapers, have been scouting the Stars and rather expect Herb Salveson's henchmen to bunt-bunt-bunt to start their disturbances. What the other fellow thinks and feels is always interesting at a time like this and I am taking the liberty of quoting from the sports page of the Colton Courier, to wit:

Roger L. Shipley, manager of Joe Goeders, Santa Ana light heavyweight, has a reasonable explanation for Goeders' somewhat lackadaisical showing against Joe Bitto at Hollywood last Friday.

Goeders broke his hand in the fourth round.

X-ray pictures, taken by a Santa Ana physician, revealed a clean break. Joe has his duke in a cast now and Shipley has canceled prospective engagements for the hard-hitting heavy worth hundreds of dollars.

Goeders was signed to fight the main event at Wilmington next week.

Shipley and Goeders will loaf at Shipley's ranch for several weeks before Goeders again attempts to go postward hereabouts.

Jack Walker says he is ready to get rid of his two disgruntled fighters, Joe Reese and Jimmie Rivers.

He says he will sell the paper on either welterweight for $100.

Walker "went to bat" when Reese boxed Zenaydo Chavez here recently and proved that his contract for Reese's services was valid. Reese had "jumped" on Walker but Jack protested to the state boxing commission which tied up the youngster's purse. Walker eventually got his manager's "cut."

Reese's contract expires in January but Rivers' runs until 1931.

With Reese and Rivers at "outs" with him, Walker now has only one fighter on his string. Romeo Lemon has stuck faithfully by the husky little Englishman through thick and thin. Walker has signed "Romy" to fight Bert Sampson in a main event at Wilmington Wednesday.

RECORD CROWD FOR BIG GAME DUE TOMORROW

That another bumper crowd will jam the Bowl tomorrow night for the opening game of the Santa Ana-Colton championship series was certain today when the last seat in the permanent bleacher sections was sold.

Approximately 1500 tickets were disposed of here less than two days after they were put on the market. Six hundred tickets were shipped to Colton and some of these may be returned. If so they will be available at the main gate of the park before game-time.

No attempt will be made to reserve the "new" bleachers, the temporary stands that were installed along the left and right field lines before the Whittier game last week. These will accommodate more than 1000 fans who must file into the plant on the ' 'first come—first served" plan.

Officials of the Santa Ana club maintain there never has been so much interest displayed in a baseball game here. Glad to shell out an extra dime for the privilege of securing reservations, the fans yesterday simply swarmed into the El Corral service station and Baker's bakery, ticket headquarters, in their mad quest for ducats. The rush was greater than ever experienced before, salesmen said.

Manager Herb Salveson will be able to use his regular lineup in the Friday affair. Wayne Nelson's trick shoulder, which went out on him last Sunday, is feeling much better and Nelson will be able to take his usual place in center field. This will allow Leavitt Daley to return to second base.

Joe Cornelius has been selected to pitch the opener against Colton but if he wins the first game it is understood that Ray Price will get a chance at the Railroaders in the second set-to Tuesday at Colton.

DOEG, LOTT OPPOSE TILDEN AND HUNTER

CHESTNUT HILL, Mass., Aug. 28.—The national men's tennis doubles championship advanced to the semi-final round here today with the four top seeded combinations still in the fight.

A limping Bill Tilden, paired with another veteran, Francis T. Hunter of New Rochelle, N. Y., sought to reach the eighth national doubles final in which he has figured in 12 years. In his way stood the defending champions, George M. Lott, Chicago, and John H. Doeg, Santa Monica, Calif.

Tilden has shared five times in national doubles victories and twice has been runner-up. This year he is handicapped both by an injury and the youth of his opponents. His advance through the early rounds was marked largely by a tendency to depend on Hunter for court coverage.

INLAND ELEVEN MAY GET OPEN SCHEDULE DATE

BY GRIDDER

Coach "Tex" Oliver was sick today—but not too ill to talk football with an inquisitive reporter who was anxious to know the when, where, how and why about this football season just around the bend in the road.

The imperturbable counsellor of Santa Ana's high school eleven is just shaking off the effects of an attack of quinsy, in other words a good old-fashioned inflammation of the throat that cost the coach 10 pounds in weight, but he was able to whisper a few phrases worth digesting along with the succotash tonight.

Saint football candidates will report to Oliver at Poly field one week from today, Thursday, September 4.

Anxious To Meet Newcomers

That was the mentor's choicest morsel of information.

The vanguard of the high school's 1930 machine will assemble in Andrews gymnasium at 3 p. m. Oliver is especially anxious to meet non-varsity men, and new boys in the city. He feels these will benefit more by the week of individual attention than the more experienced lettermen who, however, are expected to report, too, if possible.

Practice will proceed daily from next Thursday on through the long, gruelling championship season which will not end until Thanksgiving Day—and not then if the Saints are fortunate enough to win their league.

The one and only open date on the Santa Ana schedule, that of Saturday, October 4, probably will be filled by San Bernardino high school.

The inland management has asked Oliver for the date and the coach has virtually decided to complete arrangements for the practice skirmish which would be the last before the locals open their conference campaign at Long Beach October 11 against Woodrow Wilson high school, a new member of the Coast Preparatory league.

Saints Play Orange, Tustin

The Saints will open against Orange and Tustin, members of the Orange league, away from home . Oliver plans to play one of the games on Friday, September 26, the other on Saturday, the 27th. The whole squad will be divided for these encounters, the "irregulars" playing Tustin in what will be little more than a scrimmage for both clubs.

Captain Al Reboin and Harold Pangle, veteran aces of the Saint backfield, are both in great shape for the impending season and anxious to don the moleskins again.

Reboin and Pangle will be playing their third year for Santa Ana this semester. Reboin has been working in a local ice plant all summer. Pangle has been employed in the construction of the Newport Beach high school. Both athletes are as hard as nails and ready for the gong.

PROBE CHARGES HUDKINS, M'VEY IN FAKE FIGHT

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28.—Fistic fans here awaited with interest today the outcome of a meeting of the state athletic commission in San Francisco at which the Ace Hudkins-Jack McVey fiasco of Tuesday night will be aired.

The commission had before it a candid report from Lieut. Jack Kennedy of the United States navy, who refereed the bout here and threw the men out of the ring just before it was to end in the tenth round. Kennedy said the men stalled practically the whole time and held numerous conversations with each other.

Supporting his charge that the bout appeared prearranged, Kennedy said he heard McVey say to Hudkins in the ninth round, "This is your round, kid." Then, Kennedy said, McVey took a light tap and rolled over for an eight count.

Hudkins lost a $3027 purse for his part in the affair and McVey lost $1295. The money will go to the commission and eventually for war veterans' relief work in the state.

Laguna Council Fails To Act On Improvements

PETITION WITH 80 NAMES ASKS EARLY ACTION

LAGUNA BEACH, Aug. 28.—No action was taken on the Cliffs streets last night, despite a petition bearing nearly 80 names urging that the council award a contract. Following the reading of the petition by City Clerk George W. Prior, Councilman Maurice B. McMillan moved that all bids rejected for the public good. No second was received and Councilman Frank B. Champion moved that the low bid be accepted and the contract awarded. Councilman R. L. McCrea seconded the motion, but in the roll call vote, Councilmen McMillan, C. R. Clapp and Mayor J. E. Bishop opposed.

The petition itself was filed on a motion made by McMillan, supported by Clapp and Mayor Bishop, McCrea and Champion, failing in their endeavor to have the petition granted. Later the petition was returned to those who presented it, Roy M. Ropp and George E. Thompson, when Arthur M. Ellis, attorney for the city for improvement work, pointed out that it would be unfair to withhold this petition while permitting an opposition one to be circulated.

H. W. Read asked, by letter, that prompt action be taken on the streets in getting improvements under way. George R. Wells, owner of property on the Cliffs, told the council that he was familiar with the plans and specifications, is a contractor, and considered the plans good and that they should be used. He thought the cost not great and construed the council's vote as negative and therefore a mistake. He asserted that macadam work done in the winter was not so good as that done during dry weather.

The argument regarding the desirability of taking early action on the bids was renewed, with G. E. Thompson, Roy Ropp, Councilman Clapp and Mayor Bishop participating.

Councilman McCrea thought that those opposed to the work, referred to by Mayor Bishop, should present their reasons in some form. The mayor had referred to what he characterized as a "whale of a minority," which he said was opposed to the work going forward on any of the bids offered. Mr. Ropp said he had encountered only six or seven who declined to sign the petition.

Ed Hofer was cheered by many present when he said that if he were on the council and had received a petition as strong as the one filed he would vote for improvements. He said he did not understand why the council refused to take action without giving reason.

H. R. Armstrong, following, said he wanted to improve his place and get some pleasure out of it, that no improvement was likely to go through without opposition of some kind, and that action should not be deferred because of possible opposition.

Mr. Ellis said it was the only case of this kind he had encountered in 25 years of legal work, that the council could pass a resolution to abandon proceedings, but if not desiring to do that they could consider that they were taking more time for consideration and need take no action if they did not want to at present. The matter was finally laid over to next Wednenday.

Following the meeting, Thompson and Ropp, active in getting signatures for the petition, made it known that they would go after additional names and urged interested persons to see them at their offices and sign.

A new card table has been given a hinged top, the under-side of which, when lifted, forms a screen for a home motion picture projector.

Pier Repair Crews Make Progress In Huntington Beach

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 28.—The pier repair job crews are well toward the end of the pier with their repair work and they work when the waves and the tides permit. In putting on the collars to hold gunite, it is necessary to work when there is no danger of waves or high tide sweeping the wet gunite away. It takes but a few minutes for the gunite to set, 15 minutes to be exact, but when the waves are running high, a "captain" may blow by any minute that will reach up and move a new laid cement job, like moving sand off the beach.

The mechanics with the cement guns watch the waves and the tides and when they can work they get busy. Then when the tide comes in or the tide wind comes up and the waves run high, they stop work until conditions are normal again. The work from now until the end of the pier is reached will move a little slower than it did on the section of the pier nearest the shore line. But the contractors are making good progress and are several days ahead of their schedule.

NEW LA HABRA TEACHERS FOR TERM LISTED

LA HABRA, Aug. 28.—Work is progressing satisfactorily on additions to the three local schools. The work was started this summer at a cost of $60,000. Two of the schools, the Lincoln and Wilson, are expected to be ready for occupany by the opening of school, September 15.

The largest building at the Washington school wil not be completed until the middle of October or the first of November.

The following assignment of teachers has been selected by Superintendent E. R. Berry to serve for the coming year, subject to a few possible changes: Washington school, kindergarten, Miss Charlotte Hewitt; first grade, Mrs. Buelah Wagner and Miss Dorothy Townsend; second grade, Mrs. Ann Marsh and Miss Hazel Tilson; third grade, Miss Mollie Steinberg and Mrs. Carrie Glazier; fourth grade, Miss Avis Elder and Mrs. Jane Stephens; fifth grade, Miss Ruth Dickey; sixth grade, Miss Ruth Lana; seventh grade, Miss Gertrude Beam and Raymond Wright; eighth grade, Mrs. Margaret West.

Robert McCarter will be principal of the school and will teach manual training and physical education. Miss Ruth Dickey will teach penmanship; Miss Ruth Lena, departmental history; Miss Gertrude Beam, departmental English; Raymond Wright, physical education and geography; Joe Severns, mathematics; and Mrs. Margaret West, departmental reading.

Mrs. Alta Proud will be principal again this year at the Lincoln school. Other teachers will be Miss Linn Sholes, kindergarten; Miss Lillian Milligan, first grade; Mrs. Evelyn Treff, second grade; Miss Dorothy Drew, third grade; Miss Eleanor Maryott, fourth grade; and Miss Leah Felton, fifth grade.

Special supervisors will be Frank Barrow, music, assisted by Mrs. Ann Marsh; art, Mrs. Louraine Tummond, assisted by Miss Hazel Tilson; office work and home economics, Mrs. Marion Hayes.

CHECK SCHEME WARNING GIVEN COUNTY STORES

NEWPORT-BALBOA, Aug. 28.—Merchants and other business persons in Orange county are warned against counterfeit coins and bogus check schemes, and it was stated that beach business places should be particularly careful during the coming Labor day week-end.

Counterfeit silver dollars have been circulated here, several merchants being victimized during the past few days, according to reports. Charles A. Goldberg received two of the spurious coins.

Charles H. Way, Balboa merchant, told members of the Exchange club yesterday about a check scheme which failed in the case in which he was the intended victim, but which might be tried on anyone.

The check artist telephoned the Way store, using the name of one of his well known customers and asked that a check for $40 be cashed, explaining that the cash was needed for a game. The clerk who answered the phone was asked to bring a deck of cards, taking the price of the cards out of the check and to bring both the cards and the rest in cash over to the address given.

Way became suspicious as the customer was not in the habit of putting through such transactions, and he telephoned the party that he would have to come to the store personally for the required service. Apparently the check artist also became suspicious, as he did not show up. Had he done so a police officer would have been there also.

Chief of Police Hodgkinson gave another instance of a check artist, who, it was found, was wanted in no fewer than 57 other places in Southern California alone. He is still loose, as far as known. His scheme is to come into a store, with working clothes on, buy some article, asking that it be delivered at a fictitious address, and give a check, getting part of it in cash.

La Habra School Superintendent To Change Schedules

LA HABRA, Aug. 28.—Several changes in the school schedule will be made this year by E. M. Berry, superintendent of schools. Some of the methods which will be tried out this year in an experimental way are original as outlined by the school head.

The new scheme will work into a junior high school plan as far as possible with available equipment and will include vocational work for the seventh and eighth grades with a chance for selective work at a certain period each week for the subject in which the pupil is most interested, and at which time he will be allowed several weeks course of study.

With the completion of the enlargement of the school buildings many of the conjested conditions of the past year will be eliminated.

NEW OIL WELL SCHEDULED IN FIELD AT H. B.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 28.—There is one new well projected in the field this week. The Richfield Oil company has put in the derrick foundation for a third well on the Wieter Goeley lease at Garfield and Huntington. The new well will offset the Rex Oil company well across the street, which is really not a well yet as it is still drilling. Richfield owed the Dieter-Goeley lease another well, and so is fulfilling its offset requirements and lease requirements at the same time.

The lease comprises 10 acres and was formerly known as the Arnold lease. It was drilled and the well pronounced a failure. The casing in the old hole was sold and in pulling the casing the old well started flowing. Efforts were made to bring it in at 3500 feet and near 4000 feet, but no oil was found. Drillers always maintained the oil came from around 2600 feet. Six years later the Richfield found a 2600-foot sand on the place that now contains two wells with a third well drilling. The sand is good for around 100 barrels a day. The Rex company is after the sand adjoining the Richfield lease on the east.

The Indian Oil company is successfully operating the old Wellington property in the Garfield street addition. This is one of the well located small leases in the section of the field. It has been a steady producer since the early history of the field. The Indian Oil company, is a San Francisco firm. A good price was paid for the Wellington property with its two fairly good producing wells, it is said. The Indian also holds the D. O. Stewart lease on the east side and is one of the strong independent companies that has been quietly taking over leases and wells in the Huntington Beach field. If a deep sand is discovered here, the companies which have taken holdings in the field during a period of depression in the oil industry will profit enormously through their holdings, it is pointed out.

It is unofficially reported here that the Standard has purchased six million barrels of storage oil from the Richfield, together with the storage tanks, located near the Lomita field, and a part of the big crude supply taken over by the Richfield when it bought the Pan American Western from the Doheny interests. This is one of the largest crude oil deals in California for the past two years, if the report is correct.

J. B. Smith has leased 50 feet of frontage on Eighteenth street between Walnut and Ocean for a bonus of $750 cash and $75 a month rent. The lease carries one-sixth royalty and is held by a Long Beach group of speculators. They can hold the lease at their option without drilling until a sand is discovered below 5000 feet in depth, after which drilling must start on the Smith lease within 30 days. This is the highest price yet reported for a two-lot lease in the west end town lot section.

Superior Oil company has set casing on the W. I. Jones lease at Twenty-second and Ocean in the well being redrilled there and being directed out under the ocean. The present cement job will protect the 4000 foot sand from which many wells in that section are producing. The Jones well was announced as a deep test, but it may be brought in from the present depth.

Superior has moved a large amount of well drilling equipment and general oil field equipment to its yards on Main street near Eleventh street. Oil men in the field hope the activity on the part of the Superior may mean an extensive development campaign here. Superior has been remarkably successful in Huntington Beach. The King Gillette community leases and individual leases taken over by Superior, proving highly productive. Gillette made a profit on the sale of the leases to Superior, but lost an oil fortune by not developing the leases himself, it is said.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 28.—The operator of a rabbit farm, whose customers included several Huntington Beach meat markets, is being sought by the sheriff's office and the Huntington Beach police on a charge of issuing fraudulent checks. Another building houses the High-by shoe repair shop and the third building is occupied by Ye Art and Style shop.

HARBOR PLANS DISCUSSED AT CLUB SESSION

NEWPORT-BALBOA, Aug. 28.—Steps taken by the city council and the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce to improve the inside harbor and make it available for more boats during such events as the recent Pacific Coast championship yacht regattas, held here, were told to members of the Newport Beach Exchange club at their weekly session yesterday noon at the Yacht club, by M. S. Robinson, harbor master.

Robinson said that the recently appointed special committee had taken a trip over the bay and would suggest several things to the city council. The committee was named chiefly to see what can be done about greater mooring facilities in the bay, the number of new boats coming here this season showing that more room and more anchorage will be a necessity before another summer season.

The committee consists of City Councilmen Lloyd Claire and A. J. Garfield, Frank L. Smith and J. B. McNally, chamber of commerce representatives, City Engineer R. L. Patterson and Robinson.

It was also stated at the meeting that the chamber is working with city and county officials toward having the state law amended so that boats here can be taxed by the city and county. At present they can be assessed and taxed only at port of entry where registered.

H. O. Ensign, school principal, who recently returned from a trip to New Orleans, said that the schools of this city and county were as good as any in the country. He announced that school here would begin Wednesday, September, Admission day, coming September 9.

Charles H. Way, Balboa merchant, and Chief of Police Hodgkinson, president of the club, told of efforts of would-be check artists to defraud merchants here had been foiled.

The status of the proposed viaduct at the Arches crossing was told by City Engineer Patterson and J. P. Greeley.

SAN CLEMENTE GIVEN PRAISE BY HOTEL MAN

SAN CLEMENTE, Aug. 28.—"Here in California where so many hotels exist on seasonable business, the hotel man is on the lookout for a place where an all-around year business can be established. And I think that San Clemente has all the qualifications of such a location."

This was the opinion expressed by Walter Raymond, proprietor of the Hotel Raymond in Pasadena, which opens December 27. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond have been spending the past few weeks in the Spanish village, resting and preparing for their winter work.

"Having visited all the coast section, having grown up in the hotel business in California, when Pasadena was a village of 1500 people and Los Angeles a city of 15,000, I was anxious to see what Ole Hanson had done at San Clemente," Raymond said. "And I think he has built well. Here he has taken climate, historical background and environment and built a city that is one of the show places of the coast. I see no reason why this city should not support many famous hotels in the year's to come. You have everything that the seeker of rest is after."

CHORUS CLASS PLANNED FOR BEACH SCHOOL

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 28.—The Huntington Beach union high school board of education has decided to conduct a vocal class in chorus singing for men, taking over at the invitation of the newly organized male chorus, that organization as the first unit of the new departure in adult education. A committee representing the chamber of commerce and the Men's Glee club will enlist new members of the singing chorus from every part of the high school district and it is expected the class will approximate 50 members before the end of the season. Lloyd Hamren, history teacher at the high school, has been largely instrumental in signing new members of the glee club.

CHAPTER 24

The camera men had set up their tripods between the table and the door to the judge's chambers. As if they were taking some bizarre oath, each right hand was lifted, holding aloft the handle of a small metal trough of flashlight powder. The square black boxes were all turned in one direction, focussed on the face of Aline Everett.

The bailiff tiptoed across the room with a dripping paper cup filled with water, which he placed on the table close to her hand. But she pushed it aside with a brusque gesture of refusal.

"Now boys, if you don't want to be fined for contempt of court, remember—just one flash, and wait till the verdict's rendered," the judge gave the warning over his shoulder as he mounted the steps to the bench.

"Down in front there—your head's in the way!" Andrews commanded in a stage whisper, and Peter obediently ducked.

"The foreman will read the verdict."

An old man in the front row arose slowly, cleared his throat, and drew a spectacle case from his pocket. With extreme deliberation he opened the spectacles and adjusted them across his nose. Even with the glasses in place, he read haltingly, with the embarrassment of one unaccustomed to hearing his own voice in public.

The roar of many waters was in Aline's ears, beating her down—a Niagara of sound, in which words were indistinguishable. Her fingers gripped the edge of the table before her. It was like struggling to hold on to consciousness under ether. It was a whirling down and down into emptiness. But there was something she must hear—something they were about to do to her—

Then, through the smothering welter in which she fought for breath, her mouth felt suddenly cold and wet. The bailiff, leaning over her shoulder, was spilling the water which he held to her lips. Thin and clear and very slow a far away voice was saying: "We, the jury, find the defendant—not guilty!"

With the simultaneous explosion of the flashlights in her ears, the room rocked back into place. But Aline did not look at Max beside her, nor at Travis, who had turned toward her with outstretched hand. With the palms of her hands pressing flat on the table for support, she pulled herself to her feet and stared straight into the faces of the jury. She took a step forward, fumblingly, drawn toward them without consciousness of her own movement, staring at them with wide, dazed eyes. Then suddenly her arms were flung wide in a gesture of bewildered surrender.

The reporters had begun to scramble to their feet at the reading of the verdict, but they stood motionless, caught in the tension of the moment. Travis leaned forward as if to stop her, then sank back as she passed beyond his reach.

"Why," she said in a high clear voice, "I—I don't understand!" Peter thought that he had never seen such sheer amazement on a human face. "You—you had your chance—you hated me—and you didn't take it. You hated me, and yet you were fair to me. I thought you were—stupid!" The tears were streaming down her face now. She brushed at them with impatient fingers, but she did not try to hide them. The strangest thing in all that strange scene was Aline Everett's tear-drenched face turned to the jury without the slightest effort at concealment.

"You didn't do it because you felt sorry for me—I wouldn't let you feel sorry for me! You did it with your minds, because you were just to the woman you could have destroyed if you wanted to—and you must have wanted to. You were fairer to me—than I've ever been to you!"

A woman with straggling gray hair at the end of the front row stepped awkwardly around the railing which hemmed in the jury box. She pulled a handkerchief out of the shabby black bag suspended from her arm, and thrust it into Aline's hand. She hesitated for a moment, as if uncertain of her ground. Then a determined arm encircled Aline's shoulder, and Aline's bowed head was pressed against a calico bosom.

"There, there, dearie. It don't matter what you done—it's all over now."

"My God," Andrews groaned aloud. "What a picture! And the judge wouldn't let us take but one flashlight!"

"Well, that's over," Everts said. "It was a good story while it lasted—but what a town to get stuck in! They ought to arrange these murders with more consideration for the poor laboring man." He turned to Peter, but Peter had already lounged across the room, pausing to whisper a few words in Max's ear. He crossed to Aline and took her gently by the arm.

"I want you to drive to Gray's Flat with me," he said, his lips close to her ear. "The air will do you good. I've got to wire the story of the verdict—and I want to talk to you."

For a moment Aline looked at him as if she had forgotten who he was.

"Oh—it's you," she said when the moment of blankness passed. "Yes—I'll come."

Automatically she opened her bag and reached for lip-stick and powder compact. Then, with a tremulous smile at the woman who still stood with an arm protectively circling Aline's waist, she withdrew her hand empty.

"Your nose really is a mite shiny, and no wonder. Here, take mine!" Mrs. Jenkins extracted a tin box of talcum powder from her reticule. A square of chamois skin was wound around its sprinkler top, secured by an elastic band.

"Oh, thank you so much!" Aline was not smiling now. With a sidewise glance at Peter which dared him to laugh, Aline, whose powder was specially blended to order in the city, smeared the dead white talcum on her face without the aid of a mirror.

Peter waited, jerking with impatience, while she gently pried herself loose from Mrs. Jenkins.

"Come this way," he urged, as he led her out by the side door. "We have got to get away from that bunch of buzzards. They think the story's over, but it's just got off to a good start."

Aline turned obediently, but something in the fatigue of her drooping shoulders touched him.

"I'm sorry," he said gruffly, "but it can't be helped."

"I know," Aline murmured. "I can't give in now. There's a reason why I've simply got to find out who really did kill him. If you can help me, I'll be more than grateful."

"You bet I'll help you," Peter assured her. "Finding out who killed Mortison is 'the fondest thing I'm of,' as an old prospector said to me the other day. His voice was raised to carry above the roar of Bossy's racing engine. "I'm glad you want to carry it through," he added.

"I've got to cary it through," Aline spoke with desperate intensity. "I'm afraid—afraid—" her voice broke.

"There are not many things that can make you afraid," Peter suggested.

"This is more important than the trial. It's been worrying me terribly. I'm afraid that whoever killed Don took my letters with him. Don't you see how awful that would be? It would mean—that it was all for nothing!"

Peter considered a moment.

"I can tell you one thing," he said at last. "There weren't any letters in the lodge . Iwent over it with a fine tooth comb." If she were worried about the loss of the letters, she would do her utmost to give him every help in her power—and the other papers weren't even touching it. They were letting it slip, because their interest in the trial had centered in the defendant, not the victim. With the verdict, they considered the story "dead."

He had the advantage in his hands—the tremendous advantage of her fear. The story came first. Of course it came first! Why, a month ago he hadn't even heard of these people. What did they matter, compared with the Herald? Without the impetus of her fear to make her help him, he might lose out entirely. And then, just as if he had not settled the argument in his own mind, he spoke the words that would relinquish that advantage.

"I think that you are making a mistake," he said, as Bossy swung out into the main road. "If you take my advice, you'll tell your husband how things were between you and Mortison. You haven't anything to be afraid of, really. I couldn't say it of many men, but Max is something out of the ordinary. I think he'd understand."

"You mean—tell him—?"

"Everything," Peter said firmly.

"I—I couldn't!"

"You mean you're afraid to do it?"

"No," Aline said slowly. "I don't mean that. I mean I haven't the right. He'd try to understand, but he couldn't. He's too different. He'd only forgive. And I can't place on him the burden of that forgiveness, just to give myself the relief of telling him. I owe it to him to make him believe that I was worthy of his trust. That's the only thing I can do—and I've got to do it, for his safe!"

"And the letters—you think they may have been taken by the murderer?"

"I don't know. I only know that I've been terrified about them—terrified with the thought that they would be found, and then that they wouldn't. I tell you, I'd gladly have had that jury tonight bring in a verdict of guilty and send me to prison—to the gallows—if in return I could have those letters in my hands and know that Max need never see them!"

Peter, humped over the wheel to peer around the next curve, shrugged his shoulders.

"Well, if you feel that way about it, we'd better get busy," he said. "It's just one more little problem. If we could just get hold of the right end, it would probably all unravel like a chain stitch. But getting hold of the end—there's the rub." His foot pressed the accelerator, taking advantage of a short stretch of straight road ahead.

"By the way, you haven't told me yet what was in the Chinese box," he observed after a thoughtful silence.

"I don't know what that had to do with it either, but I'm sure it's important somehow! It was—"

"I don't want to know yet. I want you to fit it into its proper place. Something tells me we've an awful lot left to learn about Mortison. Suppose you begin by telling me all you know."

RELIC'S PASSING

COLUMBUS, S. C., Aug. 28.—One of the oldest relics in the city is to be pulled down, and it will leave memories with many of the city's residents. It is the old single-story house on Assembly street, one of the last places where cock-fights were held publicly in the country. The house was owned by "Doc" Kraft, a policeman, and when cock-fights were declared illegal, the contests were held in his basement.

NOW!—New and Greater values in Goodyear Tires than ever before!

That headline is strictly true.

Two bed-rock reasons make it true.

One reason is, Goodyear Tires are better right now than they have ever been.

The other reason is, rubber is cheap and consequently Goodyear Tires are available at the lowest prices in history.

People are not slow to seize a chance like this.

They are buying Goodyear Tires at an unparalleled rate.

Their preference for Goodyears rests upon definite Goodyear superiorities in both tread and carcass, the two main parts of a tire.

Now* is the time to get YOURS

The Goodyear All-Weather Tread is superior in traction.

The Goodyear Supertwist Carcass is superior in vitality and long life.

You are not asked to believe these statements without proof.

Any Goodyear Dealer will be glad to demonstrate the facts.

And the great fact certainly is this: More people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind.

That is true of the people who buy new cars.

It is true of people who buy replacement tires from dealers.

It is true of buses which carry passengers—more transcontinental, urban and interurban buses and coaches operate on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind.

It is true also of trucks—more Goodyear Truck Tires are made and sold than any other kind.

Year after year, throughout the world, the number continually increases. Millions more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind.

Junior College To Give Intensive Business Course

TWO TYPES OF CLASSES WILL BE CONDUCTED

In order to meet the demands of the employer for competent office workers, Santa Ana Junior college will introduce this year, two short business training courses. Those wishing to prepare themselves as quickly as possible to get jobs will find these courses short, thorough, practical and free of all tuition, according to George B. Holmes, head of the college commercial department.

A one-year course of a practical character, which will train students to enter employment as stenographers, typists and office clerks will be given. This course will be intensive, and students will be placed in employment whenever they have attained such ability as will enable them to hold jobs satisfactorily, regardless of the time required. Subjects covered in this course will include shorthand, typewriting, bookkeeping, business English, business mathematics, office machines, and office procedure. This course should appeal to those who wish to get on the job without delay, said Holmes. Only essentials will be stressed.

A two-year course is planned, which also will train students to enter employment as stenographers, typists and office clerks. This course will include the same subject as will be found in the one-year course but will enable the student to enroll in other subjects also. Students completing this course will receive the regular college diploma upon graduation.

"This course should appeal to the student who wishes to prepare himself for employment and at the same time take the full two years of college work. It is felt that students completing this course will be sought after to fill the better type of positions due to the fact that they have a complete junior college education as well as the practical training required to fill the job," Holmes stated.

Tuition is free in either course.

Those desiring further information relative to these courses or other courses in commerce may consult Holmes who will be in his office, room 217 Junior college building, from 9 to 12 a. m. daily.

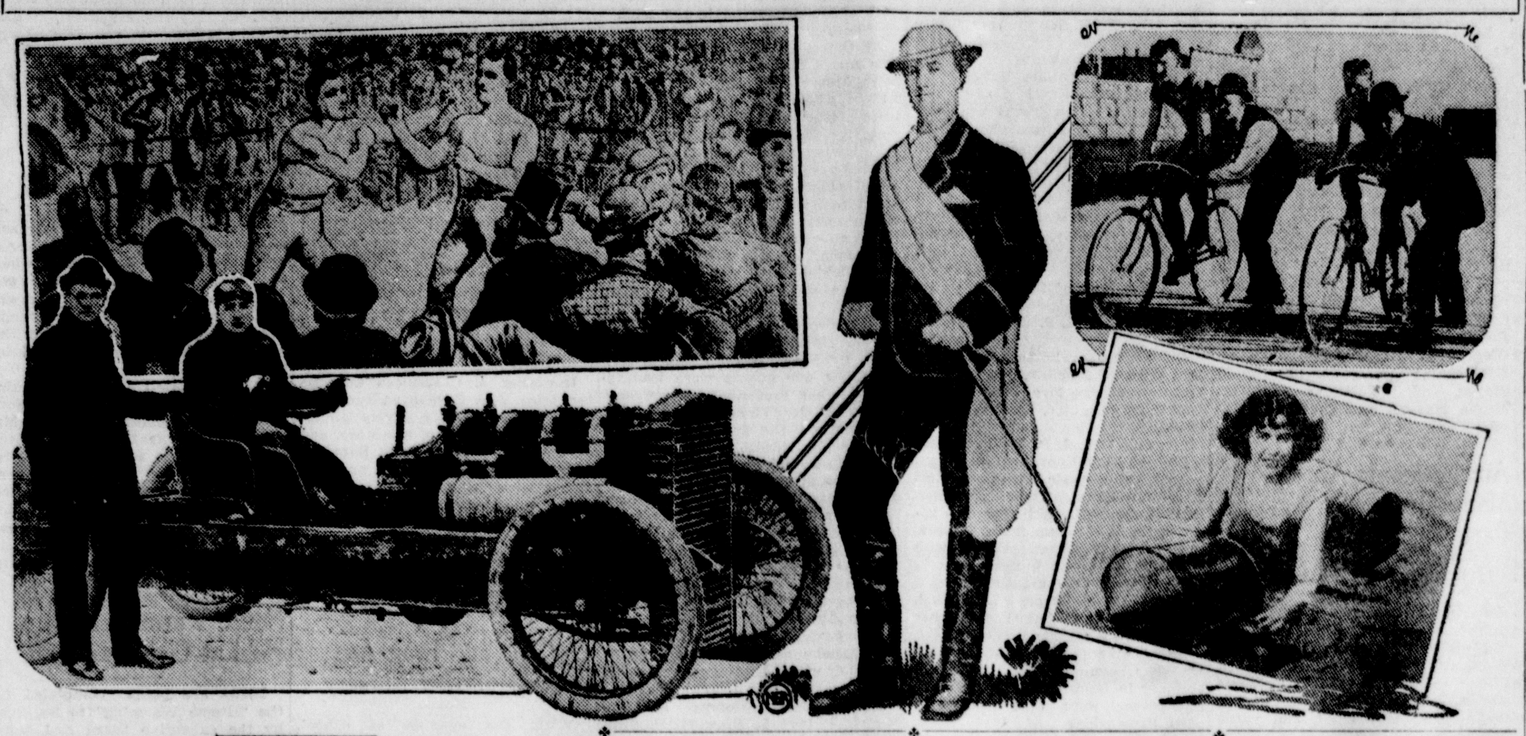
ENDURANCE CONTESTS FOUND FAVOR, EVEN IN 'GOOD OLD DAYS'

In the "good old days" of fights-to-a-finish, when the spectators took time out for meals, fouls were unknown in the boxing game and you could hit your opponent with almost anything except a two-by-four. The old print at the left in the upper part of the picture shows "The Battle of the Giants" between John L. Sullivan and Paddy Ryan in 1882. The photo below at the left shows Barney Oldfield, pioneer race driver, and Henry Ford, who used to be an endurancer too. Twenty-five years ago Oldfield used to burn up dusty roads in the car shown here and Ford also drove it for a world record. The man standing in the center picture was the famous Edward P. Weston, pedestrian par excellence. Having no place to go in his regalia, he walked 500 miles in an endurance contest in a coliseum at Newark, N. J., 50 years ago. The sash helped him—in a walk.

Back in the days of hard-boiled derbies, weeping willow mustaches and free lunch, bicycle riding was all the rage, although at times it was hard to distinguish between the handlebars and the rider's mustache—and here are two of them getting off to a fine start. The little lady is Milly Barrett, forerunner of the channel swimmers, in her water bicycle.



BICYCLE MARATHONS ON LAND AND WATER WERE AMONG FREAK STUNTS STAGED IN LONG AGO

By BERYL MILLER
NEA Service Writer

This endurance craze business isn't anything new—it's just a quaint old American custom.

Tree sitters flagpole sitters, refueling aviators and the like may be having their inning just now, but back in the good old days—or the bad, according to your viewpoint—there were plenty of other stunts that were just as freakish and exhausting.

Times and methods may have changed—but human nature has not.

A half century ago the American public got a thrill when Edward Payson Weston walked 500 miles against time in the old industrial Hall at Newark, N. J. He completed the distance in the amazing time of six days, lacking just 22 minutes.

A few years later came the gruelling six-day bicycle marathons, in which one man rode the entire time. It drew fire of reformers who charged it was inhuman.

Emancipation of woman hadn't really started in 1895, but the fair sex decided to conduct a bike race of their own. Nearly all of them dropped out after the 36-hour mark, but one lass named Frankie Nelson courageously kept on through the entire week, finishing alone after riding the final day in almost a semi-conscious condition.

In 1898, the New York legislature took action to prohibit one man riding more than 12 hours of every 24. The two-man teams, now used in this type of marathon, then made their debut.

Boxing devotees still talk about the old-time "fights to a finish" that lasted until one of the contestants sank to the floor unconscious.

At some of these long bouts, spectators went out for meals, and then came back to witness the remainder of the scrap.

In thel ongest bare-knuckle battle on record in the United States, J. Fitzpatrick and James O'Neil went 4 hours and 40 minutes at Merwick, Me., on Dec. 4, 1860.

Jake Kilrain and John L. Sullivan fought 75 rounds in their famous encounter, each round ending when a man was knocked, fell or was thrown to the ground. Some days, these were.

The first automobiles added another thrilling chapter to the history of endurance stunts in the day of the gold-toothed soubrette and the 20-cent lunch for business men.

Henry Ford, then a struggling young mechanic, and Barney Oldfield, the racing driver, broke world records with their famous "999" racing car in 1902. Ford himself drove the car to a world straightaway record.

Oldfield startled the country when he appeared in the first 24-hour automobile endurance race at Columbus, Ohio, in 1905.

Newspapers in 1910 hailed to 65-mile airplane flight by the late Glenn H. Curtiss from Euclid Beach Park at Cleveland, Ohio, to Cedar Point, Ohio, as one of the greatest feats of the century. It was the longest over-water flight on record at that time.

A girl paddled a "water bicycle" in a freak one-mile race from the Battery to Midland Beach at New York. She was the forerunner of the channel swimmers who monopolized page one of newspapers a few years ago.

A man started to walk backwards from Philadelphia to San Francisco, plodding along holding a mirrior in front of his face to see where he was going.

Another "endurer" went on a long trek through every state in the union pushing a wheel barrow. He traveled 99,986 miles and wore out nine wheels in five years.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hoff of New York wanted to see the world, but their baby daughter seemed a barrier. They put the child in a baby carriage and started shoving it on a three-year jaunt.

C. C. Pyle's coast-to-coast "bunion derbies" revived the almost lost are of running.

Another man received nationwide publicity by pushing a peanut up Pike's Peak with his nose.

COLLEGE GROUP GIVES PROGRAM AT CONFERENCE

A program given by pupils of Laverne college was a feature of a recent afternoon session of the summer conference of Brethren churches of Southern California and Arizona, now being held in this city at the local church of this denomination at the corner of Ross and Camille streets. About 200 delegates are in attendance.

The convention will close Friday evening. Today an educational program was in charge of Harrison A. Frantz. Yesterday afternoon Mrs. C. P. Schaffer and L. Dickey, of La Verne, presided. Lunches and dinners are being served by the women of the church.

An interesting exhibit of Chinese curios and linens is in charge of Miss Eunice Horning, of Long Beach, and was sent to her by her sister, who is a missionary in China. Proceeds from the sale are to go to the mission school.

A legal 8-hour working day and 48-hour week is now in force throughout the entire Republic of Argentina.

FUND CREATED FOR FAMILIES OF PRISONERS

Acting on recommendations that have been made by the judges of the superior court and particularly by Judge James L. Allen, the board of supervisors in the regular weekly session yesterday took action setting up a fund for indigent prisoners. Judge Allen has long contended that some fund should be available from which families of prisoners in the county jail could be paid as a result of the labor of the prisoner, when there was no other means of support for the family.

On a motion by Supervisor Charles Chapman the board set up a fund of $500 for this purpose. Chapman said today in discussing the measure that it was the intention of the board to maintain this fund in the future so long as it was not abused. In this way, a prisoner who refuses to support his family may be sentenced to labor by the court and his earnings paid to the family from this special fund.

The board took action on several other matters during its session yesterday, which was often interrupted as a result of interest in election returns. The supervisors' room was piled high with bags from the 189 precincts in the county containing the ballots and tally sheets, which formed a rampart about the desks of the supervisors.

All bids on supplying tires and tubes for the county fleet of trucks and autos were rejected and ordered re-advertised. The bids were submitted last week.

An appropriation of $3500 to the Orange county fair association was made. The fair will open September 30 this year, a month later than in the past. This money is to come from the advertising fund of the county.

Purchase of certain property in Orange County Water Works district 4, which is the San Juan Capistrano area, was ordered for the use of the district. The value of the property is $10,000.

Furtherance of the proposed new road connecting Buena Park and La Habra took place yesterday with the approval of agreements with the Standard Oil and Murphy Oil companies for rights of way across their holdings in the district to be tranversed by the road.

Other road work that received attention of the board yesterday was in connection with the widening of Alamitos road, the expense of which is to be jointly shared by Los Angeles and Orange counties. An agreement covering the cost of widening the bridge on this road was approved. The total cost of the work is $12,977, of which Orange county will pay half.

Bids were ordered advertised on revised plans for the county garage and storeroom, which is to be constructed at the county yard on East Fruit street, to be opened on September 16. When bids for this work were received previously, the costs ran about $2000 more than the architect's estimates. Plans were ordered revised and the new set will be advertised.

TRAVEL TALKS ARE GIVEN BY SMILEY, KELLY

Members of the local Kiwanis club heard two travel talks yesterday noon at St. Ann's inn. The speakers were D. N. Kelly, local Kiwanian, who told of his trip to the East; and J. A. Smiley, who recently traveled in Egypt.

The purpose of Kelly's trip was primarily to attend an Elks' convention, which was held last month in Atlantic City. But following the convention he visited many historic spots throughout the East. Kelly spoke of many interesting things which he witnessed at Atlantic City, the population of which, he said was 300,000 during the summer. Among the other places which were visited were Niagara Falls, Charleston, Boston, Philadelphia and New York. Speaking of New York, Kelly said that the thing that impressed him was the large amount of traffic.

Smiley started on his tour last January and was gone for five months. The speaker told of stopping at the Madeira Islands and discussed the people and products of the islands. It was from these islands, the speaker said, that Columbus started on his discovery voyage. The next spot that was touched was the northern part of Africa, where a short stop was made. Spain was also included in the tour. Smiley told of his trip up the Nile from Alexandria to Cairo on a stern wheeler. In closing, the speaker told of the extensive farming which has been carried on on the banks of Nile for thousands of years.

The FISK ALL-CORD Process

FISK All-Cord — Ordinary Cord

Note the even regularity of Fisk All-Cord and the distortion of Ordinary Cord
The reason for this difference is that Fisk All-Cord has no cross threads, instead each cord completely surrounded and insulated with rubber, runs parallel to the next; preventing that continual chafing and friction which is always present in ordinary cord fabric. The flexibility of Fisk All-Cord is even at all points while the flexing ability of ordinary cord differs widely.
Flexibility is absolutely necessary and the tire with the greatest flexibility is the one which offers the greatest resistance to road strain and bruises.

Come in today and let us show you why the Fisk All-Cord process permits of so strong a guarantee. Let us aid you in selecting the Fisk Air-Flight that best suits your driving requirements and which must deliver satisfactory mileage for REMEMBER—YOU PAY ONLY for the MILEAGE You Receive when you ride on Fisk Air-Flight Principle Tires.

Surprise Shower Is Given Tuesday Evening

Tuesday evening's interest did not all center around election returns, for a number of girls of the local telephone office were busily engaged in staging a surprise miscellaneous shower on one of their associates, Mrs. A. E. Stephens, in her home on West Hickory street. Prior to her marriage of August 2, the honoree was Hertha Drier. Acting as hostesses were the Misses Alma Dritchel and Tito Decker.

The pleasant hours were spent socially, and were concluded by a delectable refreshment course.

Those present, other than the honoree, Mrs. A. E. Stephens, were the hostesses, the Misses Alma Dritchel and Tito Decker, and the Misses Lula Manning, Leola Koehler, Malinda Cordes, Ann Cordes, Mrs. Lorene Miller, Mrs. Frances Barnhill, Mrs. Wanda Braden, and Mrs. B. Finley.

Native Daughters Hold Meeting

Mrs. Kathryn Ainsley Burns and Mrs. Henriette Dasque Smith were initiated into the Native Daughters of the Golden West, when members of the parlor met for their regular bi-monthly meeting recently. Mrs. Marguerite Dickinson, the newly-elected president of the group, was in charge of the meeting.

The charter was draped in honor of the memory of ex-Senator James D. Phelan. It was decided that the activities of the Thimble club, which has been postponed during the summer months will be resumed in September, at which time preparations for a bazaar and cooked food sales will be made. The chairman, Mrs. Elva Selvidge requested that all members be prepared for the approaching activities of the parlor.

Birthday Is Observed With Pretty Party

Complimenting their daughter, Juanita Louise on her third birthday and anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Trujillo, 1004 East Washington avenue, were hosts at a waffle supper recently given in the home of the little maid's grandmother, Mrs. Thomas Monreal.

Many lovely gifts were presented to the honor guest. Juanita wore a frock of peach organdie the gift of her mother, and resembled nothing so much as a peach-petaled blossom in her fluffy skirts.

Later in the evening ice cream and cookies were served.

Reception Is Given As Farewell Event For Church Workers

A note of joy was mingled with an undercurrent of regret at one of the loveliest receptions of the summer, held last night in the parlors of the First Baptist church when the Women's society sponsored the affair given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. R. Fred Chambers, whose wedding was an event of August 7. While church members are rejoicing in the marriage of the two popular young people, they regret that they are soon to loose Mr. Chambers for a year's time, as he leaves for New Haven, Conn., tomorrow to attend Yale university where he will take up advanced work. He has been filling the position of director of religious education in the First Baptist church for the past 19 months.

The church parlors were gay with the most brilliant of late summer flowers, with vari-colored dahlias and asters in prominence. Mrs. E. R. West headed the committee in charge of the decorations. In the receiving line with the honored guests, Mr. and Mrs. R. Fred Chambers, were the Rev. and Mrs. Harry Evan Owings. Hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Brubaker, Mr. and Mrs. Mac O. Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Fairbanks, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Bell, and three past presidents of the Women's society, Mrs. W. H. Harrison, Mrs. Minnie Holmes, and Miss Gertrude Minor. Mrs. C. Tolifaro, mother of Mrs. Chambers was also a guest of honor. About 175 were present.

Early in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Chambers were presented with a handsome pair of silver candlesticks, in colonial pattern, the gift of the Women's society. The presentation was made very informally, in harmony with the informal note which was carried out during the evening. Musical numbers were especially lovely, and featured violin selections by Miss Emaline Richards and cello numbers by Richard Robbins, accompanied at the piano by Miss Laura Joiner.

Refreshments carried out a pink and white color scheme, with Mrs. Fannie Reeves in charge of the arrangements. She was assisted in serving by Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Wyman, and Mr. and Mrs. John Swanke.

Mrs. Chambers will remain here to continue in her church work with the young people, and it is expected that she will join her husband during the latter part of November.

The dinner committee included Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Randall, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Sturtevant, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Waffle, and Mr. and Mrs. Burt Deck.

Proceeds will go towards the Welfare fund.

Miss Lydia Fisher presided during the business session, and it was also decided to hold a membership contest which is to begin September 1 and continue for one month. The members will work as individuals, and not in teams. Those present were especially glad to welcome Mrs. Frank J. Kelley, 301 South Main, following her return from Chicago and New York where she has been spending the summer. She is the patriotic instructor of the local chapter.

Following a report by Mrs. Rose Edwards, concerning the welfare work of the group during the past month, the members joined the Jack Fisher chapter in a social hour. An appetizing refreshment course concluded the evening.

Guests From Texas Are Entertained By E. A. Clardys

The past month has been an especially delightful one for Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Clardy, 1024 West Washington street, who have been entertaining as house guests, Mr. Clardy's sister, Mrs. Frances Carpenter, whom he had not seen for eighteen years, together with her daughter, Miss Vera Carpenter, and a friend, Miss Lillian Wood, all of La Fors, Tex. The three visitors left here yesterday for their home, concluding a most interesting motor trip.

While the travelers were in California they enjoyed numerous side trips, with Mrs. Carpenter remaining with Mr. and Mrs. Clardy the greater part of the time, and touring the country with them, while Miss Carpenter and Miss Woods journeyed into the northern part of the state, visiting Yosemite, the Big Redwoods, San Francisco and Berkeley. While they were in Kern county they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Clardy. Southern California's noted Huntington Library was among the places of interest which found special favor with the young travelers, both of whom are teachers in Texas.

Honoring Mrs. Frances Carpenter, Miss Vera Carpenter, and Miss Lillian Wood, was a lovely dinner party of recent date, when Mr. and Mrs. James Nuckolls, 2401 Santiago avenue were hosts. Clothing and Fruit Are Needed at Day Nursery

With the opening of school, clothing of all sorts is greatly needed at the Ebell Day Nursery, according to Mrs. Robert Tuthill, president Ebell society. While not quite so many children have enjoyed playing in the shady yard at the nursery this year as did last year, yet a large number have kept the swings busily mounting to the leafy branches of the trees and the other playground equipment in almost continual use. A big sand pile is one of the most popular means of enjoyment in the nursery grounds.

Fresh and canned fruits and jellies and jams can be used at the nursery, Mrs. Tuthill says, as children are given a hot lunch at noon. The fact that work for mothers has not been quite so plentiful as formerly, is given as the reason for the decreased attendance this summer.

Organization Holds Pleasant Session

Members of the Woman's Relief Corps enjoyed a delightful all day meeting yesterday when they met in the K. P. hall. Mrs. Margaret Hill was dinner chairman and Mrs. Elizabeth Birkhead was in charge of the lovely decorations. Fifty-six members, comrades and friends shared the occasion.

At 2 o'clock the business session was held and an interesting feature of the program was a talk given by Mrs. Clara Wedgewood who has just returned from the east where she has been visiting for the past three months.

Reports given revealed that the past month has been a busy one with 80 calls made, 30 bouquets given away, 16 officers and 56 members present at meetings, fruit, jellies and jams given out, $10 presented to the health camp, $5 presented to the fancy work booth at the Pacific Palisades, one new member, Mrs. Margaret Johnson, received into the organization and one new application for membership made.

"Call Of The Flesh" Opens Today

"Call of the Flesh," Ramon Novarro's newest starring vehicle, which will open tomorrow at the Fox Broadway theater, will permit picturegoers to hear Novarro's voice as an opera singer for the first time. To sing in opera has been a lifelong ambition of the star, and in the new photoplay he achieves at least a partial fulfillment of this desire, via the Hollywood microphones.

The operatic numbers which Novarro sings in "Call of the Flesh," are in English, Spanish and Italian, so that followers of the film star in foreign countries will have their first opportunity to hear him render popular and classical songs in their native tongue.

Appearing as a young opera singer who finds himself in love with a dancer and a little convent girl, Novarro will sing several compositions by Herbert Stothart and Clifford Grey as well as a number of operatic arias, including "Ridi Pagliacci," perhaps the best known aria of the late Enrico Caruso, and "Questa o Quella" from "Rigoletto." In the foreign versions of the picture he will replace the "Pagliacci" number by arias from "Traviata" which he claims are better known across the Atlantic.

Dorothy Jordan will again be seen opposite the star and the cast includes Ernest Torrence, Nance O'Neil, Renee Adoree, Mathilde Comont and Russell Hopton. The picture was directed by Charles Brabin who produced "The Bridge of San Luis Rey."

A radio signal will be attempted to the moon in the near future by Dr. A. Hoyt Taylor, superintendent of radio at the Belleview Naval Research Laboratory.

SCREEN LOVERS

"DAWN PATROL" IS SPLENDID AIR FILM

From any angle you may care to view it, "The Dawn Patrol," a First National Vitaphone picture starring Richard Barthelmess, is a splendid production. Widely heralded as an epic of the air, showing the heroism of youthful aviators in the World War, "The Dawn Patrol" surpasses anything of the kind that has been seen on the screen. This may sound like an exaggerated statement, but actually it is justified by the picture now showing to the Fox Broadway theater.

While Richard Barthelmess is the outstanding figure in the role of a squadron commander, on a battlefront in France, other characterizations are so splendidly conceived and presented that no one individual stands out pre-eminently.

In following the picture, one is made to feel the devastating effects of war, the breaking down of nervous resistance and above all the incomparable spirit manifested through unselfish heroism.

Prominent in the superb cast assembled under the direction of Howard Hawks are Neil Hamilton, William Janney, James Finlayson, Clyde Cook, Gardner James, Edmund Breon and Frank McHugh —surely a striking assemblage of names. Each one of the players is ideally suited to the type needed and from beginning to end no false note is sounded.

VIENNA, Aug. 28.—The Smokers' Club, organized here 40 years ago, is still going strong—and so are the pipes. Long clay pipes, of a very old vintage, are permitted in the club, as are meerschaums and porcelain pipes. Cigars, cheroots, or ciragets are not permitted to be smoked by members of the club.

WILLIAM HAINES IN "NAVY BLUES" HERE

William Haines—Gob.

Haines has played everything from a football player to a Marine, but his role as an enlisted man on a destroyer is his most comical, as well as one of the best acted characters, he has ever given the screen. It is, incidentally, in "Navy Blues," his first all-talking picture, now playing at Walker's State theater, that he gives film fans this new slant on his many-sided talent.

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star is deft as ever with his whimsical humor, but he has tempered it with some very serious and remarkably fine acting in the dramatic love story that is the central theme of the picture.

'ARIZONA KID' SEEN AT FOX WEST COAST

"The Arizona Kid," a picture that proved to be one of the biggest drawing cards of last year's films in Santa Ana and a picture which earned for the star the most coveted actor's medal in filmdom, is being returned to the Fox West Coast theater today and tomorrow, by popular demand.

The picture was requested by so many persons that it was booked by Manager Norman Sprowl as part of the Greater Movie Season entertainment for Santa Ana.

The Arizona Kid is the story of a highwayman of the early days in California. He is the original Cisco Kid, and his daring banditry stunts will thrill and enthuse any audience, but his love making to a girl who tricks him and his revenge on her make the picture one of the most interesting brought to Santa Ana.

Carol Lombard and Mona Maris have the leading feminine parts in the production.

A Fox Movietone news reel, together with an all-talking comedy also are shown.

MICKEY MOUSE CLUB TO MEET SATURDAY

Kiddies who attend the Saturday meeting of the Santa Ana Mickey Mouse club at the Fox West Coast theater, will wear hill-billy costumes, in which they will compete for prizes, according to an announcement made today by Norman Sprowl, Fox theaters manager here.

The wearing of the costumes is part of the entertainment for the day which will be headed by "Tumbleweeds," famous William Hart western picture that he made famous several years ago. It is a thriller from the start and declared ideal for the Mickey Mouse club.

There also will be vaudeville on the stage, with Noodles Fagan as master of ceremonies and a Mickey Mouse cartoon.

Mothers and fathers of children who attend the show with them will be allowed to remain for the Saturday afternoon matinee "All Quiet on the Western Front" which is being returned to Santa Ana by popular request Saturday and Sunday. The matinee will not be over however, until 5 p. m.

ARIZONA KID

Warner Baxter, the Cisco Kid, in the great film, 'The Arizona Kid,' which is being returned to the Fox West Coast theater today and Friday by popular request of the Greater Talkie Season entertainment.

New Recipe for Apricot Marmalade

If you can find a few stray apricots in the market, do try this method of making marmalade. It is equally good with peaches, early pears, or those lucious yellow plums.

FRENCH MARMALADE

Wash the fruit and scald if the fruit peels better that way—but peeled it must be. Cut in dice and mash smoothly with a wire potato masher. Cook the unsweetened fruit just enough to soften, then rub through a sieve.

Measure the pulp and weigh and add three-fourths as much sugar as there is fruit pulp. Put over the fire and stir until the sugar is dissolved and thereafter almost constantly while the marmalade cooks rapidly for 20 minutes.

By now it is beginning to thicken and it burns easily, so put it on a heavy asbestos mat, lower the flame and cook it until it is thick when tested on a saucer.

The French woman considers it thick enough when a dab on forefinger and thumb will stick the fingers together. Seal in small sterile glasses and use it as you would the crown jewels.

When you are making a "French Pastry" pie spread a little of this wonderful marmalade directly over the cooked pastry shell, before the pie filling is put in. It makes a marvelous glaze for butterhorns, and for glazing a layer cake before the boiled frosting is applied.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Broiled Crab Legs

Whole crab legs
Melted butter
Salt and paprika
Thin buttered toast
Lemon slices for garnish

Unless crabs are to be had for the asking don't attempt to get enough legs to broil off whole crabs. Go to a fish store and buy the legs by the pound—they will come quite high but you won't have the waste shell and other meat to deal with.

Use a glass baking dish. In it put a fair amount of melted butter, roll the shelled whole crab legs in the butter and place under the broiler to cook for a few minutes, turn them once while in the broiler.

Have thin buttered toast triangles ready, slip them along the edge of the baking dish and under the crab legs, pour over the whole thing more melted butter, highly seasoned, and mixed with lemon juice if you like the flavor.

When served as an entree three or four crab legs make a generous serving. The calorie total per portion some 250, most of which can be charged to butter.

There is no reason why the whole crab cannot be done this way. Just take it out of the shell in pieces as unbroken as possible and broil along with the legs. Another delicious way to use the extra crab meat is to mix it with a deviled cream sauce and bake it in the crab shell, covered with buttered crumbs.

Spoon Breads, the current leaflet, describes all the steps in the making of the lightest, fluffiest food ever concocted. I have a way all my own and it has yet to fail me. Onto that way of making spoon bread I grated another idea, combining them both together.

Pork Chops Italiene, a very nice way to bake pork chops, will be described tomorrow.

Unsightly Blemishes on Face and Neck. Healed by Cuticura.

"I was bothered with pimples that later developed into sore eruptions. These unsightly blemishes appeared on my face and neck and caused considerable itching and discomfort. The irritation was very severe at times, especially when I got warm. I was bothered with them for two years.

"I tried other remedies but they did not relieve me. I purchased a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and after three or four treatments I got relief. I continued using them and in about a month I was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Ted Matthews, Ocean Park, Wash.

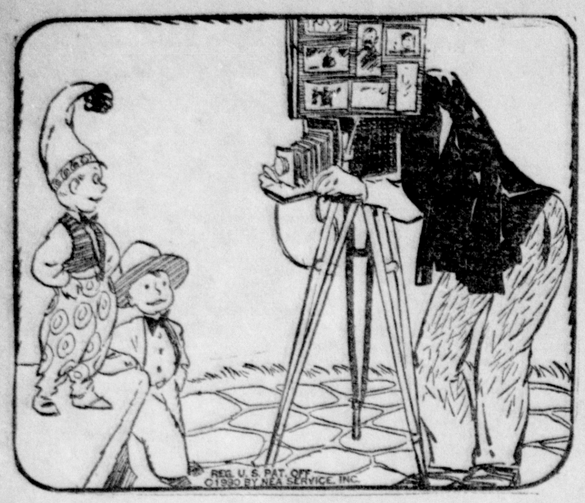
THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES by KING



The Boy Scouts told the Tinymites of lots of very pretty sights that they could see while traveling in Athens, day by day. They spoke of buildings towering high that could be seen, in passing by. Said one, "A lot have pillars which were built, it seems, to stay."

The Travel Man said, "You are right. They make a very pretty sight. The architects of olden days were clever as could be. We've traveled 'round for days and days. I'm sure we always will have praise for things we've seen in Athens, if the boys agree with me."

Then Clowny said, "I'll bet that I could blow your bugle. Can I try? I promise I won't toot too hard and break the thing in two." "Of course you can," the lad replied. He took the bugle from his side and handed it to Clowny, saying, "See what you can do."

Poor Clowny blew real hard and then, he caught his breath and blew again. A little queer toot was the only sond that he could get. "Ha! ha!" laughed Coppy. "Use more zeal. So far you've only made it squeal. If you don't have more luck than that, I guess you'll lose your bet."

Once more he blew and it went, "Whe-e-e-." Then Clowny gave up, saying, "Gee, I guess that I am much too tired. I'll try some other day." Then to the Boy Scouts they said, "Well, you've treated all of us real swell." And then they bid the Scouts good-bye and traveled on their way.

A Camera Man soon came in sight, which tickled Clowny Tinymite. "I'll have my picture taken in a Grecian suit," said he. A suit was rented from a store and Clowny scampered out once more. He posed before the Camera Man, as proud as he could be.

(The Tinymites meet a very funny moving man in the next story.)

RULES:

1. In playing golf on the Missing Letter Links the object is to change one word to another in a given number of strokes which is par. For example, to go from TEE to PIN in three strokes sounds hard but isn't: TEE-TIE-PIE-PIN. It's probably more difficult on a real course.

2. Change but one letter at a time and be sure the word you have used is one in good usage.

3. The order of the letters cannot be changed.

equally as strong. It split even in a two-game series with Anaheim, a strong first-division club of the National division. During the first half, Pomona nosed out the Reds for their only defeat, but were blanked on the same field in the second half.

In the second half of the season, Corona administered a 2 to 1 defeat, and it may be significant to Santa Ana fans to learn that Rubidoux, the pitcher who did the trick, performs in the box in much the same style as Cornelius, ace of the Stars.

The huge man who will appear in the first base coacher's box and who might be confused for an umpire, will be Manager Finlay. Despite the fact that his leg was amputated because of an injury, he played semi-proball as a catcher on strong Southern California teams for years.

This is the second year of league nite ball for Colton, and its stands in the municipal park will accommodate 3100 spectators. A packed clay diamond is in good condition and the lighting system is better than the average. The field is level, and is surrounded by a low screen fense.

All in all, I see no reason why he shouldn't hit at least six more before October and thus be the first man, other than Ruth, to break into the fifty-a-year class. If he does better than that, he might beat Ruth himself. If he does only as well, he will have an outside chance. If he doesn't he will have practically none.

"We hope this is true, for in the event the Saints meet the Reds for the championship, they're going to have one sweet time getting by with the short hits against the Shaddox-Botts-Stone combination. Several have tried this, but few landed safe on the first sack. However, this is a game that two can play at, and the local have several boys who can lay 'em down as good as the best.

"The Saints must be given due credit for having a powerful, well-balanced team and it's going to be up to the Reds to step out on the field and play real ball, if they want to grab off the bacon.

"Local fans and supporters from Riverside, San Bernardino and other Orange Belt cities are all behind the Reds to a man to win the pennant and with such encouragement as this we bank on the hometown boys to do or die on the old lot.

"In the two games Shorty Stock has played with the Reds, the former Pomona flash has shown to a good advantage. Manager Finlay pulled a fast one when he grabbed off this boy to hold down the keystone sack. It makes it kind of tough on "Hank" Hannagan to make a showing now with a speed burner on each side of him, but "Hank" says he is putting in all his spare time in training and by the time the playoff comes, he'll be able to run the shirt off either of them.

Asa Vandermasts Are Hosts at Dinner Party

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Vandermast were hosts at a delightful dinner party last evening, when they entertained in their home at 425 South Birch street in observance of Mr. Vandermast's birthday anniversary.

The atmosphere of gaeity which was first evidenced in the numerous bouquets of brilliant late summer blooms which decked the rooms was continued in the table appointments which centered around a lovely cluster of pink asters. Slim tapers in the same delicate hue were at each place, and harmonized with the tiny nut cups and place cards as well. Concluding the appetizing courses was a huge birthday cake, beautifully decorated in pink and white which was made by Mrs. Murray Vandermast. An interesting social hour concluded the evening.

Those sharing the pleasant affair with Mr. and Mrs. Asa Vandermast, were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Vandermost, of San Pedro; Mrs. Emma Lyday, of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Vandermast, and son, Newell Vandermast, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Prince and son, Kenneth Prince, Mr. and Mrs. Will McConnell and Mr. and Mrs. Murray Vandermast.

They yelled at Mathewson, "Take him out." Big Six sensed the animosity the crowd bears for the has-been and quit pitching before the anvil chorus got well tuned up. Babe Ruth is a victim of the crowd's mood every time he strikes out.

PANGS FROM WITHIN

The other day in Paris, just before departing to compete in the national championships at Forest Hills, Jean Borotra made a frank little confession to Minott Saunders, Paris correspondent for NEA Service and this newspaper.

The picturesque Borotra, probably the most popular of international tennis players and the most graceful sportsman known to the game, is in his early thirties. He wasn't worried so much about being defeated at Wimbledon and in the Davis cup match at Paris, but it was the five-set struggle with George Lott that convinced him he was slipping.

"I never want to make my friends suffer again as they did during that match," the Bounding Basque told Saunders. "Nor do I want to live through again the Calvary that I endured before Lott I must admit that I am too old.

"This year I trained as never before. I worked like a demon and was in perfect physical condition, but it was only by a hair that I managed to avoid complicating things for my teammates. I think too much importance is placed upon Davis cup play, but since it is I do not feel that my shoulders should bear the burden of a national defeat."

GIVES JOB TO RENE

Next year, says Borotra, the care of the Davis cup will be entrusted to Henri Cochet and Rene Lacoste, with Jacques Brugnon almost certain to be seen in the doubles.

"It's all settled,' said Borotra. "I lunched with Lacoste and we fixed it up between the fruit and the cheese. Rene is stronger now and says he will be in top form next year. He will have to do the heavy work with Cochet. I will stand aside. Of course I shall play in tournaments, but I am getting too old for Davis cup play."

Lacoste, who late last June married Mlle. Simone Thion de la Chaume, French golf champion for six successive years, is now training at his new villa near Biarritz. Sickness made him feel that he was not strong enough for tournaments this year.

It is not so much the jeers Borotra says he feels. It is the realization that his star is waning that hurts. He has heard jeers before. At Germantown when the famous French four won the Davis cup, a volley of American boos and jeers greeted their every move on the courts. And should a Frenchman miss a stroke in that tournament, the gallery would break into wild shouts and applause.

Borotra bore that with a cynical smile. But the inner realization is what hurts the most.

Beach Party Enjoyed Around Blazing Fire

A merry group of young friends, who often meet for social affairs, last evening enjoyed a weiner and marshmallow bake, accompanied by the other good things to eat that are so necessary for picnics. The event took place on the sands of Balboa Point. Following supper, which was enjoyed about a blazing campfire, a group of games furnished the entertainment for the rest of the evening.

Those invited to the pleasant affair were the Misses Edna Hall, Eunice Bright, Marthella Hardijen, Norma Tantlinger, Edith Southworth, Mary Mateer, Gladys Best, Margaret Willebrant, Helen Hendricks, Martha Hendricks, Iva Lester, Miriam Samuelson, and Messrs. Francis Hall, Lawrence Taqlor, John Van Dyke, Jack O'mara, George Haskell, Earl Trueblood, DeWitt Bishop, and Miss Virginia Robb, and John Taylor, who entertained, and Mr. and Mrs. John Taylor, and Mr. J. E. Hall.

CHICAGO BD OF TRADE

CHICAGO, Aug 28—(UP)—Wheat rallied sharply to close fractionally higher on the Board of Trade today after a dull and easy session. The rally came after March and May wheat had sold at new lows for the season.

NEW YORK CURB

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(UP)—Narrow price movements and a fairly steady undertone prevailed on the curb market in a quiet session today, although a few individual issues stepped out of the rut and showed wider changes. Among the lateer were Texon Oil and Land, which spurted more htan 2 points to a new high for the year, Dow Chemical, which advanced more than a ponit, and Northern States Power A, an isue with a thin market that was bid up three points in light trading.

Public utility leaders failed to maintain their upswing of the past few sessions as a result of profit taking that was encountered on all advances. American Gas and Electric and Electric Bond and Share receded to their previous closing levels after early advances. Cities Service was in supply at a fractional concession.

However, Brazilian Traction showed a reversal of trend and moved up more than a point on good buying attracted by its recent decline. American and Foreign Power warrants and United Light A were firm at fractional advances.

Oils were rather steday, although price movements were confined to a narrow range. Vacuum and Standard of Indiana moved up slightly. Investment Trusts showed narrow and mixed changes with Goldman Sachs gaining a fraction after an early dip.

"Tickletoes" Is the Wonder Doll of the Age

"TICKLETOES" is the only doll in the world with soft, life-like rubber legs and rubber arms, and those marvelous rolling-sleeping-winking eyes. Squeeze either leg and hear this baby cry, or turn her over and she cries.

She is the cutest and happiest of all baby dolls, for she can clasp her hands, turn her head, suck her thumb, enjoy her pacifier. She is elegantly dressed in baby clothes and wears stockings, moccasins and real rubber panties.

Just picture the joy of the children proudly "mothering" cute little "Tickletoes." Even grown-ups like to play with this "almost-human" doll.

HERE'S HOW

Miniature Golf Snaps
Why launch a new golf course when there are bargains to be had in ESTABLISHED, STABILIZED courses? For six months we have done nothing but design, build, operate and sell miniature golf. We are in touch with HUNDREDS OF COURSE OWNERS in four counties. We believe that THE GAME IS HERE TO STAY. Many misfits have rushed into the game. Many hurry-up partnerships were formed that failed to jell. This has produced a situation where fundamentally sound courses that are being mismanaged CAN BE PICKED UP RIGHT. We specialize in the sale of such properties. For instance—Established 18 hole course in nearby town. Netting about $400 month. Blvd. location. Low overhead. Stand most rigid investigation. About $2500 cash necessary. SEE US ABOUT THIS —No information over phone.

ANALYZING THE VOTE

In the contests for sheriff and district attorney, there has been a division in the forces standing more pronouncedly for the enforcement of law. It is quite significant that one of the candidates for sheriff who was endorsed by the Law Enforcement League, received the highest number of votes of any of the seven, and the second man who was endorsed by the league came in third on the ticket. These two candidates, Mr. Jackson and Mr. Pearson, received very nearly 50 per cent of all votes cast,—their combined vote lacking but 2,000 of having a distinct majority of all the votes. This is extremely significant.

The vote on the office of district attorney is not so clear and pronounced, but at the same time it is significant. There was not the campaign carried on in the district attorney's race that there was in the sheriff's race, Logan Jackson having been out in the campaign for months, and Pearson being very active for quite a number of weeks.

In the district attorney's race, there was little done comparatively for the candidates who were endorsed by the Law Enforcement League. On the other hand, the organization directly behind the candidate who led was strong, open and pronounced. This showed up in his home city of Fullerton and in the city of Anaheim, where the disparity of the vote assured the candidate of the leading place on the ticket. In Anaheim the latter received over 1300 votes against the opposition field of 800, and in Fullerton, 1500 votes against the opposition field of 800.

In San Clemente, Mr. Collins received 198 votes and Mr. Westover 22, and in Newport Beach, Mr. Collins received 411 against Mr. Westover's 175. This indicates the determination if possible to have made the nomination an election.

The contest for this office will undoubtedly be the strongest contest which will be conducted in Orange county. Mr. Westover will get none of the so-called liberal vote, whether it be of liquor or of gambling. His dependence must be upon the other group.

Mr. Westover won a place because he was the most pronounced in the position which he took. Undoubtedly Mr. Wettlin, would have been in the run-off, certainly in second place, if not in first place, if he had been as frank and open in the position which he took as Mr. Westover. Mr. Wettlin maintained that his record was right; that he had answered the questionnaire, and we know that many of pronounced views on the 18th Amendment supported him. Certainly it appears that none of the other crowd did, for in San Clemente he received but two votes, and in Newport Beach but 61 against 411 for the high man.

THE TRUE PARTY SENTIMENT

The smoke has cleared away over the election, and we are beginning to see some things in their perspective.

The prohibition and law enforcement forces in California, from a gubernatorial point of view, are momentarily in the wilderness. The candidate on the Republican ticket for governor and the candidate on the Democratic ticket for governor are impossible to support on any ground that would prompt a man, who believed in the Constitution and the law, to vote for the chief executive in the state that is supposed to typify both.

We have always been associated with the Republican party. We believe in the party organization. We have faith in our present national administration. We believe in the position of Mr. Hoover, and because we believe in the position of Mr. Hoover and believe that he typifies the best there is in the Republican party, by the same token, in order to be loyal to those views, we find it impossible to be loyal to the principles and ideals of the Mayor of San Francisco.

A party does not consist of its candidates. It does not consist of its executive committee. A party consists of all those people who have joined together, believing that through the party they can find the finest expression of their principles. The Republican party consists, therefore, of all the voters, and nearly two-thirds of the Republican voters of California voted for candidates whose views on prohibition and law enforcement are diametrically opposed to those of the man who was nominated.

We are still loyal to the principles. We are loyal to the two-thirds of the Republican party in California. We are not going to desert the Republican party, but if an opportunity is afforded that looks like business, we are going to do just exactly as we would do if our home were infested with vermin—we would move out temporarily, give it a thorough dose of formaldehyde, kill the vermin and move back in. In respect to the governorship of the state, we are inclined to move out, give it a thorough cleansing by the support and election of a man who stands right upon the fundamental principles of the Republican party nationally; who supports President Hoover in his administration as far as this principle is concerned, and after it is over, it is possible that candidates and supporters of such candidates shall realize that they cannot control the majority of the party with a minority.

Those whose loyalties and obligations are primarily to the party, and not to the principles involved may support the candidate selected. We have been told by friends that it would hurt politically to be against the candidate on the ticket. If we were looking for political preferment, or desired to build up a political machine, or were planning to receive something from a party organization, it is possible that we would consider what might be valuable from that point of view. But we have never supported any candidate yet of that type, and we do not propose to begin now.

Orange county, in its total vote, was nearly four to one against that candidate. In the state, in the Republican ranks as a whole, it was nearly two to one. We are hoping that the people of California will have an opportunity to express the real convictions on election day, as they did in the primaries, with the difference of being unified instead of divided.

Once there was a newspaper paragrapher who read about Einstein's theory of space and never once thought about making a crack about our parking problem.

"WHALE, HO!"

There was tremendous excitement in New York harbor the other day. The sound of "Whale, Ho!" was wafted to the captain of a little ship bound down the harbor for Atlantic Highlands, New Jersey. Sure enough there was a whale, a very rare visitor in New York harbor. It was a pleasure craft and the whale was the most exciting thing the fun-makers were likely to encounter that day. But Captain John Cameron had never broken his sailing schedule and wouldn't put his boat, which had been making considerable speed past the whale, around to afford the passengers more views of the whale.

But the whale had something to say about this disrespect. On the trip homeward the ship, the Monmouth, was shaken from stem to stern. All hands were ordered to stand by but there was nothing to do about the apparent earthquake which was upheaving the gallant ship. In a short time it settled into the water again and the whale was seen disappearing in the distance.

Airways to The South

Oakland Tribune

To another Pan-American Reciprocal Trade Conference, delegates will be flying from the south. Right now airplanes are blazing new travel paths between the Americas, rescuing many places from long-time obscurity and giving a cosmopolitan touch to others.

The National Geographic Society has sent a flying party down there to make maps, photographs, visit the leading centers, and carry on the work of friendship and information. Frederick Simpich, correspondent with the party, says: "An air line for mail and passengers ties the two Americas together, and a small army of highly trained men is required to fly and care for the airplanes which operate this long-distance service. At our hotel in Para, 27 guests from the United States were registered. All were seaplane employees or air passengers. Already, seaplane patrons and crews have increased business enough in some remote parts, off the main steamship lanes, so that new or remodeled hotels are discussed.

"Flying has brought new types to cities all the way from Havana and San Juan de Porto Rico to Para and Pernambuco. Guests at hotels are accustomed now to seeing a crowd of sun-burned, khaki-clad flying Yankees come trooping in to lunch, just in from a long flight, too hungry to stop to change clothes. In a day the mailplane pilots make anywhere from 1200 to 1500 miles, eating breakfast in Miami and dinner in Haiti, or sleeping one night in Para, Brazil, and the next in Port of Spain, Trinidad. Passengers who ride these planes are up at dawn, and into the air before sunrise Agents supply each with a lunch, and reading matter is put on the ships Baggage is limited, but careful choice of light wash clothes and quick work by seaport laundry women afford comfort to travelers."

A Cult on the Wane

San Diego Union

Engineers and the engineering type of mind in other than structural or mechanical fields, are but slowly beginning to realize the drawbacks entailed in bigness as a standard of competition. Size has been too much applauded. Pesisting the incentive of the crowd's plaudits, thoughtful workers in all fields are buckling down to the monotonous business of checking up on ascertainable results.

Gentlemen who have won reputations through the construction of the biggest bridge, the biggest locomotive, the biggest plane, are beginning to acknowledge—a few of them, at least, here and there—that their attainments have not been altogether worthy of the applause won. The same applies to leading spirits in building bigger cities, bigger stores, bigger mergers. The fact that size is not an end in itself is being re-discovered.

There are locomotives too big for the economical haulage of the average loads available. There are buildings too big for profitable rental—buildings that return profits, not upon the buildings themselves, but upon the de luxe attractions and high-pressured salesmanship invoked to obtain tenants. There are cities too big to afford sane living conditions to the majority of their citizens.

Size is a childish standard of excellence—which is to say merely that it is an easy standard. We have seen, in our own time, a greatly over-stimulated competition for the easy applause and foolish admiration that mere size excites.

Like most of humanity's foolish fancies, however, the cult of bigness matures its own correctives. The lesson will be learned again. Far back in human history the builders of some biggest war canoe learned it. In our own time the builders of some biggest ocean liner will learn it all over again.

No More, Thanks

San Diego Union

It is a comfort to learn that the common council will not permit another marathon-dance fiasco in San Diego. In view of past experiences here, it is astonishing that any organization would petition for a permit to hold one. It is possible that there are honest and reputable and responsible marathon-dance promoters—or at least it is possible that at some time in an illimitable future there will be. But promoters of these affairs commonly screen themselves by promising to pay a reputable organization for the use of its name. The "contest" itself is a shabby and foolish affair. And in the past there has often been a shoddy aftermath of evaded contracts, unpaid bills and attachments. Nobody wants more of the same.

We trust that the council's decision will set a precedent for all time to come.

The Menace!

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

TO A SNAKE

I know, from what I've read in books
That you've been much maligned,
That, quite despite your evil looks,
Your soul is calm and kind.
Although your eyes are glittering jet,
Your heart is not of stone,
And you are harmless, if you're let Alone.

Upon man's foes, the insect breed
Which swarm about our flanks
Like greedy wolves, you daily feed
And decimate their ranks.
And, stowed beneath your bony slats
When bugs do not suffice
To serve your need, are many rats
And mice.

You never seek for human prey
As sharks and tigers do,
The grizzly bear's voracious way
Has no allure for you.
With your companions or alone,
Abroad, or in your lairs,
Your system is to mind your own
Affairs.

But yet, since Old Man Adam's day
You have been held in fear,
And human beings flee away
When you come wriggling near.
I know that I ought not to share
This prejudice of old,
Yet, Mr. Snake, you always scare
Me cold.

Is Good Business Any Business of the Government?

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

Following the stock market crash of last fall, the Government took aggressive leadership for the avowed purpose of sustaining trade and employment. Some objections were raised to this policy. A number of men insisted that "good business is no business of the Government."

A distinguished economist, Dr. Gustav Cassel, of Sweden, declared that the course taken by the United States Government was "a mistake of the first magnitude."

Recently there has been much discussion of the three Wagner Bills relating to unemployment. These bills provide certain measures whereby the Government, through its own activities, will help to keep business prosperous. A number of Senators objected to these bills on the ground that they provide for the interference of Government with business.

We must bear in mind, however, that no matter what the United States Government does it is certain to affect business. The Government is the largest spender in the world. It pays out close to four billions of dollars a year.

Such stupendous expenditures must either help or hinder private business. There are times when private spending is too large; and there are times, like the present, when private spending is too small. The least the Government can do is to take account of these fluctuations in business activities and spend the flexible parts of its budget when such spending will do the most good.

In the first six months of last year there was no occasion for the Government to increase its expenditures. Private spending was just about keeping pace with increased production. During the first six months of the present year, however, trade and employment were so far below normal that it was sound business policy to increase Government expenditures. Under such conditions it is literally true that the country can create certain public works at no real cost whatever.

And at the same time benefit private business.

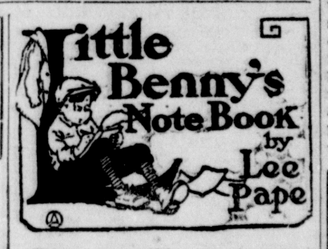
Little Benny's Note Book by Lee Pape



Pop was smoking a cigar and looking at it between puffs as if he wasent positive weather he liked it or not, and ma sed, Well, Willyum, theres many a true word spoken in jest.

Speek a few for me, pop sed, and ma sed, About the baby's tooth, I meen. You remember the other day you sed if the baby herd some kind of stirring music such as the Frentch Marsellaise, it mite induce the tooth to come through. You happened to suggest it in a kind of a flippant way, but I thawt about it later, and this afternoon I stopped in at Gladdises house and explained the theory to her, and we tried it out, ma sed.

Ultra modern dentistry, yee gods, pop sed, and ma sed, We dident think the Frentch Marsellaise would do because its too military and mite sound as though we were using force insted of suggestion, and we certenly dident want to brake the babys spirit just for one tooth. So we looked all through Gladdises tawking machine record till we came to Waiting at the End of the Road, so we tried that to give him a mental pickture of his patient mother and grandmother waiting with outstretched arms for the tooth to appear. But Willy dident seem to feel any specific reaction. In fact he dident even wake up, so we tried Till the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold to suggest that we would be patient indefinitely and in that way perhaps werk on his little concients, and then we put on that wonderful song from Madam Butterfly where the little Japanese gerl is sitting by the window singing to her falts lover that she is still waiting for him, and low and behold the little angel woke up with a proud and happy laff, and it was out at last. It certenly speeks well for his taist in music. I think we awt to at least go to the movies to celebrate, she sed.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

THINGS THAT REMAIN

Last week, as part of America's look back into the last decade of her aconomic life. I listed the major factors that underlay the phenomenal prosperity of that period.

Yesterday and the day before I discussed some of these factors that has disappeared or diminished in force.

Today I want to ask what, out of all these factors that gave us such abounding plenty during the last decade, remains. Finding the right answer to this question is an important part of the inventory of assets that America needs now to make as she faces the future.

Let us glance into a few representative fields of economic activity:

(1) The automobile industry. During the last decade the annual production of automobiles róse from about 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 cars. We cannot keep up that rate of production increase. We made that dramatic jump in production in the period when some 23,000,000 Americans were becoming car owners, many of them for the first time. The best estimate I can get indicates that replacement and the new demand from growth in population may in the years immediately ahead require an annual production of about 4,000,000 cars. Some one may, of course, out-Ford Ford and create a car enough below existing cars in price to create another impetus to the motor industry.

(2) The radio industry. Despite the fact that many competent observers are confident that the next electrify all the homes and communities that need electrification, her economic life would receive a tonic to the tune of multiplied billdecade of this industry will be less be more active in the next decade we may witness technical developments in the field of transmission of sight and sound that will give an unsuspected stimulus to the radio industry.

(3) The building trade. While it is true that the epidemic exodus from cities to the suburbs has reached a relative stabilization, our cities are still over-crowded, in terms of really liveable living quarters, an dthere is much potential life still left in the suburban building program. As a whole, America is under-built. She needs more and better homes. And granted intelligent economic leadership generally, we should see a healthy building program under way during the next decade.

(4) The electric power industry. Here is an industry that should be more active in the nevt decade than in the last. If America could lions of dollars. I should be glad, I know, to see electrification still the voice of the sleep-destroying engine that paraded and puffed outside my hotel window last night.

I could go on, but I want only to illustrate the fact that everything basic remains in America's economic life, except that, in a few super-mechanized and super-efficient industries, a first fresh pioneer market has been exploited and a period of stabilization must be faced.

There are still 120,000,000 or more mouths to be fed and bodies to be clothed in a domestic market that is unhampered by internal tariff barriers. As a people, we have far from satisfied the legitimate demands of a healthy and civilized nation.

To tolerate depression in this stage-setting is to confess a shameful bankruptcy of leadership.

OUR CHILDREN

PREPARATION FOR SCHOOL

Fear is one of the fundamental causes of school failure the first term. The little children are afraid of school. Many of them have not been prepared for the new world they discover in the classroom. They walk in dread and sit in terror for days on end. That kills all hope of growth. Until that fear is banished the child gains nothing.

"You wait until you get to school. The teacher will beat you good. She won't let you move." "Just wait until the teacher sees what a bad child you are. She'll put you in the black closet and you won't get home any more." "If you don't behave in school the teacher will pull your ears out."

One such speech is enough to send a child to school in mortal terror. We have had children refuse to move, once they reached a bench. Some of them have refused to touch a pencil or a bit of paper. They feared that if they did so they might make a mistake and the teacher would do them harm in some way or other. We have had children who refused to speak for months on end because someone had told them that if they said words the wrong way the teacher would cut the end of their tongues off. Such cruelty as that is still practiced in America.

Fear causes children to stutter. It makes them stupid because neither eyes nor ears can function under such fear as some of them feel. It will make children vomit the moment they enter the building. It will make some of them hysterical, restless, flighty and loud. It will make the teacher's task well nigh impossible. Until she gains the confidence of the children she makes no progress.

Then why not prepare the children for school? Begin by telling them all its good points. Take them to visit the school. Let them watch the children there at work and at play. Let them become acquainted with the teacher. Let them learn the plan of the building and accustom them to find their way about it.

Prepare the child physically. If his teeth need attention have them cared for months before school-opening. Have all the vaccinations done well before time. If tonsils or adenoids are troublesome have them treated before the child enters school. It is most unwise to wait until a child enters school and then begin a long series of treatments, each of which is more or less of a shock to the child.

Send the child to school in health, mental and physical and you have set the stage for success. Send him there in fear, ailing in body or in mind, and you set the stage for certain failure. The success or failure of a child's school life is set before he enters, not afterward. The school works on what the child brings to it. It never adds to his original equipment. It modifies and changes and leads but it cannot add to what the child IS.

Then help this child all you can. Send him to school in shape to profit as much as possible by the instruction he receives there.

TOLSTOY'S BIRTH

On August 28, 1928, Leo Tolstoy, a famous Russian novelist and one of the world's greatest novelists, was born in the government of Tula, Russia.

He went to the University of Kazan but after he graduated he said he knew "literally nothing." Induced by his brother, an army officer, to visit in Caucasia, Tolstoy became so fascinated with the life there that he, too, joined the army. It was at this time he wrote of his experiences in Sebastapol. Because his sketches painted the horrors of war with its false and real heroes with such realism, he soon rose to fame as a writer.

Leaving the army after the Crimean war, Tolstoy decided to devote himself to literature. He first went to Germany to add to his learning and culture but his experience there only intensified his doubts and disappointments. He had lost faith in modern civilization and became a champion of the common people, an enemy of the artificial upper classes.

Tolstoy wrote much on education and in his later years devoted himself to religious teaching. He made "Resist not evil" the keystone of the Christian faith. His religious views are set forth in "My Confession." His ,'War and Peace" is regarded as his masterpiece but his "Anna Karenina," largely autobiographical, is the more popular.
